Gunman Is Seized by Crowd in Field's.

One man was shot to death, two others were perhaps mortally wounded and several hundred women customers of Marshall Field & Co. were thrown into a panic yesterday afternoon as a result of one of the most spectacular loop holdups executed in recent years.

The lone, middle aged robber, creating turmoil on the second floor of the big department store as he fled through its aisles, was captured in Field's basement, disarmed, and almost smothered by the vengeful crowd. Later at the detective bureau he identified himself as Fred Smith, 47 years old, a jobless machinist of 2623 North Kimball avenue.

"I must have been crazy," the prisoner said as he was booked for robbery and murder. He told the police it was his first essay at crime.

Flower Seller Slain.

The man slain was Casimir Krazinski, 37 years old, 3410 Keeler avenue avenue. Krazinski, the proprietor of a flower stand on the elevated landing beneath the Rapid Transit station at Randolph street and Wabash avenue, was shot five times, dying at 3:15 p. m. in St. Mary's hospital.

The shooting started in front of Krazinski's stand after Smith had robbed a restaurant manager and a girl cashier there. In the robber's flight in Field's store he continued firing.

The robbery victims were John Gallaga, 32 years old, manager of the Pinky & Ehlers restaurant at 63 East Lake street, and the restaurant cashier, Miss Dorothy Woodburn, 22 years old, 3645 East 75th street. With the morning's receipts of $1,067 they were bound for the Northern Trust company, La Salle and Monroe streets, and had started to take the elevated train for safety.

Gunman Demands Money.

Gallaga was carrying the currency and silver in a canvas bag. He and the girl climbed the elevated station stairs and were passing the flower stand on the platform to climb another flight to the station when Smith, a gray haired man in a shabby overcoat, appeared, holding a pistol in his right hand.

"Gimme that money," he demanded, stepping up to Gallaga and prodding him in the waist with the pistol. Gallaga smiled, as though he thought it was a joke, then, observing the robber's menacing scowl, he handed over the sack.

The florist, seeing Smith pocket his pistol, stepped away from his stand. The stairways and platforms were filling with a startled crowd. It was then 2:45 p. m.

Caught in Cross-fire.

The instant the florist stepped away from his stand, a bystander, James Dewey, 35 years old, appeared behind him and opened fire. Dewey fired two and Smith four times while affrighted men and women shrank back down the stairs. The florist, hit by both pistols, fell with one bullet through his upper lip, two in the chest and one in the spine.

"Stop thief," one woman shrieked. "Get that man," another cried. "He's a killer, but his gun's unloaded. Grab him."

Customers, interrupted in the placid examination of bric-a-brac and glassware as the robber dashed into the store, turned pale, and several women fainted.

Clerk Battles with Gunman.

Paul Townsend, 19 years old, 1442 East Marquette road, a bill adjuster for Field's, was at work in the chinaware section in the northeast corner on the second floor of the store when the saw Smith enter. Believing Smith's pistol emptied, he dropped his note book and pencil, made a leap and landed on the robber's shoulders.

The gunman sank to his knees, disarming in the clerks' grasp, he managed to bring the pistol around his own waist with the muzzle at Townsend's belt. He squeezed the trigger with his thumb. The clerk, with a groan, relaxed his hold and lay on the floor. Later, at the Alexian Brothers hospital, to which Townsend was taken, surgeons said he had slight chance to live.

The crowd began to press closer. Another clerk, Hugo Buck, 21 years

Aiken, S. C., April 7.—(AP)—Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the United States house of representatives, is in a serious although not critical condition at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis here tonight. He developed pneumonia yesterday.

After a consultation late tonight attending physicians decided not to issue a bulletin, awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Longworth from Washington tomorrow. His condition, they said, does not warrant a bulletin at this time.

Wife Due This Morning.

The wife of the speaker telegraphed that she would arrive here at 10:15 o'clock tomorrow morning from Washington.

Three physicians, including a specialist from Augusta, Ga., were attending the speaker, and four nurses were on hand for duty in his room.

An oxygen tank was brought into use to combat the effects of the malady on his respiratory system, but the physicians explained that this measure was taken merely as "a precaution to prevent a crisis."

Cold Grows More Serious.

Speaker Longworth developed a severe cold a few days ago while on his annual spring visit to the Curtis home. Yesterday he was ordered to bed by his physician, and last night pneumonia set in.

During his visit here the house leader had played some golf daily, but he spent most of his time resting.

HUSBAND LEARNS HE CAN'T BOSS WIFE AT POLLS

A middle aged man in working clothes walked into the election commission offices in the city hall yesterday and demanded an audience with the chief clerk, Fred Rusch.

"I'm for Thompson and my wife wants to vote for Cermak," he explained. "I told her the law says she must vote my way. That's right, isn't it?"

Rusch told the man he was in error. Unsatisfied, he telephoned a lawyer and repeated the question. Again he was disappointed.

"Well, it's grounds for divorce, isn't it?" he asked. The attorney told him no and he hung up the receiver, leaving the office with a mumbled threat to appeal to the court of domestic relations tomorrow.

CERMAK READY TO TAKE REINS BY END OF WEEK

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Mayor Elect A. J. Cermak will take office as World's Fair executive of Chicago very soon, perhaps by Friday. He is prepared to throw the whole Thompson organization out of the city hall and to name as members of his cabinet men who will at once command public confidence.

Mr. Cermak will go to work on his new job today, conferring with his associates on appointments and getting ready to step into power. He had planned to go to Washington, where he was invited as a guest of the Gridiron club, but changed his mind last night and said he would stay right here. No junkets down the river for him. He will resign at once as president of the county board.

Canvass of Vote Started.

All that is necessary for him to become mayor in fact is the proclamation by the election commission of the results of this election. The canvass by the election commissioners was opened in the first precinct of the First ward last night, and this afternoon thirty teams of workers will be put at work on the ballots. It is expected that this work will be completed so that Mr. Cermak can qualify on Friday.

Mr. Cermak has stated that up to election day he had not committed himself to a single appointment in his cabinet. He said last night that he would be ready within a few days with the names of those who will be invited to become his advisers and coworkers.

They will be guided, as he will be guided, he said, by the promises which he made during the campaign. These promises he regards as real and even sacred. He is aware that idealism often stumbles in this practical world, but his goal is to be placed high.

He Calls for Cooperation.

In a statement to the public last night, which was issued soon after he was assured of victory, he said that a new day of progress had dawned for Chicago, and he asked for the cooperation and continued support of the business men, the great newspapers, and the organizations which had supported him.

Mayor Thompson, he said, had made an "unforgivable campaign" of slander and abuse, and he asked the national and religious groups to forget the prejudices that had been stirred by the Thompson methods.

"Corruption shall go from our midst," he said, "and criminals shall find no hiding place here."

Mr. Cermak had no great elation in his manner as he sat in a room in the Hotel Sherman, hemmed in by an excited and noisy crowd of political friends.

Laughs at Pushcart Jest.

"Say something funny," he begged, as he grew weary of congratulations and returns.

"Who's got the pushcart now?" yelled Ald. John Toman. That got a laugh from the mayor-elect of a few minutes, who was being slapped on the back, hugged, yelled at, whispered to, all at the same time.

Judge Henry Horner told him he had just seen a telegram from Al Smith congratulating him and calling on him to "hold high the banner of Democracy."

He realized that a great task had been put on his shoulders, that he had become a figure that the nation, as well as his own city, would watch, and his first reaction, he said, was a feeling of responsibility.

Sincere in His Program.

He says, and it must be believed of him, that he sincerely wants to bring back a good name to Chicago and give one of the best administrations in the history of the city.

Where this immigrant boy came from, old Bohemia, public office is considered a high honor, one that rarely falls to the working class from which he sprang. And here he had arrived, over a long, rough road, from mine boy to contractor and business man, then, after 10 years in the school of politics, to a position of political dictatorship over a community of three and a half millions.

While his party is in power and in the strongest position it has ever been in the city and county, he takes the position that, while the organization which he heads must be taken care of, his victory was brought about partly by Republicans, and his conduct must not be partisan, but used in the interest of all.

Yesterday was probably the longest day that Anton J. Cermak ever lived. He had only two hours sleep the night

Hail Victory of Cermak as City Comeback

The significance of the Cermak victory extends to every vital endeavor in Chicago, business and civic leaders declared last night. Its import will become a matter of history, they declared, marking the turning point toward good government and, just as surely, improved economic conditions.

Their comment follows:

Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce—Chicago has redeemed itself. We've had enough of Nero fiddling while Rome burned. We have told the world that we are prepared to regain our business level and restore our good name.

Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railway—I feel that the change in personalities will be greeted all over the country Conditions must benefit from it.

Acclaimed by Rosenwald.

Julius Rosenwald [in a telegram to Mr. Cermak]—Dear Mr. Mayor: Reports indicate your unquestioned right to that title. I congratulate Chicago and want you to know that no one is more gratified than I. When I regain my health my services are at your command to help you to redeem the good name of the city.

Silas H. Strawn—Every decent citizen should hail this victory. We can now go about our business with confidence in our mayor. And it is time we had a mayor; we haven't had one for four years.

E. J. Buffington—This election presents the outlook for an improvement in Chicago's general condition.

Joseph E. Otis—This gives Mr. Cermak the opportunity of his lifetime. If he can build up good government in Chicago he will undoubtedly become a world figure.

Sees Improvement for City.

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission—The election of Mr. Cermak takes Chicago off the blacklist. My particular interest is in the police department, and with Cermak in the executive office we all hope that the reorganization of the fundamental department which is fighting crime will be along the lines suggested by the citizens' police committee.

Dean Shailer Mathews, University of Chicago divinity school—I believe that this is the greatest opportunity that ever came to the city. Mr. Cermak has the chance to carry out his promise and appoint a fine cabinet.

George W. Dixon, business leader and director of the World's Fair—This election should give impetus to the business revival. We can now go forward with strength in our duty of creating the 1933 exposition.

Red Letter Day, He Says.

Philip R. Clarke, president of the Central Trust company—This is one of the red letter days in Chicago's history. Its effect will be political, economic and spiritual.

Dr. M. L. Harris, past president, American Medical association — This election means the regeneration of Chicago.

Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Sinai congregation—Chicago ought to set aside a day of thanksgiving for having been redeemed from the plague of Thompsonism. The city should also set aside a day of humiliation for having tolerated the blight of Thompsonism for so long. It now becomes the duty of every citizen to support Mr. Cermak in redeeming Chicago's name in the eyes of the world.

James L. Donnelly, executive vice president Illinois Manufacturers' association—I feel sure that Mr. Cermak will render a businesslike administration beneficial both to Chicago and to Illinois.

Former Gov. Edward F. Dunne sent the following telegram to Mr. Cermak early last evening:

"Hearty congratulations. We have shouldered upon you grave responsibilities. Through defective laws and bad administration Chicago realty owners are approaching bankruptcy. God prosper you and your efforts to relieve them."

WORST DEFEAT IN CITY HISTORY FOR THOMPSON

Election Winners

City Clerk—Peter J. Brady (Dem.).

Municipal Judge—Edward B. Casey (Rep.).

BY PARKE BROWN.

Anton J. Cermak was elected mayor of Chicago yesterday by a majority estimated unofficially as 191,916. William Hale Thompson, seeking a fourth term, was the worst beaten candidate in the history of the municipality.

The repudiation of Thompson was so decisive, so complete, that almost before the city itself began to rejoice, before the leaders in the commercial, industrial, and civic life of the community had expressed their jubilation, messages were coming in from all parts of the country and from foreign capitals saying that Chicago had redeemed itself.

Carries Only Five Wards.

Such congratulations were based not only on the vote of the city as a whole, but upon the fact that throughout the residential wards Thompson was trounced thoroughly, and that he carried only five wards out of the fifty in the city—the three in the Black Belt and two others where gangster influence is strong, the "Bloody 20th" and the 28th, another west side bailiwick.

One other phase of the results emphasized the extent of the terrific rebuke to Thompson. Cermak headed the Democratic ticket and won by 191,916. The second place on the ballot was that of city treasurer. Here the Republican, James A. Kearns, a Deneen man never identified with Thompsonism, defeated Ald. Edward J. Kaindl, the Democratic nominee.

Mayor's Friend Beaten.

The third place on the ballot was that of city clerk. In this contest the Democrat, Peter J. Brady, defeated the incumbent, Patrick Sheridan Smith, who had identified himself closely with Thompson.

Still another angle of this analysis of the finish of the Thompson blight was the fact that Edward B. Casey, Republican, defeated A. M. Smietanka, Democrat, for a vacancy on the municipal bench. Observers said the voters had chosen here between the two names. Yet one of the most persistent attacks of Thompson was directed at Cermak's name.

Jubilee in Loop District.

Mardi Gras was brought to the loop by the outcome. Ticker tape, telephone directories torn into strips, and even firecrackers dropped from the windows. Flares burned red. Music blared wherever instruments could be obtained and, where they couldn't be found, cowbells, tin pans, and any old thing provided noise. It was a celebration such as Chicago has not seen since the armistice.

Mayor's Decline Shown.

term has been decisive. The total votes of the competitors, according to the City News bureau, were: Cermak, 667,529; Thompson, 475,613. In 1927 Thompson polled 515,716, or 38,800 more than he did yesterday. And his drop in popularity was even more pronounced than those figures indicate, for yesterday there were 143,401 more votes cast than there were in 1927.

There also was comment about the comparison of Cermak's strength with those of other headliners. It was particularly remarked that he beat the mark set by James Hamilton Lewis when he was elected United States senator last fall. Lewis receiver 650,986 votes in Chicago and Cermak beat that by 16,543.

A Victory in Council.

So sweeping was the Cermak victory that it was considered a deciding factor in most of the twenty-one aldermanic runoffs. Sixteen candidates who were openly for Thompson were defeated, and only one who admitted his label, John F. Healy, a former Democrat in the 6th ward, came out victorious. The result of the aldermanic contests assured the mayor elect of a city council friendly by a large majority.

That there was a heavy outpouring of the independent vote in this avalanche against Thompson and his associates was seen not only in the scratching on the main ballot but also in the size of the vote.

Total Vote, 1,143,142.

The total vote cast was 1,143,142. The city's record, established in the presidential and state election of 1928, is 1,290,965. There were approximately 81 out of every 100 registered voters at the polls yesterday despite the fact that the registration lists, preserved now for the first time on a four year basis, are believed to include in their total of 1,412,135 some 200,000 names of persons no longer qualified to vote —"dead names" the politicians call them.

Beautiful weather, with the sun shining and the mercury climbing to reach the mark of 60, accounted to a large extent for this flood of voters, but the outpouring also was thought to prove that the city was wrought up over this election to a pitch far beyond the normal.

Politicians as well as neutral political observers say that 1931 will go down in history as having seen the two "dirtiest" campaigns in the life of the city. First there was the campaign for the primary of Feb. 24, in which Thompson assailed his opponents, Judge Lyle, particularly, with unprintable abuse. Then came the campaign now terminated, in which he attacked every one who opposed him, particularly THE TRIBUNE. His fight against Cermak was one of appeals to racial, religious and class prejudices.

G .O. P. Leaders Revolt.

More than a little of the reason for his defeat was found in the refusal of Republican leaders who opposed him in the primary to come into his camp. Except for two ward committeemen who failed by wide margins to carry their wards for him, the Republicans who backed Judge Lyle and Arthur F. Albert held aloof from him in this second battle.

These included County Chairman Snow, George F. Harding, Thompson's lifelong friend; Edward J. Brundage, former Senator Deneen, Charles V. Barrett, Roy O. West, national committeeman; Dr. John Dill Robertson, a cabinet member under former administration, and more than a score of ward committeemen who, like their chiefs, felt that the Thompson record and the Thompson methods called for rebuke.

All of these men or their chiefs had been abused during the primary or in the campaign now closed. No sooner did Barrett start in the primary than Thompson called him "Jesse James." Judge Lyle was branded "the nutty judge." Albert was portrayed as a fat boy on a burro. And Cermak was branded as a "crook," a "thief" and a "bohunk."

Ignored by Cermak.

Such stories as Thompson's statement that he had received reliable information that Cermak had been indicted for income tax evasion are believed to hurt him materially. He spread that allegation two weeks ago. Cermak ignored it as he had other similar statements. Day after day passed and there was no verification of Thompson's "information." Instead there were official denials. This, it is said, cast a doubt on all the rest of his charges.

One other factor in the contest attracted comment when the returns came in. Thompson had the support of a self-christened "better government" organization" headed by a lawyer, Edward T. Lee. He also had the support of an ex-minister who now makes a business of "reforming." The analysts said such lineups did not harmonize with the support of City Sealer Serritella, Capone lieutenant; City Collector Eller and others of that stripe, and that these efforts were nullified before the polls opened.

The analysts also found interest in dissecting the differences between Thompson's vote this year and his vote four years ago. In 1927 he received 51.58 per cent of the total vote cast. This year he dropped to 41.61, Cermak receiving the balance, or 58.39 per cent.

Thompson's big losses were on the north and west sides. In 1927 he received 51 per cent of the north side vote, but his total of 81,561 in that section yesterday represented only 40 per cent of its voting strength. Four years ago he polled better than half of the west side vote, but yesterday he received only 38.29 per cent, or 161,824 votes.

He held his own—or more nearly held his own—on the south side, in some places such as the black belt. South of the river in 1927 he received almost 53 per cent of all ballots cast, but yesterday, even with his Negro supporters still with him, he dropped to 45.55 per cent, which spelled 212,228 votes.

Thompson received only 179,371 more votes in the election than he did in the primary. His biggest gain in this respect was on the south side where he added 79,781 to his nomination figure. On the west side he gained 65,265 and on the north side 34,365.

Woman Rises from Sickbed to Cast Vote for Cermak

The voting spirit which elected Anton J. Cermak mayor was exemplified yesterday by Mrs. Katherine Toman, 4626 North Crawford avenue, who rose from her sickbed for the first time in a month expressly to cast her ballot for the Democratic nominee. She is a sister-in-law of Ald. John Toman of the 22d ward. Despite the advice of physicians yesterday Mrs. Toman insisted on arising. "I must vote for Cermak," she asserted.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

SOUTH SIDE.

FIRST—Cermak got a plurality of 5,947 in this, the richest ward in the world, embracing the loop. Ald. Michael [Hinky Dink] Kenna, boss of the ward for a generation, went to the mat with the city hall forces led by Daniel A. Serritella, city sealer and lieutenant of Capone. Four years ago the "Hink" carried the ward for Dever by 7,145. Cermak got 10,025 votes, as compared with 11,076 for Dever in 1927. Thompson got 4,078, where in 1927 he had 3,931. Cermak rolled up more votes than Al Smith did for president, the ward casting 8,910 for Smith.

SECOND—Thompson, as usual, carried this ward, a Negro stronghold. He had a plurality of 13,294 over Cermak. Four years ago Thompson's plurality over Dever was 22,378. The vote then stood: Dever, 1,791; Thompson, 24,169. Yesterday it was: Cermak, 2,533; Thompson, 16,877. The city hall forces were led by Ald. L. B. Anderson, the mayor's floor leader. All through his career Thompson has played the colored vote as one of his prime political assets. Back in 1900 when he was elected alderman of the old second ward he won over Charles F. Gunther through the colored voters in the south end. And in 1915 it was the colored belt that gave him the nomination for mayor over Judge Harry Olson, the Deneen pick.

THIRD—In this ancient Thompson colored stronghold Mayor Thompson beat Cermak by 15,954. Four years ago the ward gave Thompson a plurality of 24,231 over Dever. Congressman Oscar De Priest, colored, led the hall forces. As usual, the hall made a terrific drive on this section. In the February primaries Thompson beat Lyle 6 to 1, getting 14,900 to Lyle's 2,400. Four years ago the vote stood, Dever, 3,484; Thompson, 27,715. Yesterday it was: Cermak, 4,896; Thompson, 20,760.

FOURTH—Thompson had a plurality of 10,034 in this old Republican stronghold, which includes a large colored vote. Four years ago Thompson's plurality over Dever was 13,259. It is the home of George F. Harding, former county treasurer and ex-controller in Thompson's cabinet (1919-1923). Harding, one of the mayor's closest friends for years, broke with Thompson and supported Judge John Lyle in the primaries. Thompson carried the primaries by 8,300 over Lyle, more than two to one. Charles Krutckoff, former assessor, and a Harding follower, is the Republican committeeman, while Joseph P. Geary, Democratic committeeman, led the Cermak battle. Four years ago the vote stood: Dever, 6,848; Thompson, 20,107. Yesterday it was: Cermak, 9,370; Thompson, 19,404. In 1927 the three wards, Second, Third and Fourth, together, furnished a plurality of 59,868 for Thompson, who won the election by 83,000. Yesterday the three wards gave Thompson a combined plurality of 39,282, a drop of 20,000.

FIFTH—This Hyde Park ward gave Cermak a plurality of 988. Four years ago it gave Dever a margin of 2,900. It is the home of Roy O. West, Republican national committeeman, and of Michael L. Igoe, Democratic national committeeman and minority leader in the house at Springfield. The Republican ward committeeman is John L. East, a Harding man, who managed the campaign for Lyle, who carried the ward in the primaries.

SIXTH—Cermak carried this Republican residential ward by 3,391. Dever in 1927 won it by 1,286. It is the home of B. W. Snow, Republican county chairman, who supported Lyle in the primaries. James M. Whalen, sanitary trustee, ran the Cermak battle. Four years ago Dever got 12,220, Thompson 10,834. Yesterday Cermak had 14,243, Thompson 10,852. Ald. Guy Guernsey, Republican anti-Thompsonite, was beaten by John F. Healy.

Lyle carried the ward by 4,500. James W. Ryan, Democratic committeeman, and Ross A. Woodhull, sanitary trustee, led the Cermak forces.

EIGHTH—This south shore ward went to Cermak by 6,605. Thompson four years ago carried it by 30 votes. It is the home of Sheriff William D. Meyering and James J. Sullivan, who led the Cermak forces. The city hall relied on A. C. Metzger, ex-county commissioner, Thompson committeeman, who was running for alderman, and lost by 1,228 to David L. Sutton, the Meyering pick. The vote stood Cermak, 21,260; Thompson, 14,655. Four years ago it was Dever, 13,226; Thompson, 13,256. In the primaries Lyle carried it by 2,300.

Brown, of the board of local improvements, and the Cermak men by William W. Powers. In 1927 Dever got 4,547 and Thompson 7,913. Yesterday it was Cermak, 8,601; Thompson, 5,872.

In the primaries Thompson carried it 5 to 1 over Lyle.

Richard Frolich, committeeman, headed the organization. The hall relied on Ernest Withall, committeeman and business manager of the board of education. WEST SIDE.

TWENTIETH—The "bloody 20th" went to Thompson by 1,024. He got it in 1927 by 5,622. Morris Eller, city collector, led the city hall fight. The Democratic leader was Barth Collins, old time companion of the late Dennis J. Egan, who was Municipal court bailiff. This ward is the jungle of Chicago politics. It's one of the smallest, only 33,791 population.

VOTE TO RETAIN CITY GAS STATION IN LINCOLN, NEB.

Lincoln, Neb., April 7.—[Special.]—Lincoln today, at its municipal primary election, voted for retention of its municipal gasoline selling station. The vote against repeal of the charter amendment permitting the station was more than two to one.

The municipal station was started originally largely through the efforts of Gov. Charles W. Bryan when he was a member of the city council six years ago. By popular vote the city amended the charter authorizing the municipal government continuously to operate the municipal station. The referendum of today was on the question of continuing or repealing the charter amendment.

The independent gasoline dealers, supported by many business interests, led the fight for repeal of the amendment. Independent station owners declared the municipal station was in unfair competition, inasmuch as it was both tax free and rent free. Instead on municipally owned property, and that by selling without profit it deprived dealers of a fair margin of profit. It was further claimed Lincoln is the only city in the United States that tolerates a municipal station.

Argument in favor of retaining the charter amendment was that it broke down what was declared to be excessive prices for gasoline that existed before the municipal station was established, and that Lincoln users at present enjoy the lowest price for gasoline of any town or city in the state.

BARTLETT WINS FIERCE BATTLE IN EVANSTON

Willis McFeely, former president of the Oak Park village board, was again elected to that office yesterday. His vote was 7,981, a plurality of 2,031 over his nearest opponent, Louis L. Jones. The third candidate, Conrad J. Kalbfell, received 4,751 votes.

Jones had the support of the present holder of the president's office, Charles H. Crysler, who charged McFeely with waste and inefficiency during his former administrations. Kalbfell was an independent who managed the Crysler campaign four years ago.

Three trustees also were elected in Oak Park. They are Mrs. Dorothy Kerr, C. P. Dungan Jr., and William C. Schmidt, all regarded as being aligned politically with McFeely.

A proposition to legalize the playing of miniature golf on Sunday in Oak Park was carried by a vote of 9,366 to 4,113.

Bartlett Evanston Winner.

Complete returns from Evanston showed the reelection of Charles H. Bartlett as mayor. His vote was 12,-942 to 11,321 for John F. Hahn, former city clerk. The contest was one of the hardest fought in the history of the suburb and 400 automobiles were used by the partisans of the candidates in taking voters to the polls.

Mayor Bartlett has already served three consecutive terms of two years each.

Henry D. Penfield won the city treasurer race in Evanston and Max D. Borchardt was elected justice of the peace. Edward W. Bell, the incumbent, was unopposed for city clerk.

Complete returns also showed that the following were elected aldermen in Evanston: Clinton Merrick [2d], Robert E. James [4th], E. B. Jourdain Jr. [8th], and Edward L. Kappelman [7th]. Jourdain is a Negro.

In the newly created 8th ward John La Bahn was the successful aspirant for the one year term and Albert Smith for the full two year term. Smith's margin over Albert Hobbs was only twenty-six votes. The 7th ward race was closer, Kappelman getting 1,340 to 1535 for George Paddock.

Novotny Wins in Berwyn.

In Berwyn, Frank Novotny, Democrat, won over his Republican opponent, Emil B. Hurt, for mayor. George W. Mlady elected city clerk and John Hyman city treasurer. Aldermanic candidates who were victorious were J. Rife Bauder, Alfred Musel, Frank Baumel, Joseph Cervinka, Victor Kozelka, Charles Trder and Emil Vacin. Novotny polled 10,143 votes to Hurt's 7,849.

The Republican candidates in Cicero were elected over Democratic opponents with pluralities of more than 7,000. John P. Severak won for justice of the peace; Fred Loyda for village trustee, and William N. Jannaga and Frank Mudra for directors of the library board.

River Forest Names Baumrucker.

River Forest elected Charles F. Baumrucker, president of the village board; Ewald A. Belgemann, John L. Brink, Roy D. O'Brien and Roy W. Truxal trustees. Charles Renfer was selected justice of the peace. All the successful candidates were members of the Peoples party.

William B. Moulton was elected president of the Winnetka board and James E. Russell gained the same office in Glencoe. Neither they nor candidates for other offices in these communities had any opposition.

Four Generations Vote in Election at Rockford

Rockford, Ill., April 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Jeanetta E. Willoughby, 93, took three generations of descendants to the polls with her today and all voted in the municipal election. They were her son, daughter, granddaughter, and great-granddaughter.

Women Hail 'The Clean Sweep' for City in Victory of Cermak

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Shortly after the polls closed last night the housekeeper voters put away their brooms and got out their horns for a loud, long blast. Not to celebrate their own part—and a huge one it was—in the election of Anton J. Cermak, jubilant as that achievement made them. But more than that, to mark the new era they felt was before their city in its critical centennial phase just opening.

All day long they had been trooping by the thousands into their polling places in their home precincts, concentrating on the small crosses they placed on the ballots. All day long, in ward after ward, they had worked like the veriest old campaigners, driving cars, telephoning their friends and neighbors, urging and pleading with the recalcitrant to do their duty by their franchise and their city. It was neither feminine luck nor political accident that they carried the day.

Attend Buffet Dinner.

Last night, tired but triumphant, they straggled into the red room of the La Salle hotel to partake of the bounteous buffet dinner provided for the genuine staff workers of the independent headquarters, or wended a bit wearily into the Ashland block, where the regular Democratic forces held forth during the hectic days of the campaign. Jubilation gleamed from every eye and the most fatigued electioneers revived in the expansive atmosphere of the two centers, over the sliced turkey in the La Salle or before the bulletin board in the Ashland block.

"It's hard not to talk in superlatives about the campaign," sighed Mrs. George Bass, whose untiring efforts in behalf of the Democratic nominee ranged from radio broadcasts day after day to following the banners and brooms that marked the women's parade last Saturday afternoon. She is one of the genuine pioneers among women in politics.

Sees Rescue of City.

"We have elected in Mr. Cermak an honest man, an industrious man, a fearless man," she summed up her opinion of the victory. "But, more than that. We women feel that we have rescued Chicago from a tremendous calamity that would have befallen it for the next four years had the verdict been the other way."

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, Mrs. Bass' successor in the post of Democratic national committeewoman and one of the most prominent figures in the tireless campaign to get out the female vote, regarded the bulletin board in the Ashland block with shining eyes as she said for herself and her co-workers:

"This is a glorious victory, not only for Chicago, but for women's influence in politics. From reports from all over the city on the number of women among the Cermak voters at the polls I am confident that hereafter holders of and aspirants to elective offices in Chicago will be more careful than ever before to make records meeting the standard of women citizens.

CERMAK ORDERS 4 CAPTAINS BACK TO FORMER POSTS

Mayor Elect Anton J. Cermak last night, in one of his first administrative commitments announced a command to Acting Police Commissioner John Alcock to restore to their original commands four police captains whom he had shifted last Saturday. The utterance followed Cermak's talk over the radio thanking the people for their support.

"Send Alcock to me," ordered Cermak. "I shall order him to return the transferred captains to their commands. And I want Capt. Moran to go ahead with those raids."

The last remark was unexplained, but it was taken to mean that Moran had been suppressed in contemplated raids by the outgoing city hall administration.

Up from Mine Boy

Mayor Elect Cermak, as a writer on the staff of THE TRIBUNE said during the campaign, "is a product of the peasant life of old Bohemia transplanted to the American sunshine."

He was born in a mining village near Prague, the capital of the present Czecho-Slovakia, 53 years ago. And almost all of those years have been spent in the upward climb that started when he was a boy in the old mining town of Braidwood, Ill., and brought him to Chicago and business success. He has had 28 years of almost unbroken political success.

He went to the legislature, the city council, back to the legislature, all through choice. He fought the rising tide of local option that later became prohibition.

He served a term as bailiff of the Municipal courts. Then in 1922 he was elected president of the county board. He was reëlected in 1926 and 1930 and his record in that office was praised by his supporters in the mayoralty campaign.

In 1928 Mayor Elect Cermak lost his wife. Their family then consisted of three girls. All are married now. He resides at 2348 South Millard avenue.

KEARNS, BRADY AND CASEY WIN THEIR BATTLES

Two Republicans Survive in City Races.

Two Republicans—James A. Kearns, candidate for city treasurer, and Edward B. Casey, running for the Burke vacancy on the Municipal bench—have weathered the Cermak landslide, keeping ahead of the Democrats despite the defeat of Thompson, head of their ticket.

Kearns, former alderman and long time clerk of the Municipal court, defeated Ald. Edward J. Kaindl [34th] Casey defeated A. M. Smietanka, Democrat. The race for city clerk showed just as decisive a victory for a Democrat, Peter J. Brady, who ran for his first office against Patrick Sheridan Smith, the Thompson incumbent, and an ardent city hall supporter.

The complete returns show:

CITY TREASURER.

Kearns	881,121

CITY CLERK.

Brady	579,767
Smith	512,161

MUNICIPAL JUDGE.

Casey	558,841
Smietanka	539,813

The winning Republicans were not optimistic until late in the evening. First returns seemed to indicate they had been beaten along with Thompson, Kaindl and Smietanka apparently sweeping along on the crest of the Cermak wave. The 1,500 precinct mark was the turning point, and from then on both climbed ahead.

Mr. Brady is a southwest side undertaker, is 49 years old, and lives at 7847 South Carpenter street. He has seen much service in the Illinois National Guard, holding a major's commission after duty on the Mexican border in 1916 and during the world war.

Kearns Deneen Follower.

Mr. Kearns is an old-timer in Republican politics, having been an alderman four terms before he was elected clerk of the Municipal court in 1918. He was defeated last November. He is of the Deneen wing of his party.

Mr. Casey is 50 years old and lives at 6324 Wayne avenue. He was an assistant corporation counsel in the passing administration.

OUSTED GOVERNOR IS DEFEATED FOR MAYOR OF OKLAHOMA CITY

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 7.—(AP)—J. C. Walton, who was impeached as governor of Oklahoma in 1923, lost his bid for the mayoralty of this capital city today on the face of an unofficial plurality of 9,068 votes given his opponent, C. J. Blinn, attorney. It was a nonpartisan campaign. Both men are Democrats.

The unofficial returns gave Blinn 25,375 votes to Walton's 16,307. The total vote cast in the mayor's race was 41,682, the largest ever cast in a city election here.

Although "Rarin'" Jack was elected governor in 1922, he lost the capital by around 2,000 votes. He was impeached during a Ku Klux Klan fight in 1923 and in 1924, running on a platform of vindication against United States Senator W. B. Pine, was defeated.

GARY DEMOCRATS SEND GREETINGS TO NEW MAYOR

A resolution congratulating Chicago and Cermak on the election was wired to the Democratic victor last night by the Gary Democratic club of Gary, Ind. It follows:

"The electorate of the city of Chicago have seen fit to elevate to the highest position of honor and trust Anton J. Cermak, a tried and true Democratic public servant. The members of the Gary Democratic club extend to the citizens of Chicago our congratulations for their splendid example of political sagacity and reform, and to Mayor Cermak we send our best wishes for his inevitably successful administration. May the great Democratic achievements be the harbinger for a sweeping Democratic victory in 1932."

The telegram was signed by John Underwood, club president; State Representatives Fred Egan and John Cory, Earl Weaver, club secretary, and John L. Jasinski, committee member.

CERMAK READY TO TAKE REINS BY END OF WEEK

before and was up at 5:30 on election morning. After breakfast he went to his home polling place at 23d street and Millard avenue to vote, accompanied by daughters, sons-in-law and grandchildren.

He visited headquarters during the morning and spoke at a luncheon at the Hotel La Salle at noon. He went to bed in the middle of the afternoon in the Sherman, in a room next to headquarters, and slept there until well after 5 o'clock.

He probably would have slept on during the height of the excitement over his victory had not Judge Harry Fisher gone into the room and awakened him with the news that he was winning two to one.

"Where does that come from?" Mr. Cermak asked.

"From our headquarters," said the judge.

"Better wait awhile," said the cautious Cermak.

No Hurry to Jubilate.

Four years before, in the same hotel, he sat in a room with George Brennan and saw the early returns pile up a big lead for Dever, only to switch into a defeat.

He was in no hurry, therefore, to receive congratulations, but arose and went downstairs to eat his second breakfast of the day. Then he returned to the ninth floor to run into a battery of cameras and radio announcers clutching at his elbow and thrusting microphones in front or him. He was not ready to talk yet, and after a vain effort to evade cameras he finally consented to pose.

He had to battle his way through crowds in the hall and learned that the camera men never can get enough pictures. His next move was into headquarters, where he was met by a deafening cheer. He was told it was a landslide, but still was not ready to accept it. He had never permitted himself to become confident and it was hard to get over the thought of "if," even now.

"Nothing to it," said the smiling Clayton Smith, chairman of the managing committee of the party.

Judge John H. Lyle was waiting there to congratulate him for ridding the city of Thompsonism. Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the department of political science at the University of Chicago was also in the room, and so was Judge Fisher, who has served in an advisory capacity during the campaign. Boetius Sullivan sat quietly in a corner chewing a cigar.

Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb came in and Mrs. Ritchey V. Graham. Mr. Cermak's daughter, with his beloved granddaughter, Vivian Graham. Vivian was all primed for a radio speech, which she made at once, telling how thrilled she was as this the victory of "the occasion, the victory of "the greatest greatest granddad in the world."

"Where are you going for a vacation, Tony?" asked one of his friends.

"To—Berwyn," said the mayor-elect.

"Tell us about your cabinet," said a newspaper man.

"No questions answered tonight," said Mr. Cermak.

"There goes the next chief of police," said a politician.

It is rumored that Col. A. A. Sprague is to be offered a place in his new cabinet.

After the returns showed that he would win by at least 150,000, and not before, Mr. Cermak made his public statement.

"In moments such as these one's emotions are so stirred that he fears giving expression to his thoughts," Mr. Cermak said. "Yet there is the keen desire to speak out—a desire to say thanks in such manner that the hundreds of thousands who have shown their faith in me could hear and feel that it comes from the soul. I am, however, not carried away by the joyousness of the moment.

"I rather feel the overwhelming sense of responsibility. It was not my personal popularity that resulted in this unprecedented victory. It was an expression of faith in my ability to right the wrongs from which we have been suffering. And that expression of faith is the more welcome in the light of the unforgettable and unforgivable campaign of slander that my opponent made against me.

A New Day for Chicago.

"This truly begins a new day for Chicago—a day of progress and creativeness that will require the cooperation of all the citizens of this great community. Employer and employed have found common ground upon which to stand in their efforts to serve their city.

"Insofar as that effort manifested itself in my election, I thank them heartily, but I earnestly urge that they continue giving me their cooperation during the trying days before us to make our common home really great. The business men who have played such an important part in my campaign I desire to assure of my lasting gratitude, coupled with the request that they continue their interest in the civic affairs of this metropolis, so as not to let it ever again fall into the hands of those that would exploit us for their own profit.

Grateful to Many Groups.

"The various national and religious groups to whom I am deeply indebted I urge to forget at once the appeals that have been made to their prejudices and as Americans let us all strive to work out Chicago's great destiny.

"I am particularly thankful to the great newspapers of this community for the whole hearted support they have given me and for their generous expressions of confidence. My hope is that my administration will deserve their continued support.

"Of them as of all the men and women truly interested in our city I have but this to ask—a charitable attitude toward my honest mistakes, unrestrained criticism of my failures, and at least moderate encouragement of my efforts to serve the city well. I want them to join with me in the effort to restore Chicago's standing before the world, but not without focusing the light of publicity upon all the dark spots. Neither I nor any responsible official under me should be able to hide in the shadows of ignorance.

"This is a great and growing city. Our population exceeds three and a half millions. We shall strive to minimize our weaknesses and develop our strength. It may require patience, but I promise to do my utmost not to try that patience too long.

"The promises that I have made during the campaign are now sacred and real obligations. All the experience and all the force at my command will be utilized in an effort to fulfill each of them.

"Within a few days will be announced the names of the men, who, I hope, will enter my cabinet and become my advisers and co-workers. They, too, shall be guided solely by the promises that I made and the welfare of the city. I appreciate the fact that idealism is often checked by the forces of practical life, but that should be no hindrance to the striving toward the ideal.

Message to the Democrats.

"To the members of my own party who have been so generous in honoring me time after time, and particularly in this latest and greatest honor, I desire to say this:

"Our party now has tremendous power. Last November we elected most of the county officials. Now the city administration is placed in our hands, but not to be administered for partisan purposes. A tremendous number of Republicans joined in placing this responsibility upon us. Such power as we now wield when used in the interest of all will build confidence and greater prestige for us, but when used solely for selfish purposes will quickly bring destruction upon our heads.

"Join me, therefore, in the resolve that this power be so used as to insure lasting confidence in our party's ability and determination to hold the good will of the right thinking and law abiding members of our community.

"Live Up to Expectations."

"I want you to be particularly mindful of this fact, that we were placed in power not only through the operation of a great political organization. It is true that organization is the backbone of our strength, but primarily our victory is due to the men and women from all parties who joined our cause. They have a right to, and they do expect much of us. Let these expectations not be in vain.

"There was a time when we led the cities of America in endeavors toward social betterment. We should resume that rôle at once.

"To the fathers and mothers of the community I desire to say that I believe I sense their keenest hopes. Aside from making this city a safer and morally cleaner place to bring up their children, I shall put forth my best efforts to make the schools of Chicago in every respect the most efficient and the most modern in the world. Finally, on behalf of the city of Chicago, I want to express profound gratitude to the whole nation for their anxiety in our behalf and for their encouragements in our efforts to improve our position.

"We shall at once set ourselves to the task of preparing our house for those who shall visit us at the Century of Progress exhibition. I give assurance of a welcome that they will enjoy, and of memories of a great hospitable city to be carried back with them as a source of lasting inspiration.

"And to my personal friends, those who were close to and labored with me, all I can say is 'Thanks.'"

GLOOM SHROUDS THOMPSON AND CITY HALL CREW

Mayor Thompson awaited his defeat last night by hoping to the last in the gloom that pervaded the fifth floor of the city hall and which finally enveloped him and the hundreds who came to console.

He refused to concede defeat until all but a few hundred precincts were reported and the Cermak plurality was approaching 200,000.

At 7:15 o'clock he was more than 150,000 behind, but he deferred issuing a statement. "We are not ready yet," he said.

He joined his followers in cheers at this time when a report showed that 56 precincts out of 76 in the Fourth ward gave him 14,000 votes, against Cermak's 6,000.

The Scene Is Changed.

But it was a vastly different scene in Thompson's office last night from the spectacle of his primary celebration. No derisive songs were sung about Tony and his pushcart; no long distance telephone calls were received from national celebrities; no hot dogs and coffee were served. Ward leaders did not approach their chief with jocund tales of sensational deliveries and no talking pictures were made.

Early in the evening Thompson sat in Corporation Counsel Ettelson's office, surrounded by his followers and the curious who came to observe his last stand. Ettelson sat at his right, and on the left was Philip Friedlander, radio announcer and official jester, who read the bulletins.

But they were not talking much and their faces were long. "Sorry; too bad," one job holder would say to another, with a pat on the back.

At 7:15 o'clock Thompson retired into the smaller office of Assistant Corporation Counsel Leonard Ettelson, and guards separated the sheep from the goats at the entrance. Like a Roman emperor he was in seclusion with his praetorian guard, away from the surging mob, waiting in desperation while the populace was clamoring for his head with votes for Cermak.

Thompson sat immobile, with his arms resting on the desk and his eyes downcast. He chewed convulsively on a big cigar, and on the brief occasions when it was removed, his mouth became a drooling orifice. He presented a picture of weariness, and —except for an occasional smile that was scarcely genuine—of gloom. His old time joviality was gone, and he made few attempts at wise cracks.

Congratulations to Cermak.

He sent this telegram to the mayor elect:

"The people of Chicago have spoken. I cheerfully abide by their decision. I congratulate you on your victory."

After a statement had been distributed, Thompson went into his own office and posed for photographers.

A spell binder rounded up a chorus of shouters when the microphone was brought in for Thompson to broadcast. The chorus responded, and there was a great din for those on the air to hear.

Thompson then read his statement in a voice that was low and solemn, like a funeral lament.

"I will redouble my efforts for the completion of the waterways, to bring to Chicago a greater prosperity and work for the unemployed," he said. "To this end I have chartered the Mississippi river steamship Cape Girardeau and will leave on a tour of the Illinois, Mississippi, Ohio, and Tennessee rivers Thursday, April 9.

"I invite those Chicagoans who are interested to join with me on this trip I shall continue to uphold the teachings of George Washington and fight foreign entanglements."

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young. To do this you must watch your liver and bowels. There's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you 90 per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

WARD ELECTIONS DEFEAT FIVE CITY HALL ALDERMEN

Cermak Will Dominate the Council.

Mayor Elect Cermak will enter upon his administration with a strong working majority in the city council, which was assured to him yesterday by the voters in the twenty-one wards where there were aldermanic runoff elections.

Five sitting aldermen supported by the Thompson machine were swept out of office by the Cermak avalanche and only one of the 16 candidates wearing the Thompson label won in the final count. The Democrats won 11 seats while 7 went to candidates listed as Republican independents. Seven sitting aldermen were defeated.

Nine Thompsonites Remain.

As a result of the February primary, when 29 aldermen secured their seats, and yesterday's 21 runoffs, the new council will be composed of 30 nominal Democrats pledged to Cermak, 11 listed as independent Republicans, and a remnant of 9 erstwhile Thompson Republicans.

James F. Kovarik, Democratic candidate in the 15th ward, won the most decisive victory of the day, defeating his Thompson opponent, George O. Lehr, by 6,555 votes. Former Alderman Bryan Hartnett, another Democrat, piled up a huge majority of 6,208 votes over William E. Staschke, a Thompson machine candidate.

Four Contests Are Close.

Four contests were settled by majorities of less than 1,000 votes, and in each anti-Thompson candidates were winners. Election contests are probable in these wards. John F. Healy won in the 6th by 372 votes; George W. Robinson in the 36th by 215; Wiley W. Mills in the 37th by 394, and James R. Quinn in the 50th by 147.

ELECT ADVOCATES OF CITY RULE FOR SHERIDAN ROAD

Thomas F. Myers Jr. and Patrick C. Winn were elected north shore park commissioners yesterday on a platform requiring that Sheridan road in Rogers Park be turned over to the city. Heretofore it has been administered by the park district. The winning candidates propose to establish small parks and improve the beaches with the money that has gone for the road's upkeep.

In Oak Park voters approved a $50,000 bond issue for a playground in the southeast section of the city. La Grange Park defeated a proposal to establish a playground between that community and La Grange.

In the Old Portage Park district William J. Hill and Fred W. Bockelman received pluralities over eight other candidates for commissioner. Frederick W. Turner and Herman Ordas were successful candidates in the Calumet park district. In Cicero Charles Baker, Joseph Kral, Joseph Lenka, Robert Zaremba, and Stanley Dutkiewicz were elected members of the park boards.

The Municipal Voters' league made recommendations on candidates in 19 of the 21 yards. Fifteen of those selected by the league as qualified were elected.

ONLY A FEW FIST FIGHTS MAR CALM OF ELECTION DAY

Quietest During His Term, Judge Jarecki Says.

The election yesterday was termed by County Judge Jarecki the most orderly since he took office in 1922. Only a few fist fights and other minor outbursts of feeling were reported at the polling places. A number of repeaters were arrested and other irregularities investigated.

Two hours after the polls closed a flurry of excitement was caused by the discovery that no returns had yet been made from the 2d and 3d wards, which are in the Negro district and heavily pro-Thompson. Ten squads of police headed by Cornelius J. Harrington, assistant attorney for the board of commissioners, were rushed into the district. It was discovered that the ballot boxes had been held up, presumably on orders of workers for Thompson, in case a close race seemed probable. When the size of the Cermak majority became apparent the returns were released.

Gun Toter Is Arrested.

Daniel Sleeney, 70 years old, 5420 South Halsted street, was locked up at the Stockyards station on a charge of carrying concealed weapons after he had produced a revolver in a polling place of the 35th precinct of the 14th ward at 5432 South Halsted street and chased out Miss Pauline Buwe, 837 West 54th street, a Cermak worker. Sleeney, who was said to be intoxicated announced loudly that he was a Thompson man.

Eddie Peckard, another Cermak worker, was stancing in front of a polling place at 1319 South Loomis street, talking to his precinct captain, Joseph E. Mandel, when five men in a sedan drove up and ordered him to get into the car. Peckard was driven to Roosevelt road and St. Louis avenue, where he was warned to stay out of his precinct and was then thrust from the car.

Election Staff Replaced.

Five judges and clerks in the 16th precinct of the 27th ward at 1328 West Lake street were replaced on orders of Judge Jarecki by a new staff from the election commissioners' office. The precinct has a large floating population and the commissioners' suspicions were aroused when no suspect notices were filed by the precinct officials.

LINGLE 'BOARD OF STRATEGY' GETS TO WORK

Special Staff Is Formed to Aid Prosecutor.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

CHAPTER V.

Lingle, up to the time of his murder and for several days thereafter, had a reputation as an honest and honorable citizen and as an ethical newspaper man.

Consequently his assassination was viewed as an attempt by the gangs to silence Lingle, to seal the gang secrets he possessed, to prevent exposure of the gangs by Lingle, and to intimidate a press growing ever more intolerant against hoodlum rule.

Within an hour after the murder, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, announced the posting of a $25,000 reward, to be paid by THE TRIBUNE for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer or slayers of Lingle.

Reprisal and Intimidation.

"The meaning of this murder is plain," said THE TRIBUNE editorially. "It was committed in reprisal and in attempt at intimidation. Mr. Lingle was a police reporter and an exceptionally well informed one. What made him valuable to his newspaper marked him as dangerous to the killers.

"There have been eleven gang murders in ten days. That has become the accepted course of crime in its natural stride, but to the list of all the other victims of assassination the name is added of a man whose business was to expose the work of the killers.

"THE TRIBUNE accepts this challenge. It is war. There will be casualties, but that is to be expected, it being war."

Other Rewards Are Posted.

The Chicago Evening Post, immediately after the announcement of THE TRIBUNE'S reward offer, posted a $5,000 reward on the same terms, and on the following day the Chicago Herald and Examiner announced a $25,000 reward. On June 13 the north shore branch of the Chicago Medical society added $500 to the reward offer, and other offers raised the total reward to $55,825.

All of the Chicago newspapers commented editorially on the Lingle murder, expressing determination that the deed must be avenged or it would stand a blight on all American journalism. In no way, during these first days, was there a hint in any of the newspapers that Lingle was anything but a martyr to his profession.

Throughout the nation the press was aroused.

Press Pledges Support.

Harry Chandler of Los Angeles, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, in a communication to THE TRIBUNE, viewed Lingle as a "first line soldier" in the war of newspapers against criminals.

"I know," said Mr. Chandler, "that I voice the sentiment of that great body of the nation's press in pledging its support and coöperation to THE TRIBUNE and associated Chicago newspapers and to the people of Chicago, not only in their efforts to capture and punish the slayers of Lingle, but permanently to end the conditions which made the atrocity possible."

The Tribune's Job.

THE TRIBUNE viewed the task of finding the killer of Lingle as THE TRIBUNE'S job. Two years back, when a Negro servant, Malachi Crowe, used a TRIBUNE want ad to lure a white girl into his employer's home, where he mistreated the girl, THE TRIBUNE assigned men to capture Crowe, and after many months of searching Crowe was caught by Moses Lamson, a TRIBUNE reporter. The rapist is now serving a life sentence in Joliet penitentiary.

Similar instances might be quoted, but in the murder of one of its reporters THE TRIBUNE found all the other crimes affecting it or its readers overshadowed.

Col. McCormick, as president of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association, called a meeting of the publishers, which was held in the afternoon after the funeral of Lingle, on June 12.

Offers Aid to County.

The publisher of THE TRIBUNE proposed to his contemporaries that THE TRIBUNE would pay the full expense of the investigation above what could be paid by the county government. Col. McCormick proposed to place the investigation in charge of two men, Charles F. Rathbun, as prosecutor, and Pat Roche, as investigator.

Several of the publishers openly approved the plan, and none voiced any objection. Thereupon Col. McCormick conferred with State's Attorney Swanson and the county prosecutor accepted the offer of aid.

Mr. Rathbun was appointed an assistant state's attorney. He was then 48 years old, and had an enviable record as a leading trial lawyer of Chicago.

He had been for years a member of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, regular counsel for THE TRIBUNE, and he had participated in many of the famous battles waged on behalf of THE TRIBUNE in its campaigns to establish the freedom of the press and to break down the rings of thieving politicians.

Mr. Rathbun had also been leading counsel in celebrated criminal cases, among which was the Hayes land fraud case in the federal courts and the nationally famous trial of the New York millionaire, W. E. D. Stokes. His defense of the aged Stokes, accused of defaming his young wife, is recognized as one of the most brilliant and masterly defenses in the history of the American bar, and resulted in the acquittal of Stokes.

Because of his reputation as a tireless and exhaustive legal investigator and a great trial lawyer, Mr. Rathbun had been offered a post on the staff of State's Attorney Swanson at the opening of Mr. Swanson's régime as prosecutor. At that time Mr. Rathbun felt that he could not accept Mr. Swanson's offer and he declined it.

A FAMOUS INVESTIGATOR

Pat Roche had become famous as a criminal investigator. Then only 38 years old, Mr. Roche had achieved a record as one of the outstanding detectives of his day, and his exploits had brought him recognition in all parts of the nation.

He was born in Ireland and came to America in 1909, when he was 17 years old. At first he obtained employment in a railway office, but he had no liking for it. He decided to strike out for Chicago and, coming here, he joined the city police department.

Roche Joins United States Bureau.

The young patrolman showed an unusual ability in investigative work. He seemed to have a "nose for crime," as a good newspaper man has a "nose for news," and he could pierce quickly through a criminal's alibi. He was swift to seize upon clews, to weigh their significance, and to match them into a pattern of proof.

His exceptional work brought him to the attention of the federal authorities, who induced him to join the special intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue, with headquarters in Chicago.

Here his activities centered mostly upon prosecuting frauds against the revenue department, and also upon exposing dishonest members of the enforcement forces of the government, particularly the prohibition department.

Digs Out the Evidence.

He was sent to other cities in which conspiracies against the government were developing. Many times he spent months on a case, in an undercover capacity, posing as a criminal, until he had gained evidence upon which the government prosecuted for bribery and other crimes.

In one case, in the New York district, Roche posed as a newcomer in the ranks of prohibition enforcement. He established himself in the confidence of criminals and crooked enforcement officers and then, in a period of a week, he received bribes aggregating $100,000. He delivered the cash to the department of justice, and gave evidence upon which the members of the bribe ring were sent to federal prisons.

Breaks Up Dope Ring.

One of the outstanding accomplishments of Roche in his government service was the breaking up of a dope ring in Chicago in the summer of 1925. Many dope peddlers, including the queen of them all, Kitty Gilhooley, were arrested and convicted, and then came the sensational disclosure that agents of the federal narcotic division had been bribed by the dope venders.

Col. Will Gray Beach, for four years the chief agent of the narcotic division, and three of his most trusted aids were indicted on graft charges. Two of these aids pleaded guilty to the charge and the third stood trial and was convicted. Col. Beach was acquitted, but he did not seek reinstatement to his old post.

In this assignment Roche was led into the dope dens of Chicago's Chinatown, and he pierced through oriental intrigues before he finally gained the evidence he was seeking.

Swanson Enlists Roche.

State's Attorney Swanson was elected upon a wave of public indignation in Chicago, and in his determination to carry out his campaign promise to redeem the city from gang rule and gang violence he besought the aid of Roche.

Roche considered the offer. There were no strings tied to it, and it seemed to him an unusual opportunity. So he accepted, and became the chief investigator for Cook county.

In this task Roche began the investigation of gang crimes. He exposed a gang of bombers, and sent many criminals to imprisonment. He soon was aware of a tremendous handicap to his work, and this was a lack of funds with which to pursue his inquiries.

Enters Hunt for Lingle.

Then came the murder of Lingle, and the proposal that Roche should direct the search for the slayer, a search which never should cease, and which should never be handicapped by lack of funds.

Roche entered into the case with enthusiasm, and although he never lost touch with his other work, and took every opportunity to harass the gangs, he devoted himself almost entirely to the solution of the murder of Lingle.

Many times during the course of this narrative it will be mentioned that "Roche received information" of one sort and another, and it should be explained that the sources of the wealth of information which came to Roche may not be divulged.

Sources of Information.

It was truly astonishing to Roche's associates to note the many avenues of valuable information to which the investigator had access. Criminals, reformed criminals, pool hall owners, politicians, sportsmen and a thousand other types of men, and women, too, would whisper in Roche's ear, or give him information over the telephone.

It was recognized that the facilities of THE TRIBUNE, its staff, its files and its contacts with the outside world, would be of value to the investigators. So that these resources might strengthen the inquiry the editors of THE TRIBUNE selected a reporter who was directed to serve as a liaison between THE TRIBUNE and the investigation staff. He was directed to deliver all information on the case coming to THE TRIBUNE to the investigators, and to give whatever other aid he might

Three Share Confidences.

This reporter, who had been at the scene of Lingle's murder, was relieved of all other duties, and he remained constantly in touch with the investigation. He came to enjoy the confidence of Rathbun and Roche, and these three, throughout the course of the inquiry, had no secrets from each other and shared in the endless conferences and expeditions along the way.

Which may explain why the reporter has become the historian of the Lingle case.

Rathbun determined at the outset that he would require the assistance of another lawyer, one who would be versed in the criminal law and who also would have an extended experience as a prosecutor.

McShane Joins the Staff.

He selected James E. McShane, who had been most active in the Criminal courts both as a prosecutor and counsel for defense. Mr. McShane was among the ablest prosecutors during the term of Maclay Hoyne as state's attorney.

The services of both Mr. Rathbun and Mr. McShane were tendered by THE TRIBUNE to State's Attorney Swanson without expense to the county.

Special offices for the investigating staff were leased by Mr. Rathbun in the Chicago Temple building at 77 West Washington street, where a large suite was taken so that the work of the inquiry might proceed without disturbing the other work of the state's attorney's office, and also that the investigators might work undisturbed.

STAFF IS CHOSEN

Roche selected from his regular staff of investigators and state's attorney's policemen the finest and cleverest men he could pick, and these were assigned to work on the Lingle case.

Among those who labored on the thousands of clews, and participated in the search which eventually led them to victory were Investigators Walter Wendt, Leonard Nevans, and George Williams, and Police Sergeants John Greer, Fred Joyner, Michael Casey, Louis Capparelli, David Levin, Julius Siegan, and Herbert Seyferlich.

Another whose ingenuity and foresight, coupled with his long years of experience as an investigator, proved of invaluable aid to the inquiry was Jacob Manasse. "Little Jake," who despite his 5 feet of height is as doughty and courageous as many a taller hero, has been for years associated with the Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin law firm.

Still another principal in the Lingle investigation, a man whose personality and genial wit endeared him to the others of the staff, was Samuel Lederer. He participated actively in many phases of the inquiry, and joined in many of the raids and captures.

Mr. Lederer is a business man, wealthy, the secretary and treasurer of Jac Lederer, Inc., manufacturer of store equipment. He has a penchant for detective work, and, more than that, an ability for it. Some years ago—and not so many, for he is only 54 years old—he became ill of overwork. He did not improve and cast about for a hobby, finding it in police work.

The Lederer home at that time was in Winnetka, and Chief of Police W. M. Peterson of that village had been one of Lederer's best friends. So he went out with the Winnetka police on many sorts of police duties. Later he came to know Pat Roche and became his fast friend also, accompanying him on sleuthing missions. Never did he ask anything more than the privilege of helping.

An Accomplished Linguist.

Mr. Lederer speaks eight languages, mimics successfully even the brogue of the Irish, and all of this increased his usefulness. He is an authority on firearms, and his private collection of firearms is rated among the most complete in the city. He is an ardent huntsman of game as well as of criminals.

While the work of organizing the inquiry was going on the hue and cry raised immediately after the murder of Lingle was reaching new heights. The city council committee on police met to consider charges that the police department had become demoralized and was powerless to cope with the rising tide of lawlessness.

A demand began to spread for the removal of Commissioner Russell and Deputy Commissioner of Detectives Stege, whose friendship with Lingle was cited as hindering the proper prosecution of an investigation.

Russell and Stege Retire.

Mayor Thompson's political advisers were conferring to consider the removal of Russell, and finally, on June 16, Russell issued an order removing Stege from command of the detective bureau and then tendered his own resignation as commissioner.

Along with his resignation Russell issued a statement saying he and Stege were stepping aside so they would not impede the Lingle investigation. He added that he was not ashamed of his record in office, but that he was proud of it, and that he was leaving the police department infinitely better off than he had found it.

John H. Alcock, first deputy commissioner of police, automatically became acting commissioner, and he continued to hold that title by authority of Thompson. He pledged himself to join with the newspapers, business leaders, religious interests and private citizens to launch a united fight against the gangs.

An undercurrent of influence was being directed toward summoning all the witnesses to the murder of Lingle before the grand jury, and Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle of the Criminal court in general terms urged the grand jurors to investigate the murder. But State's Attorney Swanson took the position that no witnesses should be presented to the grand jury until evidence was at hand upon which to predicate an indictment charging some one with the murder.

Swanson Calls Conference.

In hope of coördinating the efforts of all law enforcement agencies to which evidence in the Lingle case might be directed, Mr. Swanson called a conference at which the various agencies were represented. It was held on June 19 in Mr. Swanson's office.

Those present were the state's attorney, Prosecutors Rathbun and McShane, Investigator Roche, Coroner Bundesen, Commissioner Alcock, and John E. Norton, the new chief of detectives.

State's Attorney Swanson announced that henceforth all activities in the Lingle investigation would be directed by Rathbun and Roche from their new loop headquarters, and he asked the other officials to coöperate in the presentation of all evidence obtained to that office.

Strict Secrecy Is Urged.

The state's attorney also urged that the strictest secrecy be maintained to prevent clews in the Lingle case from being broadcast. He stated that the greatest single deterrent to successful crime investigations was the publicity given to information which was valuable only so long as it was withheld from the criminals involved.

On that day, and every day thereafter until the objective was gained, THE TRIBUNE published the facts concerning the reward offers, and urged that all information be directed to the new headquarters. Later, at the request of Roche, THE TRIBUNE announced that $10,000 out of the $25,000 reward it had posted would be paid to any one presenting confidential information leading to the capture of the killer.

Not Eligible for Reward.

It was definitely agreed by the officials attending the conference, including Rathbun, McShane, Roche, State's Attorney Swanson, Commissioner Alcock, and Deputy Commissioner Norton, that none of the officials engaged in the case would be eligible for any portion of the reward.

At that time a phrase was coined by some newspaper man opposed to the solution of the mystery, referring to the group of officials participating in the initial conference as the "board of strategy" in the Lingle case. Later the "board of strategy" seemed to include only Rathbun, Roche and McShane, and in the critical press the term was employed with a tinge of sarcasm.

It must be admitted that at times during many long months these men were wont to consider themselves a "board of tragedy."

BERENGARIA HITS MUD BANK; TAKE OFF PASSENGERS

SOUTHAMPTON, April 8.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—The Cunard liner Berengaria, which ran aground in a fog off Southampton last night, was dragged off the mud bank by tugs at about 3 a. m. today. The fog was still so thick, however, that she hove to until daylight before proceeding into this port.

All but 75 of her passengers were brought ashore by tender last night. The extent of the damage to the vessel could not be determined immediately, but it was expected that she would go into dry dock. The Berengaria left Cherbourg at 9 a. m. this morning and was due in Southampton at 3 p. m. The fog was so dense that her passage was slow and after she went aground the tenders bringing in her passengers were obliged to proceed with the greatest caution. This delay accounted for the lateness of their arrival.

EX-SENATOR IN '32 RACE AGAINST HOOVER AS G. O. P.

France of Maryland Runs as Dry Law Foe.

Baltimore, Md., April 7.—(AP)—Former Senator Joseph I. France announced tonight he was an anti-prohibition candidate for the Republican nomination for President in opposition to President Hoover.

Dr. France, senator from Maryland from 1917 to 1923, said he would file formal notice of candidacy tomorrow with the secretary of state at Annapolis and would enter primaries in other states.

He said in a statement that he favored the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, substitution of the concert of nations proposal he advanced when in the senate for the league of nations, and that he opposed extension of government ownership and the recognition of Russia "in advance of mutually satisfactory settlements of all moral and financial questions."

No Promises of Support.

He said he had as "yet no promises of support."

Dr. France was one of the "irreconcilables" who fought entry of the United States into the league. He was a unique figure in a number of respects while in the senate, opposing the eighteenth amendment, the soldiers' bonus, and the four power pact resulting from the Washington disarmament conference.

In 1929 he advocated opening trade relations with Russia, but opposed recognition.

Dr. France was an announced candidate for the Republican nomination for President in advance of the 1920 convention, but was given only scattered votes.

Importance of Dry Law.

"The 18th amendment," said his statement, "is an important issue, but it involves two paramount issues: Shall we elect to the presidency any man who can condone such a terrific blow struck at the very roots of constitutional government? Shall the people elect to the presidency at this critical time any man who has lacked the candor and the courage to state boldly and clearly where he stands upon this and every important issue of vital concern to the American people?"

Since his defeat for reelection to the senate in 1922 by William Cabell Bruce, a Democrat, Dr. France has not been active in politics. His second wife, whom he married in Paris in 1927, is a native of Russia and he has made two trips there.

Actress Wins $11,950 from Producer Over Contract

Dillingham, producer, was announced today by the American Arbitration association. The arbitrators decided Miss Starbuck was entitled to the full amount claimed under her guarantee.

DRIVER KILLED WHEN HIS AUTO HITS STREET CAR

George Grant, 30 years old, of the Birchwood hotel, 7464 Greenview avenue, was killed early today when the automobile in which he was riding alone crashed into a street car at Albion avenue and Clark street. Witnesses said that Grant's car swerved as he was apparently trying to turn into Albion avenue from Clark street and the collision occurred.

William Daniels, 2 years old, 17 North Ashland avenue, La Grange, was killed yesterday afternoon when he ran in front of a truck near his home. Hugo Fischer, 43 years old, 838 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, was the driver.

Mrs. Amelia Marshall, 52 years old, 2340 West Chicago avenue, died in St. Mary's hospital of injuries suffered on Monday, when she and her 9 year old daughter Eleanor were struck by an automobile at Augusta boulevard and Leavitt street. The driver did not stop.

The three deaths increased the motor toll in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 211.

Mishawaka, Ind., April 7. — [Special.]—Mrs. Agnes Weber, a twenty-four year old frail mother, dressed in men's clothing, confessed today to twelve burglaries in residences and stores since Sept. 7, 1930. She told police that her husband had been without employment for a year and she was forced to do something to buy food for her eighteen months old baby. SHOUSE OPENS DRIVE IN WEST FOR DEMOCRATS

Tells Iowa Hoover Hasn't Kept Promises.

Des Moines, Ia., April 7.—(AP)—Formally opening the campaign to send a Democrat to the White House in 1932, Chairman Shouse of the national executive committee invaded this normally Republican state tonight to attack the administration's handling of the farm problem and the business depression.

Speaking at a dinner of the Iowa Democratic state committee, in the heart of the agricultural belt and in President Hoover's native state, Shouse said he believed the farmers could not be "duped indefinitely by promises, the fulfillment of which was never intended."

Shouse did not mention the prohibition issue, on which the party's national chairman, John J. Raskob, has demanded a stand be taken.

Changed by Hoover Promises.

Shouse said that for a time in 1928 the Democrats thought they might win Iowa, but the situation was changed by President Hoover's campaign promises to aid agriculture.

"But what did President Hoover do?" he asked. "He tossed overboard the council of your farm leaders and he gave you the farm board, with a half-billion dollars to dicker with, and the result is that today your products are worth about half what they brought when he undertook to place agriculture on a parity with industry and the whole business of farming is accordingly prostrated.

"The sum total of 20 months of effort by Mr. Hoover's farm board is that you are advised to cut down your acreage."

Jobless on Increase.

Recent government figures, he added, show that unemployment instead of diminishing during the last year has increased 149 per cent.

"During all of this time the President has had a huge majority in both houses of congress," Shouse said. "If he had in mind any constructive program or any sincere policy for the betterment of conditions, nothing stood in the way of their enactment."

DOCTOR, CALLED TO HIS OFFICE, FINDS DEAD MAN

Dr. James Patejdl was in his home at 2039 West Garfield boulevard last night when he received an anonymous telephone call that "an accident case was in his office."

The physician hurried to his office at 5000 South Ashland avenue. Slumped in a chair in the waiting room was the body of William Lewis, 35 years old, a chauffeur, of 6608 South Winchester avenue. He had been stabbed in the left side, and evidently had bled to death in the doctor's office.

Five men were seized by detectives for questioning. According to police, one of the quintet, whose name they refuse to divulge, stabbed Lewis. The attack occurred in an alley west of Ashland avenue at 50th street.

JUMPS TO DEATH AS WITNESS VAINLY TRIES TO STOP HIM

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—A guest of the Hotel New Yorker in evening attire poised precariously on a window ledge outside an eighth floor room on the Thirty-fourth street side of the building early today while a passerby in the street tried to dissuade the would-be suicide by shouts and arm signals. The figure waved, shouted a farewell, then plunged.

The mangled body was taken to the West Thirtieth street police station. Although the man, about 22 years old, had engaged a room half an hour before under the name of Leroy A. Marot, papers and letters in his handbag bore the name and address of Alfred Dressler, East Yonkers.

Police visited the East Yonkers address and reported that a George Matthews, a brother-in-law of Dressler, lived there. He later telephoned to the police that Dressler was a member of a theater party last night and that he was sure the suicide was Dressler.

SEIZE 3 GIRLS AND MAN AS ROBBERY GANG SUSPECTS

On complaint from neighbors that five youths were hiding in a flat with a sawed off shotgun, Hudson avenue police arrested three girls and a man in two furnished rooms at 334 Menomonee street yesterday. A second youth escaped after the officers had fired at him. Those arrested said they were from Joliet.

The police found a sawed off shotgun in the apartment and will ask recent robbery victims to view the four in the belief that they may have captured a youthful bandit gang which has been preying upon residents of the north side.

The girls game their names as Gladys Jarose, 18 years old; Lucille Witt, 24 years old, and Fern Kalden, 16 years. The man said he was Charles White, 25 years old. He identified the man who fled through the back door of the apartment when the officers entered as Harry Anderson, 25 years old. White said he has been living recently at 1952 West Congress street.

FEAR RASKOB'S WET PROPOSAL IS A SMOKE SCREEN

Radicals Say It's Plan to Nominate Reactionary.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—With President Hoover considered certain of the Republican nomination and Chairman Raskob attempting, as they see it, to focus attention on prohibition in order to sidetrack economic issues and cause the selection of a "reactionary" Democratic candidate, the "progressives" of both factions are contemplating their chance of being men without a party.

Insurgent Republicans, who have been patiently waiting for Democratic sentiment to swing into line behind a "liberal" candidate to whom they can switch their allegiance, are perturbed by Mr. Raskob's effort to gain support for a plank supporting his "home rule" plan of modifying the eighteenth amendment.

How They View Situation.

Since many of them already have made up their minds to desert Hoover, and since a third party movement, though talked of has gained little or no headway, they are left with the prospect of supporting the Democratic candidate or, as Senator George W. Norris, insurgent Republican of Nebraska, recently put it, "going fishing."

It was Senator Norris who today expressed his views, explaining how the members of his school of "progressiveism" view the situation, and how they interpret Mr. Raskob's program.

"It has always seemed to me," said Senator Norris, "that Mr. Raskob was determined to nominate a Democrat who agreed with Mr. Hoover on power, farm relief, anti-injunction, tariff, and all kindred things but who will pretend at least to disagree with him on prohibition. That means that the special interests are satisfied with Mr. Hoover and want the Democrats to nominate a man just like him, but they must have an issue to fight about. Mr. Raskob wants to make that issue prohibition.

Play Golf or Go Fishing.

"If they can get the people to fighting over prohibition then the organized millionaires will make big contributions to both parties. They will go to play golf or fish while the people fight the sham battle over prohibition and they will get everything they want.

"They do not care anything about prohibition, but they are anxious that organized wealth shall be safe during the term of the next President of the United States. They want the people to forget that they are hungry and cold while they discuss the proposition of repeal of the 18th amendment. They want them to talk about liquor instead of bread."

Catholic Church Bombed in Mexico; None Injured

Gives Birth to Twins in 2 Counties in 2 Days

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England, April 7.—(AP)—The birth of twins in different counties and on successive days set the "old wives' corner" a-humming today. Mrs. C. D. Purvis became the mother of a girl at New Harrington, county of Durham, last night. Her condition became so serious that doctors ordered her removed to maternity hospital here, about 14 miles distant in the county of Northumberland. The other twin—a boy—was born today.

DOUBLE LIFE OF EDITOR IS BARED BY HIS SUICIDE

Two Widows Mourn at His Bier.

Yuma, Ariz., April 7.—(AP)—The mystery shrouded trail of Hutton Bellah, 39 year old former Altus, Okla., newspaper publisher, led today to the bier of William A. Lee, editor and publisher of the Yuma, Ariz., Sentinel, where two women mourned as widows.

The publisher killed himself yesterday with a pistol, in the presence of his second wife, when, apparently, he discovered his real identity was about to be revealed.

Mrs. Hutton Bellah, viewing the body today, said Lee and her missing husband were the same man. Mrs. Lee, the former Edna Louis Schatz of Platteville, Wis., said she married the man in Rockford, Ill., July 17, 1930, without knowledge he ever had been married before.

Bellah moved with his family from Altus to Los Angeles in October, 1929, and on Dec. 28, 1929, dropped from sight.

Lost Heavily in Stock Market.

"He had lost heavily in the stock market," Mrs. Bellah said. "He threatened suicide just before he disappeared. He told us he had lost most of our money, and that he thought seriously of killing himself. We didn't believe it then.

"At that time we had a boy, who is now four years old. Another child was born four months after Mr. Bellah disappeared.

"I never had a clew to his whereabouts until yesterday, when Mr. Harry Wimberly telegraphed me his suspicions. Mr. Wimberly is on his way to Yuma now. He had had some one here for the last week, I think, investigating, but I don't know who it was."

Second Widow's Story.

"I didn't know anything about any of it until he was dead," Mrs. Lee said. "We were married in Rockford, Ill. I never suspected he had another wife, or that his name was not Lee. I feel too badly to talk about it, and I really don't think there is any more for me to say."

Bellah, under the name of Lee, purchased the Yuma Sentinal Oct. 1, 1930.

Mrs. Lee testified at the inquest her husband grasped a pistol suddenly and shot himself as he was preparing to leave home for his office. That he had premeditated the act was indicated in a note he left for Mrs. Lee, instructing her to notify Lew H. Wentz, multi-millionaire oil man of Ponca City, Okla., who was a friend of Bellah.

Tells of Getting Letter.

Oklahoma City, April 7.—(AP)—Hutton Bellah, missing former publisher of Altus, Okla., ended a 15 months' masquerade by suicide at Yuma, Ariz., before Lew Wentz, his multi-millionaire friend, could aid him.

"I would have done anything I could to solve his problems," the wealthy oil man said, disclosing he received a letter from Bellah today, telling of financial difficulties and saying "I am ready to give up the struggle."

The letter came after Wentz had been informed of the suicide of Bellah.

Previously Wentz, learning Bellah's whereabouts, had written to him, expressing a continuing interest in his welfare. The oil man had befriended Bellah before the latter built up the Altus Times-Democrat, which he sold four months before he vanished from Los Angeles.

Bellah expressed a desire to see Wentz and asked him to write "information of that which I dare not seek, dread to hear, yet long for most."

BOY LOSES LONG FIGHT FOR LIFE IN STEEL LUNG

After waging a six weeks' fight against death, spending eleven days of this period in a respirator which induced artificial breathing, Charles Caughey, 7 years old, died yesterday afternoon in St. Francis hospital, Evanston. A heart attack brought on the boy's sudden end, according to Dr. Noel G. Shaw, the attending physician.

Charles, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Caughey, 3622 South Union avenue, was stricken with diphtheria about Feb. 24. He was taken to the county hospital. On March 6 the disease paralyzed his throat muscles so that he could not breathe. He was rushed to the Evanston hospital and placed in the respirator, where he remained until March 15, when he was able to breathe for a few hours without artificial assistance. On March 17 he was removed entirely from the respirator.

The boy's weak heart, however, militated against his recovery. He had suffered an attack of scarlet fever before the diphtheria attack and his physical condition was very poor. He suffered periods of unconsciousness after his removal from the respirator. He was unconscious when he died. He was placed again in the respirator in a last futile attempt to revive him shortly before death.

The father was at the bedside when death occurred. In addition to Dr. Shaw, eight other physicians had interested themselves in the case.

YOUNG GUNMAN CONFESSES IN MYSTERY MURDER

Killing of Salesman Year Ago Cleared Up.

A year old murder mystery—the slaying last April 11 of Edward J. Wolf, an automobile salesman—was solved yesterday. Kensington police announced that Everett Kappmeyer, 22 years old, son of a filling station owner of 182 North 10th avenue, Chicago Heights, had confessed killing Wolf in a robbery.

EVERETT KAPPMEYER.

On the night of his death the salesman, who lived at 10120 South State street, had driven out of an automobile agency at 10858 South Michigan avenue in a maroon car. With him was a young man whom other employés of the agency believed to be a sales prospect. A few hours after the two left, Wolf was found dying, with a bullet in his chest, at 95th street and Normal avenue. The car was found wrecked against a tree in the vicinity. Wolf was 46 years old.

Confesses Killing Salesman.

Kappmeyer, according to Capt. Michael Grady of the Kensington police district, confessed that he made Wolf believe that he was a prospective customer, and that he had gone for a demonstration ride and shot the salesman when he resisted the gunman's command to get out of the car. The prisoner confessed in the presence of his victim's widow, Mrs. Clara Wolf; her daughter, Gertrude, and Wolf's sister, Mrs. Gertrude Nelson.

"He doesn't look like the kind of a boy who would commit a murder," said the widow, studying the light haired, slender young man. Kappmeyer flicked the ash from his cigaret, unmoved.

"I wouldn't have fired if he hadn't resisted," Kappmeyer said, indifferently. "When I told him to stick up his hands he tried to grapple for my gun. We struggled for a minute, then I fired. It was my first crime and I hoped it would be the last."

Seized in Dance Hall.

However, Capt. Grady pointed out that during the last few weeks a youth of Kappmeyer's description had held up six tradesmen in the Kensington district and a squad was assigned to his trail. The officers learned he had lived at the Y. M. C. A. hotel at 111th and State streets and from there trailed him to a dance hall in Momence, where he was seized early yesterday at a dance in company with a girl. She was not held.

THREE HOLD UP HOTEL.

Three bandits obtained $25 from the cash drawer of the Castle hotel, 4826 Winthrop avenue, yesterday morning after forcing George Hans, clerk, and Emmett Johnson, bellboy, to lie on the floor.

old, 1016 Belden avenue, edged toward Smith and was poised for a flying tackle when the gunman's glance strayed that way.

Again Smith squeezed the trigger, but the chamber was empty. Fearing himself trapped, he dropped the money sack and broke into a run, knocking over a rack of dinner plates and a table load of glassware as he careened into a broad aisle.

Ahead was a winding staircase. He clattered down the iron stairs, not pausing at the first floor, for Buck and a third clerk, Henry Miller, 28 years old, 4022 West Jackson boulevard, were on his heels. Reaching the basement, he sprinted twice around the elevator shaft, trying to shake them off, but it was useless. The whole store was in alarm.

Again he tried an aisle. It was clear except for Mrs. Sarah Heatherly, 22 years old, 6923 Parnell avenue, a clerk, who had been arranging the pillows at her bargain counter.

Woman Brings Down Robber.

Seeing her, he faltered for a moment and Miller seized his coat tail. With a backward kick, he rid himself of Miller and charged on Mrs. Heatherly. She met the impact with outstretched arms and fell to her knees, gripping the robber about the waist.

Once more Smith squeezed the trigger. The gun did not fire, so, slipping the weapon to his other hand, he brought the butt down on Mrs. Heatherly's head. She collapsed, unconscious, and Smith arose to resume his flight.

He was blocked on all sides now. Men and women closed in, clawing over each other to seize his coat, his hair or hands, and scratch his face. Smith went down and one woman planted her heel on his wrist while Miller wrested the pistol from his hand.

Turned Over to Police.

He was hustled back to the second floor and there turned over to the police. An employé had found the money sack and he gave it to the policeman. In a statement made in the store Smith said he had planned the robbery for a week, eating daily in the restaurant and noting the manager's trips to the bank. Except for an arrest for drunkenness ten years ago, he had never before been in trouble, Smith said.

Dewey, who battled with the gunman on the elevated platform, was taken to the Bridewell hospital. Although his condition did not permit extensive questioning, the police pressed him as to where he got the gun. At first he declared he had wrested it from Smith's hand, but later, when informed that Smith had carried that weapon to the basement, asserted that some one had handed it to him.

Dewey gave his address as the Wacker hotel. The manager of that establishment said Dewey had stopped there for several weeks prior to April 4, but on that day had left without settling his bill. In Dewey's coat was found a Morrison hotel key and inquiry at the Morrison revealed he had registered there on April 4 under the name of James Downey. The police intended to question him further if his condition permitted.

Dismiss Manager's Suit Against Lily Pons, Singer

New York, April 7.—(AP)—Injunction proceedings started against Lily Pons, soprano of the Metropolitan opera, by Maria Gay, her manager, were dismissed today by Supreme Court Justice John A. Ford. NEW YORK'S KING OF BOOTLEGGERS INDICTED BY U. S.

Violation of Income Tax Law Charged.

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—The federal government's drive against racketeers, using the income tax, prohibition and immigration laws as weapons, went forward with a rush today.

To begin with, "Mannie" Kessler, the former King Midas of the bootleggers, who still owes the United States government $7,443,673 plus interest in income tax and fines on judgments dating back to 1925, was again indicted by the federal grand jury today. This time he is charged with failing to file a return in 1928 on a gross income of $205,661, derived from various rackets.

Opening Gun in Federal Drive.

The indictment of the man who is reputed to have the gift of turning everything he touches into gold was the opening gun in the federal government's offensive against bootleggers, racketeers, and organized illicit business.

The grand jury also indicted two federal narcotic agents and a former agent on charges of bribing another agent and conspiracy to suborn perjury. Those indicted were Richard Nash, Charles R. Keane, and Philip Di Stefano.

At the same time United States Attorney George Z. Medalie announced that federal agents had succeeded in trailing the "higher ups" of the narcotic ring whose $1,000,000 opium cache at 636 Hudson street was seized several days ago. Abraham Goodman, arrested in the raid, is being held in $75,000 bail.

Handle 2,943 Dry Law Cases

Mr. Medalie also disclosed that during the month of March, his office and the special prohibition court operating here, had disposed of 2,943 cases of liquor law violators, clearing the calendars for a number of major prohibition cases now pending.

Coincidentally, it was learned that since Jan. 14 government agents, operating under Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, have rounded up and deported 1,127 aliens in this city, classed as undesirable or as having entered the country illegally.

The revelation of the progress of the alien deportation drive also disclosed that, of the 1,127 undesirables shipped out of the country, more than 90 per cent had held jobs which now are being filled by American citizens. Some 70 per cent of the deportees were women.

Legion Aids in Investigation.

Twenty-five inspectors from the personnel of Commissioner of Immigration Benjamin Day and twenty picked men from Washington started operations. Members of the American Legion played an important part in the racketeer-gangster-illegal entry cleanup.

The American Legion in their canvass of city for jobs found that many employers were giving work to men who were illegally in the country. This information was turned over to Secretary Doak.

The expeditious manner in which Secretary of Labor Doak has handled the situation is shown by the fact that nearly 700 aliens were deported during the last month.

The Republicans at Albany this afternoon named the majority members of the legislative committee which will conduct the city-wide investigation into New York affairs, and the stage was virtually set for the municipal house cleaning.

These are the men named: Senators Samuel H. Hofstadter of Manhattan and Leon F. Wheatley of Steuben county, and Assemblymen Abbot Low Moffat of Manhattan, Hamilton F. Putter of Suffolk county, and William J. Lamont of Orange. The Democrats later will name one senator and one assemblyman to the committee.

The seven men will select their own chairman, and it is assumed, since he was named to the committee through the demand of W. Kingsland Macy, Republican state chief, that Senator Hofstadter will be the committee's choice.

FALLS DEAD ON VISIT.

Homer Van Patten, 79 years old, 4825 Malden street, fell dead at the entrance to the home of his son, Eugene, 4846 Malden street, whom he was about to visit.

JUDGE ASSAILS DRY DRIVES ON PETTY OFFENDERS

Wilkerson Tells Jury to Seek Big Violators.

The failure of prohibition agents to apprehend major liquor law violators and their practice of cluttering up the federal courts with "petty offenders" was assailed by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson in his instructions to the April grand jury.

The court enjoined the jurors not to satisfy themselves with the indictment of some bartender or still tender in cases that should be investigated further by the dry agents with a view of finding out who the "real offenders" are.

Judge Wilkerson's action was similar to his disposition of a liquor case last week, in which Henry Deiterman, a Bensenville truck farmer, was discharged. The report of the dry agents stated that two small stills were found in Deiterman's barn and that he claimed to have rented the building. Deiterman produced a lease to this effect, but he was arrested. The court scored the drys for not waiting around in an effort to arrest the owners.

"There are many cases presented to you involving the national prohibition law," said Judge Wilkerson to the jurors. "Now it frequently happens that the offender who is presented to you for indictment is a minor offender, some man who has been working around a distillery or brewery for two or three days, and the owner or the major offender is not found.

"Burdened with Petty Offenders."

"I think that in that class of cases which may require the officers of the government to investigate the case before they ask you to return an indictment against anybody, with a view of determining, if possible, who is the real offender in the case, you may well hesitate in satisfying yourself with the indictment of some minor offender.

"Our courts are burdened with indictments against petty offenders where a case is not fully worked up where the evidence is not followed through to its logical conclusion and where the real owner or the outfit really responsible for the operation of the distillery or the brewery or saloon has never been brought before the court by indictment.

"I think you should look into that class of cases very carefully and require the government officer to investigate the case to the end, having in mind that it is impossible to enforce any law so long as we make a practice of dealing merely with the petty offenders and give no attention to the large offenders who are accumulating vast sums of money, but who have not been presented to the court for prosecution."

Asks Care on Indictments.

Judge Wilkerson also indicated that certain assistant United States attorneys are too eager to obtain indictments in cases that are dismissed by the United States commissioner before they are presented to the grand jury.

"Now when a case of that kind is presented to you," he said, "and an indictments has been asked against a defendant who has been discharged by the commissioner, after he has heard the evidence, you should look most carefully into the evidence, and you are not return an indictment against such an individual who has been discharged by the commissioner merely because some other government official may think on the evidence he should be indicted."

ICE PLANT BLAST ROCKS TOWN.

Metropolis, Ill., April 7.—(AP)—An explosion at the ice plant of the Illinois Public Service company here last night shook the city and caused an earthquake scare. A broken piston rod caused a machine to explode. Two engineers had just walked out of the boiler room when the blast occurred.

FIVE FAMILIES SAVED FROM FIRE BY DOG'S BARKING

Topsy, a nondescript dog, and an unidentified stranger shared honors in saving the lives of five families when a fire destroyed two frame buildings at 2306 and 2308 Blue Island avenue early yesterday morning. Topsy's vigorous barking attracted the attention of a passerby, who then discovered smoke coming from the basement of No. 2308 and ran through the two buildings arousing the sleepers.

Topsy belongs to Jerry Mirosvich, his wife, Anna, and their daughter, Mollie, 14 years old. Mirosvich operated a butcher shop at No. 2306 and lived in the rear of the store. Upstairs there were Anton Cerer, whose wife is in a hospital, and his two children, Edna, 11, and Joseph, 7. Next door, where the fire started, Mrs. Marie Bukowski and her child, Marie, and Joseph Pollak, his wife and daughter, Frances, 8, lived downstairs, and the family of Frank Cantarino lived upstairs.

All were saved, thanks to Topsy and the stranger.

Missing Man Is Found Murdered in Automobile

Anton Bagdon, 35 years old, 2324 West 22d street, a truck driver, was found dead in his automobile in front of 1845 South Spaulding avenue yesterday. His skull was crushed in. His widow told police that he had been out of work and had been missing for two days. Police said that robbery apparently was not the motive for the killing, as $100 was found in Bagdon's pockets.

GERMANY CALLS BLUFF OF NATIONS CRYING 'DISARM!'

Demands Neighbors Come Out from Cover.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 7.—"Germany has determined to call the bluff of those nations which pretend to desire disarmament while they themselves are refusing to disarm," it was asserted in semi-official circles here tonight. This statement is made in reference to a note sent by Foreign Minister Julius Curtius to Geneva, demanding that the fullest details be published before the disarmament conference assembles, covering the armaments of those countries which have been invited to participate in the conference.

Germany is insisting that her demand be discussed at next month's session of the council of the league of nations. Even if it does not help to solve the disarmament problem, it is desired to secure the information before the delegates meet whether or not a genuine will for disarmament exists among the participants.

Want Treaty Violations Bared.

The Nationalist press asserts that it is the task of the German government to clearly fix the responsibility for any breach of the Versailles peace.

Meanwhile Germany is being pictured as a defenseless nation among armed neighbors. Die Woche, one of the largest illustrated magazines in the republic, paints Germany beleaguered by hostile nations top heavy with guns, tanks, airplanes, ships—an easy prey to gas attacks and bombs from above. This alarming vision is contained in a sketch map and an attached text.

With all the imagination and fantasy of the renaissance cartographer who drew his maps with sea serpents, dragons, and whales disporting themselves in the corners of the ocean, a German artist has shown great tanks lumbering across the European terrain, monster mobile long range guns, speedy flying craft—practically all pointed in the direction of Germany, except where portions of the armament of France and Italy face each other across the mountains, or where, in a corner of Rumania, a gun is pointed towards the interior of soviet Russia.

Studies Military Statistics.

France—655,700 soldiers, 2,500 planes, 4,500 tanks, 1,200 pieces of heavy artillery, and 416,100 naval tons.

England—182,000 men under arms, 824 planes, 350 tanks, 500 pieces heavy artillery, and a fleet of 1,240,700 tons.

Russia's Army of 1,200,000 Men.

Rumania—144,000 soldiers, 175 pieces of heavy artillery, and 350 airplanes.

Against this armament of Germany's next door neighbors is placed her totals—An army and navy totaling 115,000 men, no reserves; 288 pieces of artillery [no heavy artillery permitted]; no tanks nor military airplanes, and a navy of 36,000 tons.

Map Full of Action.

The map which shows this is full of action. French guns are depicted hurling their massive shells into German territory, and the leading German cities being bombed or gassed. In the northern part an unarmed peasant with a sickle stands shaking his fist futilely toward a mobile railway gun which Polish soldiers are shooting at his native land. On the soil of East Prussia, that area severed completely from the rest of Germany by the Polish corridor, a German soldier lies dead beside his shattered piece of light artillery.

PROTEST U. S. SEIZURE OF A BRITISH LIQUOR VESSEL IN DISTRESS

Washington, D. C., April 7.—(AP)—The raising of a new point in legal tangles arising from seizure of foreign rum smuggling vessels was disclosed today by the justice department in the case of the British vessel, Algie.

The oil burner, laden with 2,580 packages of assorted liquors, was seized Feb. 15 about 200 yards offshore, near Montauk Point, L. I. Its crew of 10 men contended the vessel was forced into United States waters "on account of distress." The Algie was aground when seized.

"The question will be raised," the department said, "as to whether the claim of distress can legally be made by a vessel under the circumstances indicated when the ship contained liquor intended to be illegally introduced in the United States. The allegation is further made that the Algie has been engaged in liquor activities for an extended period of time."

Blast Wrecks Road Paving Machine Near Plainfield

A powerful dynamite blast early yesterday wrecked a road construction machine and shattered windows in houses in Plainfield, nearly a mile away. Plainfield is about 35 miles southwest of Chicago. The machine was owned by the Powers-Thompson Construction company of Joliet which was recently awarded the contract to pave the road connecting Plainfield and state highway No. 4. Police attributed the explosion to labor trouble. Officials of the company could not be reached.

• Tired Out • Here's the Reason! • Eat Yeast •

STRENGTH GONE and errands not half done! Know the feeling? | POISONS that arise here are the cause. Keep intestines clean | BY EATING yeast. Try it in milk shakes—or just plain.

Do you Tire Easily?

ISN'T it discouraging, when pep gives out . . . when you feel listless, tired and cross for no apparent cause?

That's how Intestinal Poisons affect you, doctors say!

Yet the cause exists . . . right inside your body! In most cases it's simply that age-old evil . . . that unpleasant trouble to which women are particularly subject . . . Intestinal Fatigue!

In Intestinal Fatigue, undigested food masses accumulate and stagnate in the intestinal tract because elimination has become irregular. As a result, depressing poisons seep into the blood and circulate throughout your system. Your appetite fails. Color fades. Vitality is slowly undermined!

Now what you need is simply to cleanse your system regularly—not with weakening cathartics but by a gentle, natural means.

For this purpose, famous physicians, for over three-quarters of a century, have recommended fresh yeast.

This food—for that's what fresh yeast is—softens harmful waste matter in the intestines and at the same time stimulates the natural action that removes it. It tones up digestive functions, too, so that we derive the utmost nourishment from everything we eat.

So, if you feel run-down, start eating Fleischmann's Yeast today! Just eat three cakes every day, regularly—before meals, or between meals and at bedtime—plain or in a third of a glass of water (hot or cold), in milk, or any other way you like.

You can get Fleischmann's Yeast at grocers', restaurants and soda fountains. Each cake is rich in three health-giving vitamins—B, G and D.

Eat FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST for Health—3 Cakes a Day!

Always ask for Fleischmann's fresh Yeast (with the yellow label) . . . the only yeast "irradiated" to give it the Sunshine Vitamin D! Rich in Vitamins B and G, too.

OFFICERS' WIVES SNUB AMERICAN QUAKE REFUGEES

Victims Complain on Their Arrival at Panama.

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, April 7.—Refugees from the Managua earthquake zone, mainly wives and children of American marine officers and noncommissioned officers who arrived here aboard the transport Chaumont, tonight told how they had been snubbed and high hatted by officers' wives aboard the Chaumont who were returning to the United States from China.

Without exception every woman, especially sergeants' wives, complained. Army and navy officers, they said, delayed in their homeward journey when the Chaumont was ordered to Nicaragua to pick up the quake victims, protested against their first class accommodations being given to noncommissioned officers' wives who had been stranded by the earthquake, although they were only given cots on deck. Appearing in evening gowns during dinner, wives of the officers snubbed the refugees, the latter said.

"Not one of them offered a kind word, tooth paste or help with clothes," one refugee woman said. "They avoided the sufferers as though they had the plague."

Plans are going forward to take the matter before congress at Washington.

New Quake Rocks Managua.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 7.—(AP)—Another earthquake of moderate intensity struck Managua today, sending badly weakened walls tumbling into the ruins left by the catastrophe which came just a week ago today.

The material damage was relatively slight, for there is not much left of Managua. The people, however, still staggering under last week's heavy blow, were badly frightened.

Many of them are on the verge of nervous collapse, so heavy has been the strain of the last week, but there was no panic, for they are too tired.

American Nurses Safe.

As the tension eased somewhat and some semblance of order returned, it was definitely established today that although the American Baptist hospital on the outskirts of the city was destroyed last Tuesday, all the nurses are safe. All the members of the Protestant missions from the United States also were reported safe.

The business of government, disrupted when the quake left Managua a shambles, will be resumed in a week or so. President Moncada today issued a call for a session of congress. When it meets it will have to decide among other things whether the capital shall be transferred to another city.

To make things harder for the working crews, strong winds blew up last night from the lakes, lifting the powdered adobe ruins into swirling clouds of dust. Homeless dogs, frightened and half starved, slink about the ruins. Guards have been ordered to shoot them on sight for fear they may go mad from lack of water.

EAKER TO ATTEMPT TO SURPASS RECORD NOW HELD BY HAWKS

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—Capt. Ira C. Eaker, veteran flying ace of the army air corps and pilot for Trubee F. Davison, assistant secretary of war for air, is preparing at Los Angeles for an attempt to break the transcontinental speed record, it was announced at the war department today. This record is now held by Capt. Frank M. Hawks, who made the flight in 12 hours and 25 minutes.

Weather conditions permitting, Capt. Eaker will take off from the west coast next Thursday morning. He will fly a new low wing Lockheed monoplane with retractable landing gear. Two army officer believes it is possible he may make the west to east flight in ten hours or less, maintaining an average of 220 miles an hour or above. The estimated speed of the plane is said to be above 220 miles an hour, several miles faster than any plane now in use in the army.

Additional gas tanks have been installed in the second cockpit of the two seater ship, so that when Capt. Eaker leaves the west coast on Thursday morning the plant will carry 320 gallons of gasoline, more than enough to fly to Wichita, Kas., the only scheduled stop. The tanks will be refilled there and Capt. Eaker will take off again for New York.

TROOPS SAIL FOR MADEIRA; WILL FIGHT FOR ISLAND

600 Soldiers Quit Lisbon Aboard Transport.

LISBON, Portugal, April 7.—(AP)—Determined to avoid bloodshed if possible in putting down a military revolt at Funchal, Madeira, the government nevertheless today continued its preparations to recover the island capital by force if that should prove necessary.

The transport Pedro Gomez with 600 troops sailed this morning after having been delayed several hours by mechanical difficulties. The gunboat Zaire convoyed her. Tomorrow the transport Jubango will leave with four seaplanes and a regiment of artillery, and on Thursday the transport Lima will sail for Funchal.

Planes to Fly over Island.

Before the Pedro Gomez sailed President Carmona went aboard and exhorted the soldiers to do their utmost for the national honor. It was understood that the airplanes would fly over Funchal before the troops landed and that an effort would be made to persuade the rebels to surrender.

Today the government issued an official denial of reports that the revolt had extended to the Azores, but strict censorship was still imposed on messages to and from Funchal. John Glover South, American minister to Portugal, was informed today by the American consul at Funchal that all the Americans on the island are safe.

The government tonight issued a decree blockading the port of Funchal and approved a proposal for evacuation of foreign residents, should it be necessary to subdue the rebellion by force of arms.

Rebels Refuse to Yield.

FUNCHAL, Madeira, April 7.—(AP)—Rebel military leaders who have overthrown the Portuguese administration and seized control of this island today issued an uncompromising declaration of their demand for establishment of constitutional government.

"The military junta," the manifesto said, "is mobilizing its reserves with the approval of the whole population in view of the possibility that the Lisbon government will attempt to suppress the movement here."

The junta, headed by Gen. Sousa Dias, guarantees the food supply of the island's approximately 170,000 inhabitants, its statement said, and "has seized for this purpose three Portuguese steamers, which will trade with England, our usual product markets."

British Warship Sails for Isle.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GIBRALTAR, April 7.—The British cruiser London left Gibraltar this morning for Madeira to safeguard the interests of British residents there.

ASKS WRIT TO BAR WOMEN JURORS IN COOK COUNTY

Charles M. Thompson, a Chicago taxpayer, yesterday filed a petition in the Supreme court at Springfield asking that a mandamus writ be issued compelling Cook county jury commissioners to prepare lists for jury service without the use of the names of any women.

The petition asserts that the law permitting women to serve as jurors is unconstitutional because article 2 of section 5 of the state constitution provides that "the right of trial by jury as heretofore enjoined shall remain inviolate." It is also asserted that the general assembly is without power to pass a woman jurors' law conditioned on submission of the proposition to the whole electorate.

The defendants named are Joseph H. Barnett, Elizabeth Conkey, and James J. McVicker, Cook county jury commissioners.

AUTO UPSETS; ONE SERIOUSLY HURT.

Evansville, Ind., April 7.—[Special.]—Robert Mehringer, 24, Jasper, is in the St. Mary's hospital with a fractured skull received when the car in which he was riding skidded on loose gravel and turned over last night. He is not expected to recover. Other occupants of the car, a young man and two girls, were not seriously injured.

CRIMINALS CAN BE CAUGHT.

The taking and the conviction of Leo Brothers as the murderer of Alfred Lingle was the second case in which persistent effort brought a criminal to justice in recent effort to punish crime. The other was that of a Negro rapist who had used a TRIBUNE want ad to gain entrance to a suburban home and to commit rape. He escaped from the scene of the crime, as Brothers did, and for months seemed safely hidden from detection. He was taken in spite of many advantages in concealment because the search for him never stopped.

THE TRIBUNE assigned a determined reporter to the case and the reporter lived on the trail of the rapist until he was tracked to his hiding place. In the case of Brothers, Roche, the chief investigator of the state's attorney's office, and the special assistants, Rathbun and McShane, did nothing else from the murder of Lingle except trail his killer. In both cases the persistence, excluding every distraction or other occupation, was successful. No other method will work in hard cases. All the initial advantages are with the criminal. If he has only to beat the first flurry of police work he will escape. He is good in the sprints, but he wears out if the chase is to the finish.

There are categories of crime in which persistence to get the criminal is the rule. The federal government sticks on the trail of mail robbers and counterfeiters. Federal agents given such an assignment are on it until they have produced the men wanted. The criminals know that they will be followed until they are caught and that knowledge protects the mails and it protects coinage. Some private organizations, notably banking, have the same rule and, although there are bank robberies, the crime is known to contain risks unusual in other holdups.

The crimes with which the city police deal have no such hazards. The criminal who commits a murder or a robbery has no apprehension that competent detectives will be after him until they get him. He knows there will be an investigation and that if he keeps out of the way for a few days or a few weeks he will be merely a man wanted. He will not have any fear of unremitting pursuit. Except for chance he's safe. Other short investigations of other crimes are being made and one bit of lawlessness crowds another off the assignment book. The method protects crime and consequently promotes it.

It is objected that the detective force hasn't enough men, even if it had competent men, to do police work in any other fashion. The answer is that it should have the men, both as to numbers and competence. Frequently a city is in luck if its detective force is not a collection agency for corrupt politics and if the crime contacts are not merely for extortion. It is only a confession of defeat to assume that good men and good methods cannot be had. Crime can be reduced only by catching and punishing criminals. They can be caught and punished, but not by the common methods of police work.

THE WICKERSHAM COMMISSION AND THE DRYS.

Clinton N. Howard, identified as chairman of the national united committee for law enforcement, has written President Hoover, for this organization and other drys, to "enter solemn protest" against the proposals of Henry W. Anderson of Virginia for modification of the eighteenth amendment. Mr. Anderson is a member of the Wickersham commission. He recommends a system of control by state determination with government regulation of production. Mr. Howard says Mr. Anderson is a member of Mr. Hoover's official family; that he is uttering sedition, and that he should be silenced or removed because he is promoting a public policy not included in the recommendations of the commission.

The drys should extend their protest to take in more ground. They should require the suppression or removal of a majority of the commissioners because their reports do not sustain the recommendation of the commission that the Volstead law be given further trial, but declare the hopelessness and folly of it. The contradiction of the general conclusion of the commission by nearly every member of it was a rollicking note in the frolic of the noble experiment. Yes, we have no bananas.

That the commissioners are members of Mr. Hoover's official family gains no credibility from the treatment their advice to the administration has been given by it, but it is true they were appointed for fast finding, even if the facts they found were ignored and the recommendations they made distorted. If the conclusions of nearly every one of them had been accepted the next message to congress would advise the repeal of the Volstead act and the submission of another amendment to the constitution.

Mr. Howard's little contribution to the frolic has at least the effect of calling attention again to the strange circumstances surrounding the publication of the report. Why did the false impression of the findings get nearly a twenty-four hour start on the real substance of it and for many people smother the truth? The explanation of this might be interesting.

A NATIONAL CANCER.

Alfonso of Spain is nimble and resourceful enough, tricky and adroit enough to outwit and outmaneuver the stubborn but clumsy republicans, who are betrayed when they trust to promises and suppressed when they try to use force. Monarchies for several centuries have rested upon a great illusion—that the institution is useful and entitled to respect. Alfonso gets the benefit of it. It creates an inertia which a thousand wrongs fail to animate. It has hallowed a type of mankind distinguished chiefly as the cradle of imbeciles, mediocrities, wasters, or monsters. Europe, medieval and modern, has seldom seen a good king and less frequently an able one, but the fatuity of subjects has preserved the crown. The anachronism, where it has survived, persists to the degradation of people who know how to get rid of it but will not. That requires a curious contemplation of their past.

The temperament of monarchy has been inherently vicious, and its circumstances have favored full development. When the organization of society was juvenile the attribute of divinity might have been a requisite in authority and heredity the only dependable source of government, but the juvenility was a coarse and brutalized one.

The English people were exceptional in European history in preserving checks upon their monarchy, but their lot could be regarded as fortunate only by comparisons with the abject subjects in Europe who suffered the destruction of their liberal institutions and their own subjection to unlimited autocracy. The Dutch alone made a stand against it. Elsewhere the populace succumbed to the ruthless egotisms in which rapacity and cruelty were natural elements.

The Tudors were strong willed and savage. The Stuarts were knavish, eccentric, and vicious. The Hanoverians were coarse brutes, flowering in the insanity of George III. and the blackguardism of George IV., the typical royal scoundrel. The Hapsburgs were wolves and jackals. The Bourbons were vainglorious fops, mostly empty-headed, but able to wreck France, destroy its wealth, starve its people, and massacre its best elements. The German princes were gluttonous little tyrants who patronized tinsel arts and governed their subjects through cowherds. Kingship has ranged from imbecility in Henry VI. of England, madness in Charles XII. of Sweden, brilliant bestiality in Peter the Great of Russia, uncanny neuroticism in Frederick the Great of Prussia, illusions of grandeur in Louis XIV. of France, religious insanity in Philip II. of Spain to the simple doltishness of George III. of Great Britain and of Louis XVI. of France.

The monarchical institution has been rotten for centuries. It has been the last thing to relinquish the methods of savagery and the last thing to be touched by civilization. Without a natural ability for anything but the exhibitions of the physical appetites, it has thwarted the decent instincts of humanity for centuries. It has stopped progress and liberty. It has fostered ignorance, destitution, squalor, and despair. The rule of its succession has preserved the seat of government for the class least capable of occupying it. Its wars have ravaged the earth.

The kings of Europe in medieval and modern times who qualified for any control over the lives of people could be counted on the fingers of one hand. The house of Vasa produced an able one in Gustavus Adolphus, the house of Orange another in William III. of Great Britain—and he was an elected king.

The monarchical institution as it survives in Europe is an anachronism representing medieval idiocy and privilege. It is in varying degrees a detriment wherever it exists. In Spain it is fatal to the rational aspirations of the people, whose only hopfeul future requires its destruction.

MUSIC IN THE MIDLANDS.

Mr. Percy Grainger, the pianist and composer, took occasion the other day to remark upon the accomplishments of the Grand Rapids orchestra. He was speaking at the conclusion of the concert season. He found much satisfaction in the fact that the organization, made up of musicians working, living, and studying in Grand Rapids, had become something more than a source of diversion to its members. Its accomplishments, he found, lifted it out of the class of provincial orchestras. It was capable of giving a distinguished interpretation of the works of the great composers.

Mr. Grainger's remarks on the Grand Rapids orchestra have been echoed by Mr. Rudolph Reuter in his comments upon a similar venture in Indianapolis. There a group of sixty players has been assembled under the direction of Mr. Ferdinand Schaefer. Indianapolis citizens are taking a justified pride in the accomplishment and are already thinking of sending their players on tour through the state to introduce symphony music to communities which are eager for it.

The fact that organizations like those in Grand Rapids and Indianapolis are thriving, that the enthusiasm of the organizers is reflected in the enthusiasm of the audiences, is a matter for much satisfaction. It is another evidence that the midlands are maturing.

Editorial of the Day

THE BELLED BUZZARD.

[Indianapolis News.]

To Daviess county goes the distinction of sending in the first report in 1931 of Indiana's belled buzzard. Noble Walls, a farmer living south of Washington, says he saw it fly over his farm and heard plainly the tinkling of the bell worn around the bird's neck. Last year the belled buzzard was reported first on March 20, it having flown over the farm of James Schwegmeier, near Benham, Ripley county. In 1929 first information about the bird came from near Brownstown, April 10.

Newspaper files show that the belled buzzard was seen near Bedford in October, 1913. Vevay reported it in 1915, and in 1922 it was in the vicinity of Bedford again. There was no report in 1923, but in October, 1924, the buzzard was seen east of Bedford. It was located eight miles south of Brownstown in 1926, close to Reddington in July, 1927, and in the Bedford neighborhood once more in April, 1928. There is an old story that T. J. Robbins, a farmer, tied a bell around a buzzard's neck on the Carter farm, one mile east of Livonia, in 1882. That would make the bird forty-nine years old this year.

Ohio attempted to claim some of the notoriety that the belled buzzard has made with reports of one near Lancaster last spring. This story said the bird was widely known there and that it has made its home in the cliffs overlooking Sugar Grove for several years. The southern part of Indiana has reported our buzzard often enough to make it an Indiana institution, and if other states have belled buzzards it seems likely that the explanation is a fondness of the Hoosier buzzard for occasional excursions beyond the Indiana boundary line.

STEALING IRISH HONORS.

A PHYSICIAN recently sent us a newspaper article which carried thirty pictures of heads of amateur prize fighters who were to contest in the semi-finals of the Golden Gloves contest. This is an annual boxing feature and draws fighters from widely scattered parts of the country. The process is one of elimination. Starting with a horde of contestants, there are meetings on meetings and fights on fights until the crowning festival to pick the survivors in eight classes.

Adding the attendance at the preliminary contests to that of the final, we get a sum total of interested citizens that exceeds the number of votes cast in some states in electing their governors. The number of fighters, first and last, runs into the hundreds.

Our physician correspondent called attention to the preponderance of boys with pointed chins, long under jaws, and narrow faces. This letter was referred to the sporting editor. He replied that the fighting fraternity have long recognized that prize fighters mostly had pointed chins. The explanation given by the brotherhood was that men ready for fighting had very little fat in the neck, and a fatless neck caused a pointed chin. Prize fighters do train fine—too fine for endurance, in my opinion—but this is not an explanation of that pointed chin. Certain groups of ladies have given a lot of thought to the subject of fatless necks, and they will take issue with the prize fighters.

The list of names of fighters includes Beattie, Smith, Long, Kaktus, Caserio, Nemeth, Wade, Keenan, Fontana, Phagan, Celebron, Rozina, Holden, Kastman, Sylvano, Muscarello, Gonzales, Kalvenoni, Metz, Edwards, Goodman, Scillaba, Maker, Jackson, Doxey, Rodak, Eliopoulas. These names would indicate that most of the force were the sons of foreign born parents. Neither the old American stock nor the old Celtic stock seems to be contributing much to our future fighting forces.

Of the boys who write me saying they are planning to take up prize fighting as a business, practically all have names which indicate that they are of the more recent immigration tides. In this group the pictures which show the longest faces are labeled with names that indicate these latter strains. This suggests an answer to my friend's question. Beyond this I do not know of any explanation. It could hardly be that prize fighters develop these long chins to serve as targets.

FUNGUS INFECTIONS.

H. W. B. writes:

1. What is a fungus infection?
2. Where located usually?
3. What are the symptoms?
4. Is it curable?
5. Does a knock or rupture of the blood vessel cause cancer?
6. What is the color of cancer swellings in the breast—red or blue?
7. If it is cancer, how long before death sets in if not cured?
8. Does a broken blood vessel ever heal or does it cause death?
9. A hard, blue lump and hard swellings of the breast means what?

REPLY.

1. Among the fungus infections are those with yeasts and molds. Among these are actinomycosis, blastomycosis, ringworm, and some cases of barber's itch.
2. The fungi usually infect folds in the skin. They may infect any part of the body. They occasionally infect the lungs and intestines.
3. Depends on the infection and its location.
4. Nearly always curable.
5. It may be a contributing cause.
6. May be either or there may be no change in color.
7. Neglected cancer of the breast is generally fatal in about two years.
8. Nearly always heals.
9. Too much else to guess about.

COMPENSATION ACT.

Chicago, March 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—While at work a jar of pickles fell off another worker's table, cutting the top of my foot, necessitating visits to the doctor and several stitches. I lost two days from work and worked two weeks in pain due to the injury. Am I entitled to pay for the lost time or the injury? If so, how much?

K. C. I.

You do not state the nature of your employment. If it is such as to be covered by the compensation act and your injury arose out of and in the course of your employment then you would be entitled to compensation, regardless of proof of negligence. The compensation act provides: "If the period of temporary total incapacity for work lasts for more than six working days, compensation equal to 50 per centum of the earnings, but not less than $7.50 nor more than $15 per week, beginning on the eighth day of such temporary total incapacity and continuing as long as the temporary total incapacity lasts, but not after the amount of compensation paid equals the amounts which would have been payable as a death benefit. Provided, that in the cases where temporary total incapacity for work continues for a period of four weeks from the day of the injury, then compensation shall commence on the day after the injury."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SIDEWALK MUST COME FIRST.

Chicago, March 27.—[Friend of the People.]—When is Taylor street from Canal to Halsted to be paved? It was to have been done three years ago and the property owners paid assessments and cut their buildings for the widening of the street and nothing has yet been done. The paving is bad and will soon be impassable. T. J. C.

The assessment has been confirmed for paving this street, but the street cannot be paved until the sidewalk is laid. Owing to the objections of property owners, our proceeding for a sidewalk on this street was dismissed by the Supreme court, and a new proceeding has been started. This will be hurried along as rapidly as possible. When the sidewalk has been laid we will be ready to pave the street, and we trust that the property owners will cause no further delay in our sidewalk proceeding.

JOSEPH P. McCLORY,
Secretary, Board of Local Improvements.

ICE AND SNOW ORDINANCE.

Chicago, March 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Isn't there a law compelling owners to keep sidewalks cleared of snow? The janitor of the property I have in mind does not clear the snow off the walk as others do. V. M. S.

No. The Supreme court has held such an ordinance invalid.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

SOMEBODY EXPLAIN THIS! WE CAN'T.

'Tis a mad world, my masters! New York is up in arms against the Democratic administration because of lawlessness, corrupt judges, venal policemen, and what not. Down with Democratic rule, shout the populace. Yesterday, in our own fair city of Chicago, came the climax of the great popular movement to throw out Republican misrule in Chicago. "Down with the Republicans!" cried the crowds. In one place bad government was placed on the shoulders of the Democrats; in the other place on the Republicans. And rightly so both times. Was it not the late Mr. William Shakespeare who coyly asked, "What's in a name?"

LIFE.

Life is what you make it. . . .
Interesting if true!
I've disproved the adage
Often, haven't you?
I'd say life's a vagrant,
Chasing painted dreams,
Climbing up a pine tree,
Wading purple streams.

Life's a glass of jelly,
Amber, maybe red,
Waiting in the cupboard
For a piece of bread.
Life is an alarm clock,
Set for 6 a. m.,
Life's a yellow tea-rose
With a thorny stem.

Life is crumbled star-dust
Sifting through the trees,
Life's a bag of music
Spilling on the breeze.
Life is gray rain flashing
Through a bright green spring,
Life's a stalk of rhubarb, . . .
Life is anything!

HELEN WELSHIMER.

"PHILADELPHIA May Be Run by City Manager."—A Yesterday Headline. Philadelphia may decide to put in a city manager, but neither he nor nobody else can ever make that sleepy old place run or move any faster than walk.

AND AFTER ALL the hurrah down in New York about magistrates buying their appointments, it turns out that nobody in all the wide, wide world can get up on the stand and testify that any of 'em really did. And out here in Chicago every few months we raise merry cain about Mr. Capone, look for him frenziedly for weeks, arrest him, summon him into court—and it always turns out that nobody in all the wide, wide world can get up on the stand and testify that he ever did anything except be a good lad and a comfort to his mother. We're getting that cynical about our crime news that we sometimes suspect it's nothing but publicity stunts. Maybe in these latest cases New York wanted some tourist business and Mr. Capone was drumming up trade in the beer racket.

IT'S SPRING! The circus is coming to town. But, shucks, every elephant has a tub in front of him to drink out of, and every tub has a water tap right there. A circus where there's no chance for a kid to get in by carrying water for the elephant is lacking a lot of kick.

REPORTS from England say that last night a man walking past the tomb of George III. heard a sound of some one rolling over and saying, "What jolly news! He won't hit me in the snoot now, so I'll go back to sleep again."

DOWN IN NEW YORK the auto experts say to quit putting your gear into neutral and coasting down hill. You may suddenly need your engine to control your car properly and a merry time you are going to have trying to shift your gears. Listen, brother autoists, too many of you are addicted to this vicious practice, but you can see how bad it is by watching the Republicans and Democrats; they're both trying to coast down Prohibition Hill in neutral, and it looks like somebody's going to go into the ditch when they try to throw their machines into gear.

"ALL FAREWELLS SHOULD BE GENTLY SPOKEN."

—Lawrence Hope.

Let us not part as lovers part
In bitterness; when love expends
Its little self within the heart
Can we not, say, part as friends?

Can we not be glad for those Days as brief as candles burning?
There's no less glory in the rose
That it must pass beyond returning.

Bravely its pristine pattern will Renew itself some lovelier spring,
Incarnadine upon some hill
Will know a sweeter flowering.

Here where the violet shadows creep
Leave the silence still unbroken,
And neither laugh and neither weep;

MARILYN.

LAGNIAPPE.

WE'RE ALL GLAD the election's over, and we're all pleased that Mr. Cermak was elected by such a big majority (writing this at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, an hour before the polls closed, it was more or less difficult to set down the exact figures), and now we'll commence to look around and take an interest in other things. But, gosh! We will miss the campaigning! Elections have become our great national sport. When's the next one? We can hardly wait.

"THE VICE PRESIDENT will be accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, and Mr. Gann."—Chicago Evening Post. And, please, his name is Edward Everett, too. R. H. L.

WELL, WE FINALLY GOT IT UNWRAPPED

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 8, 1915.

AVLONA.—It is rumored that 40,000 Moslem insurgents, officered by Turks and Germans, are concentrated at El Bassan in preparation for an attack on Durazzo and a subsequent invasion of Serbia. The insurgents are well equipped and provided with artillery which was smuggled from Austria.

NEW YORK.—The Sun's Rome correspondent cables that he has learned on excellent authority that Austria is about to sue for peace and that Germany, realizing the hopelessness of averting Italian intervention unless a settlement is made by the dual monarchy, has tacitly consented to her ally making a separate peace.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Peters announced that the German commerce raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich will intern at Newport News, Va. The ship will remain in the custody of the United States until the end of the war. The time fixed within which the cruiser should leave the waters of the United States expired at midnight. It feared to start because of hostile warships lying in wait for it in the Atlantic.

PARIS.—A furious assault on the German positions between the Meuse and the Moselle is being made by the French in continuation of their new offensive movement. The attack is general all along the front between the two rivers.

PETROGRAD.—Russian armies rolling down on Hungary have captured more than 60,000 Austrians and Germans in the last week of fighting in the Carpathians, the war office announced.

APRIL 8, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Bronzed, scarred, and burdened with trophies of the orient, 500 soldiers of the 30th volunteer infantry reached Chicago fresh from eighteen months of fighting in the Philippines. The regiment was recruited at Fort Sheridan and large crowds of the soldiers' friends met them at the station.

LONDON.—The Yokohama correspondent of the Daily Mail wires that shipping companies have been ordered to hold their vessels in readiness for transport service and that cruisers on the reserve list have been commissioned for active service. All leaves of absence to officers have been canceled. The Times' Tokio correspondent, however, says there is no truth whatever in the alarmist rumors of warlike preparations or peremptory demands. Russia's plans are a mystery, but officials do not confirm the reported breaking off of diplomatic relations with China. Russia is said to be willing to give Japan a free hand in Corea in return for Russian privileges in Manchuria.

MANILA.—Gen. Arcola, a colonel, three lieutenant colonels, 26 other officers, and 300 men surrendered at Nueva Caceres and took the oath of allegiance to the United States. Other leaders of the rebellion are hastening in to surrender.

NEW YORK.—Lawyer Albert T. Patrick, charged with the murder of the Texas millionaire, William Marsh Rice, in a statement declares he is not guilty, that Rice died a natural death and that the charge against him is a conspiracy to keep him imprisoned during the litigation over Rice's will.

APRIL 8, 1881.

CHICAGO.—The ceremony of conferring the pallium on Archbishop Feehan of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Chicago took place at the Church of the Holy Name. High mass was offered by Bishop Baltes of Alton and Bishop Hogan of Kansas City preached the sermon.

CHICAGO.—The West Side Railway company, through J. Russell Jones, offered an advance of 15 per cent to the striking conductors and drivers, but refused to take back the men recently discharged. The strikers refused the terms and it is probable that the west siders will have to resort to pedestrianism again today.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Garfield and his family, as soon as the weather grows warm, will move to the villa at the Soldiers' home, which has been the summer residence of Presidents Buchanan, Lincoln, Johnson, Grant, and Hayes.

FISH IN THE PARK LAGOONS.

Chicago, April 4.—The fish hatchery in Lincoln park raises thousands of fish annually at the expense of the city. Most of these small fish are taken out in Lake Michigan three or four miles and dumped. Now, any fisherman will tell you that less than 10 per cent of those small fish survive. The balance serve for a banquet for a few days for the lake trout and are practically a total loss. The few that survive eventually find their way into the nets of commercial fishermen; so where do the citizens of Chicago benefit? Why not use all the fish raised at Lincoln park hatchery to stock the lagoons in our different parks, making better fishing for our rod and line fishermen?

The city gets 25 cents per hour for each boat used by fishermen, no fishing being allowed from the shore. And all available boats are in use during the two weeks' open season in the fall.

If you could have seen the rod and line fishermen in Garfield park lagoon last fall, some with one nice bass, some that were lucky and had four or five, and had noticed the happy, eager expression on their faces as they made their casts or trolled their various lures, you could readily see the advantage of stocking the lagoons instead of raising minnows to feed the trout in Lake Michigan. C. E. E.

THE VOICE OF THE SHIRT.

Chicago, April 3.—My shirts, after the usual accumulation of city soot, used to come back cleansed and with a smiling countenance for the munificent sum of five cents apiece, beneficiaries of a laundry war. But now, even with their prim starchiness, they wilt and cringe before my eyes, for they, too, are caught in the "post-war deflation" or "prosperity reaction," and are deeply conscious of their present liability of twenty-two cents per lye bath. Consequently, I find a feeling of unrest among the brotherhood of shirts. The poor man's shirts complain of the long hours. Others more fortunate in their environment insist that the treatments they are receiving are not commensurate with their stations in life and are increasing their mortality rate.

WATCHING A WATCHDOG.

Chicago, April 3.—Uncle Walt has bought a young dog to train for watching and I am watching to see how he keeps the self-styled dog lovers from spoiling his dog.

I bought a dog for the same purpose. Among other things I taught it is to sit down when taken in stores and stay there while I do my shopping. Now my back is no more than turned when some slob is coaxing her to them. Either through selfishness or ignorance they encourage her to violate rules I have spent time in teaching her.

No one wants strangers cuddling their dog. It makes the dog harder to train and more likely to be stolen. Furthermore, if the dog snaps at them they are the first to brand her vicious. The person who owns the mut of nondescript breed that attracts no notice is in luck. The gushers don't bother them.

GRACE M. MENEY.

AUTOMATIC TURNSTILES.

Chicago, April 2.—A few weeks ago when in New York City I noted the automatic turnstiles in the subway. A station that formerly employed two people now only requires one, and that merely to give change. Think of the number of people that device alone has put out of work.

A few nights ago I happened to be at the "L" station at Madison and Wabash when a man was instructing the people to "drop your dime in and go through the stile." This is evidently a forerunner of the same condition here in Chicago.

I also heard that the subways contemplated the installation of machines to give change, too.

At least New York only charges a 5 cent fare, whereas we pay 10 cents, and even though the number of employes should be reduced I doubt if the fares here would be reduced. Even so, it is far better for the public to continue the higher fare and employment given to people. E. B. F.

GRATITUDE.

Chicago, April 3.—On Friday, March 27, I found a wrist watch at the Sheridan road "L" station. In the evening I reported the find to the lost and found department of the elevated lines at Wilson avenue. I left my name and address there with the instruction that if any one called for the watch they could communicate with me. The following evening I went to the Sheridan road station to report to them. I explained to the lady in the cage that I had notified the department at Wilson avenue. She flew into a rage when I told her that the watch was still in my possession and would remain there until the owner could identify it. I walked away, stunned at the treatment I had received. I never was more surprised in my life. Instead of being commended I was branded a thief. RUDOLPH M. BRICKER.

FORECLOSURES.

Chicago, April 3.—I read with a great deal of interest the article on page 6 of today's CHICAGO TRIBUNE headed "Realtors Act to Put Lid on Newest 'Racket,'" which is a foreclosure "racket" carried on by blood-sucking lawyers.

I have known of several cases, where the trust deed would permit, of lawyers having brought foreclosures on the maturity of one coupon. I know of two prominent masters in chancery who showed me tin boxes loaded down with master's certificates held in "hock" because the plaintiffs could not pay the attorneys' fees, masters' fees and court costs.

The whole thing is an outrage upon business interests in Chicago, and I thoroughly agree with Judge Feinberg in his speech on Wednesday arguing to the effect that the banks are largely to blame for the present situation because of their refusal to refinance small mortgage loans. WILLIAM B. AUSTIN.

CALL TO FAITHFUL.

Chicago, April 7.—Will you please announce that there will be a meeting of the Thompson organization Wednesday morning in the telephone booth in the Sherman hotel. They will get the large room. Yours truly,

A REPUBLICAN.

MILLIONAIRES OF INDIA JOIN GANDHI WAR FOR LIBERTY

Declare London Has Bled Nation to Death.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW DELHI, April 7.—India's "butter and egg" men hopped into Mahatma Gandhi's Nationalist bandwagon with vehemence today.

After the ascetic little saint, who looked anything but a business man in his homespun loin cloth and sandals, inaugurated the fourth annual meeting of the federation of Indian chambers of commerce and industry, most of whose members, in contrast to Gandhi, were dressed in the latest London fashion, the association approved unanimously of the fighting speech of its president, Lala Shriram, who made one of the bitterest attacks on British rule heard here since the Nationalist movement began.

Pays Tribute to Gandhi.

Paying high tribute to Gandhi for his leadership, the chamber of commerce president outlined how the ruthless British policy had bled India to death, and emphasized that the Indian business world would never consent to granting British traders equal rights with natives in any future constitution.

"We are not going to be led away by the cry of unfair discrimination raised by vested British interests," he said. "If British interests insist on unreasonable safeguards and guarantees in the future constitution, patriotic Indians should fight shy of them and make every effort to resort to other countries for necessary economic material and advice."

Says British Are Well Paid.

"The British say we are ungrateful for what they have done for us in the past," Shriram continued. "I do not minimize the pioneering work of the British business men in India, but I remind the world that they have been handsomely paid for their share of the work. If the British want our business, let them get it by good will, as do other countries, and not by force.

"Let me frankly tell the British that this nation is not going to allow for long its seas to be churned by foreign ships and let the resulting wealth go into pockets of foreigners."

Shriram accused the British government of being responsible for three major causes of India's economic chaos—first, the policy of keeping up an artificial exchange rate 12 per cent higher than before the war; second, heavy borrowing at high rates of interest; third, crushing taxation, the proceeds of which largely go to maintain a foreign army and bureaucracy.

"I say that unless the present situation is properly handled it will degenerate into something I dread to contemplate. The situation can yet be saved if India is conceded her birthright without further delay," he declared.

Refuses to Reduce Demands.

"Let there be no mistake about the unanimity of the Indian demand for its object. We want nothing else but dominion status. We will take nothing less. If there are any reservations of power, we must be convinced that other dominion constitutions contain similar reservations.

"No constitution which does not enable the Nationalist government to improve the present wretched condition of the masses will be worth the paper it is written on. Even reservations for military defense must be adjusted to our capacity.

"Given assurance of freedom, we will be reasonable and just with the British. But if there is an attempt to deny that substance, then God help both India and England."

Passenger Blimp to Have Base at Sky Harbor Port

A blimp will likely be added to the collection of aircraft that will fly about Chicago's skies this summer. Maj. R. W. Schroeder, manager of Sky Harbor, yesterday received word that the Goodyear company is planning on establishing a base here for the blimp Defender. The airship is equipped with two motors and will carry passengers.

HARMON TROPHY IS GIVEN TO DOOLITTLE FOR AVIATION FEATS

Cleveland, O., April 7.—(AP)—Aviation paid one of its highest honors here today to Maj. James H. Doolittle, the first pilot to take off, fly, and land a plane without being able to see out of its cockpit.

Using radio beacons and other special equipment, and with the cockpit covered over with canvas, Maj. Doolittle accomplished the daring feat three years ago at Mitchel field, and today the Harmony trophy of the Ligue International des Aviateurs was awarded to him in recognition.

Hundreds of aviators, including many of the world's most famous, were present when the award was made by Col. William Avery Bishop, V. C., famous Canadian ace of aviation.

Col. Bishop also presented a scroll to Parmely Herrick, son of the late Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, as a token of the league's appreciation of the ambassador's encouragement of flying.

"The history and record of the Lafayette escadrille will remain forever in the pages of history as a memorial to Mr. Herrick," Col. Bishop said. The ambassador had helped in its founding.

MOBILIZE 17,584 LEGIONNAIRES IN OHIO BY RADIO

Columbus, O., April 7.—(AP)—The American Legion of Ohio today stood as an organization ready to answer the call of an emergency.

Its fitness was demonstrated last night, when, for the first time in the history of the Ohio department, a state wide call for mobilization of emergency units was sent out by radio. In answer to the summons 17,584 legionnaires assembled in 314 communities. In addition 4,144 Boy Scouts and 1,478 members of the legion auxiliary responded.

The radio order for mobilization attracted attention in many parts of the nation and was mistaken for an order mobilizing the Ohio National Guard.

NETTLETON NEFF, REALTY BROKER, TAKES OWN LIFE

Nettleton Neff, 50 years old, real estate broker, shot and killed himself yesterday afternoon after locking himself in his office at room 508 in the Railway Exchange building, 80 East Jackson boulevard. The police could discover no motive for the suicide.

G. A. Woodman, president of the Butler Railway Supply company, who occupies an office adjoining that of Neff, heard the shot and notified K. B. Magnuson, building superintendent. Together they broke open the locked office door and found Neff lying on the floor, a .45 caliber revolver near his hand. He had shot himself in the right temple.

List of Kin on Desk.

On a desk was a list of Neff's relatives and a request that his body be sent to the Arntzen undertaking rooms at 810 North Clark street.

Neff lived at 50 Bellevue place with his daughter, Barbara, 23 years old. Another daughter, Louise, 19 years old, is attending the Dobbs Ferry school in New York. Mrs. Katherine Scudder Neff, wife of the broker, was burned to death in August, 1926, in a mysterious fire which broke out in the Neff summer cottage at Roaring Brook, Mich.

Son is Found Hanged.

In June, 1928, Neff's son, William Wayne Neff, 21 years old, a junior at Harvard university, disappeared. A search of two weeks resulted in the finding of the young man's body hanging in an apple tree, in a secluded spot two miles from Stonington, Conn. Indications were the youth had taken his own life. Neither family nor friends could offer any motive for the death.

Former Produce Broker Ends Life with Poison

Raymond Riddell, 47 years old, a former butter and egg broker, who lived with his wife at the Hunt hotel, 856 Wilson avenue, committed suicide with poison yesterday in the Sheridan Plaza hotel, 4605 Sheridan road. He had been unemployed for six months. He left a note to his wife which read: "I am going to leave you. You can get along better without me."

Amazing Prescription, ACIDINE, Ends Gas, Pain, After All Else Failed

"I suffered for months with acid indigestion and gas on the stomach," writes Mr. C. Bedford of Detroit, Michigan. "Couldn't eat a meal without being troubled with gas and pain, also dizzy feeling. MRS. A. C. W., 1463 WARNER AVE., CHICAGO.—"Some time ago I wanted a new piano. I looked in the Tribune and found an ad, 'Piano for sale on account of leaving town.' I bought a splendid instrument through this ad. Then I advertised my old piano for sale. My son laughed, saying I might as well chop it up, as no one will buy that old thing. Four people came to buy. I sold it to a music teacher who wanted it for a practice piano for pupils who did not have one. The piano I bought I saved $400 on and the $30 I received for mine was like finding that amount."

M. J. C., 2173 LINCOLN AVE., CHICAGO.—"I inserted an advertisement in the Sunday Tribune concerning an apartment to rent at a reduced price for a party who would render service in a two apartment building. I put in my phone number and, starting early Sunday morning, as evening number of calls came in. The telephone was actually busy from early in the morning until late at night, and not only that, but calls came in the rest of the week. I rented the apartment Monday, and rented four other apartments to the prospects who had called up. The Tribune Want Ad Section is certainly going to get all my advertising from now on!"

MRS. E. F. E., 1636 SHERIDAN ROAD, CHICAGO.—"One Sunday night, Mr. and Mrs. X., on the last lap of their drive from California, stopped in Joliet, Ill., and purchased a Chicago Sunday Tribune. Mrs. X. scanned the lists of Furnished Apartments and read the following: 'Exceptional opportunity; 4 room apartment; near Loyola U.; Sublease, Phone Bri.' . . . At 8 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. X. reached Chicago. At 8:30 they telephoned and made an appointment to see the apartment. Next morning at 10, they came, they inspected, they rented. It suited their needs exactly as to price and furnishings. As a result we disposed of our apartment and were free to accept a very fine business opportunity out of town. In addition, Mr. and Mrs. X. secured a home in less than 24 hours after arriving."

MRS. R. A. F., 915 BUENA PARK TERRACE, CHICAGO.—"Moving to Chicago, we found we had no use for our book case, but we did need a desk for our den. Burton and Ezra Cook exchanged for the case, but I decided to try it. I inserted a short ad telling what I had and what I wanted. In a few hours after the paper appeared a woman on the south side called me and said she needed a book case and had an item for sale. She came to see our book case, liked it, took it home and was delighted with our bargain and described her desk, saying she would be glad to trade even. Now we have a lovely oak desk in place of something for which we had no use."

MRS. F. F., 436 N. LOMBARD AVE., OAK PARK, ILL.—"I had had a financial consulting no. I decided to give myself a luxury, a desired pleasure but a real one. The article was a Bell & Howell movie camera and carrying case. Looking through the camera ads in the Tribune one Sunday morning and found one bearing about the same a camera as I had in mind. The telephone number given in the ad resulted in an appointment with the owner of the camera, and we made a very satisfactory transaction. That afternoon Quest wasn't it?"

DROUGHT AREAS ARE RECOVERING, HOOVER IS TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde today informed President Hoover that the drought emergency in the stricken areas of the south was practically over. The secretary rendered his report to the President following a personal tour through the regions aided by the Red Cross and by loans from the federal government.

Secretary Hyde reported that the Red Cross had alleviated human suffering, while federal loans had enabled the farmers to start new crops in the areas burned out by the drought of last summer and fall. He also added that soaking rains had definitely ended the drought and that with normal rainfall from now on a big crop could be expected.

Talk with Reporters.

Immediately following his conference with the President Mr. Hyde repeated his report to newspaper men who had arrived at the White House for the semi-weekly press conference with Mr. Hoover.

At this time he stated that up to this morning the government had made 186,632 loans in the drought area under the drought relief program voted at the short session. Of the $55,000,000 voted for drought purposes, $27,472,000 has been expended.

"These drought relief loans have undoubtedly reached the spot," Mr. Hyde said. "All through Tennessee and the northern part of Mississippi and Louisiana and in Arkansas you can see new garden fences. The ground is prepared and they have the seed and means for making a new crop."

"Are those loans made on collateral?" Mr. Hyde was asked.

"The only collateral with them is the crop to be made," he replied. "No, we have been very lenient in scanning all loans for a $100 or less, and have indulged in rather hopeful optimism about the crop they are going to have."

Lake Shipping Officially Opens; Boats on Journeys

Navigation of the great lakes officially opened yesterday, but there was little significance in the opening date, for the lakes have been open for shipping for fifteen days. The mild weather of last winter caused less ice formation in the Soo channel, and for that reason the channel was open sooner this spring. Chicago lake shippers state. Ore boats are already on their way to Chicago on their first spring trip.

SHANGHAI, April 7.—The United States, for the first time in its long commercial contact with China, led in the foreign trade of Shanghai for 1930, according to a report issued by Julean Arnold, American commercial attaché here.

According to Mr. Arnold's figures, the relations of the various nations in the trade of Shanghai was as follows: United States, 26 per cent; Japan, 17 per cent; Great Britain [United Kingdom], 11 per cent; India, 11 per cent; Hongkong [British colony], 5 per cent; Germany, 5 per cent; France, 4½ per cent; Dutch East Indies, 4 per cent. Shanghai's foreign trade, including imports and exports for 1930 amounted to about $452,000,000. This figure represented about 40 per cent of China's total foreign commerce for the year.

List of U. S. Exports.

America's chief exports to Shanghai included kerosene oil and gasoline, cigarets and leaf tobacco, raw cotton, machinery, motor cars and trucks and various food products.

In Mr. Arnold's opinion, the prospects for China's trade in 1931 with the United States depends upon several conditions, one of which is the prospect of soviet Russia extending its economic policy to China. Apparently he means by this the prospects for Russian "dumping" in China similar to that which has taken place in other parts of the world. The absence of a commercial treaty between China and Russia since China broke off relations with the soviet in 1927 has placed China beyond the scope of the soviet dumping policy, but recently Moscow has been pressing China for a resumption of relations.

Recently a number of soviet state commercial agencies have opened offices in the Shanghai international settlement, the purpose apparently being to be on the spot when and if China does resume relations.

Seek to Sell Kerosene.

Much attention has been attracted by the opening here of an office of the soviet naphtha syndicate and negotiations for the sale of large quantities of soviet kerosene and gasoline in the Chinese market. Should this deal go through and receive the approval of the Nanking government, it would doubtless adversely affect American sales of similar oil products in this market.

Other elements likely a cause a disruption of Chinese American trade in the present year are a possible renewal of civil strife in China, difficulty which the Nanking government is experiencing in the suppression of communism in the interior provinces, continued depreciation of silver, which has reduced China's ability to purchase foreign goods, uncertain attitude of China's government regarding foreign investments, possible changes in the Chinese tariff and uncertainty regarding the outcome of present negotiations respecting exterritoriality.

BOARD APPROVES OF WHIPPING PUPILS IF OTHER MEANS FAIL

Oneida, N. Y., April 7.—(AP)—Whipping of unruly pupils "when all other means fail" has been given the approval of the board of education at Oneida Castle, near-by hamlet of 500 residents.

A formal statement today disclosed eight pupils had been whipped with rubber hose during the school year.

"When all other means fail the rubber hose is resorted to, invariably with good results," said the statement signed by Kirk Keene, president, and other members of the board. "To deprive the teacher, who, by the way always administers such punishment reluctantly, of this means of discipline would, in our opinion, remove an important factor of control and perhaps greatly lower her standard of efficiency.

"On the other hand, the board insists that when it is necessary to use the rubber hose it be used with discretion."

WHIPPING POSTS FOR MICHIGAN'S PRISONS ASKED

Lansing, Mich., April 7.—[Special.]—Defeat of capital punishment in the state-wide referendum yesterday on the Foster electric chair bill brought out of committee today the Culver measure which would establish the whipping post in Michigan prisons.

The house committee on state police and public safety, of which Representative Charles Culver, Detroit, is chairman, reported favorably his bill would provide lashings for criminals convicted of major crimes. Such convicts might be sentenced to receive "not more than six strokes at any one time of a porous cowhide strap two inches in width, two and one-half feet in length, and one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness, on the bare back, well laid on, at intervals to be designated by the court."

A statement issued by Gov. Wilber M. Brucker on the rejection of the death penalty, which he favored, was taken as indicative that the excutive might lend his influence to passage of the Culver measure.

SEEK 45 DAYS' DELAY IN SENDING FALL TO PRISON

Washington, D. C., April 7.—(AP)—A decision to file a stay, extending for 30 days the time of invoking the court mandate which might send Albert B. Fall to prison for a year, was announced today at the office of Frank J. Hogan, counsel for the former interior secretary.

The District of Columbia court of appeals yesterday affirmed the decision of a lower court, which sentenced Fall to a year in jail and a fine of $100,000 for accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny, oil operator, for signing a lease on the naval oil reserve at Elk Hills, Cal.

Hogan cabled his office from Europe, suggesting the stay. Since 15 days is allowed before the mandate to send Fall to jail is invoked, the stay would give him 45 days more of certain freedom.

Fall, now more than 69 years of age, at his ranch near Three Rivers, N. M., said yesterday it was "remotely possible but not probable" that he would appeal to the Supreme court.

FATHER AND HIS 7 CHILDREN DIE IN BLAZING HOME

Son, Sole Survivor, Not Expected to Live.

Gallipolis, O., April 7.—(AP)—The charred bodies of a father and seven of his motherless children were recovered today from the ruins of their log cabin on the banks of the Ohio river at Swan Creek. They met death when fire destroyed the humble home early today.

The dead:

James White, 59; Mary, 20; James, 18; John, 14; Ira, 9; May, 5; and two twin daughters, Nora and Dora, 3.

Only one of the family escaped the flames—12 year old George White, who, although seriously burned, staggered to the nearest neighbor and sounded the alarm. When neighbors reached the scene the fire had taken its toll.

Death first reached the White family three years ago, the mother dying when the twins were born.

Dr. Francis W. Shane, Gallia county coroner, said the fire probably started when a lump of burning coal fell onto the floor from a grate.

George, the only survivor, was so badly burned and affected internally by inhaling flames that Dr. Shane said he held little hope for his recovery.

NEW LIQUOR POISON BLINDS, THEN KILLS 30 NEW YORK VICTIMS

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—A new flood of bad liquor, which blinded its victims before they died, has cost the lives of thirty men—most of them Bowery and lower east side "shock joint" habitues—since April 1, it was disclosed today by Dr. Alexander Gettler, city toxicologist.

Many of the poisonad tipplers staggered into Bellevue hospital. Others were found unconscious in the streets, where they had fallen after imbibing the fatal potion.

As a result of the wholesale fatalities detectives have been investigating the suspected speakeasies for several days. In one place, where eleven of the dead men were said to have been patrons, the detectives bought a bottle of booze and took it to Dr. Gettler for analysis. The analysis showed a percentage of ethyl alcohol. Arrests of the speakeasy operators were expected as a result.

2 OF 9 NEGROES GUILTY OF RAPE; TO DIE IN CHAIR

Trial of Third Begins as Judge Gets Threat.

Scottsboro, Ala., April 7.—(AP)—The first two of nine Negroes to face trial for an attack on two young white girls who were traveling aboard a freight train March 24 today were convicted and sentenced to death in the electric chair.

While the jury was out for an hour and 55 minutes deliberating the case of Charlie Weems, 21, and Clarence Norris, 19, the first two convicted, trial of Heywood Patterson, 17, was begun.

The courtroom was packed when the jury returned the Weems-Norris verdict. A demonstration began and was checked only by the ejection of numerous persons.

Demand Venue Change.

Judge C. A. Hawkins announced he had received a telegram from Huntsville, Ala., signed "The International Labor Defense, New York City," that charged the Negroes were being tried on "trumped up" charges and demanded a change of venue and new trial for all of them.

The telegram protested the "attempt at legal lynching of Negro workers on framed up charges," and added that Judge Hawkins would be held "personally responsible." Police were asked to hunt for the sender, but late today reported they had been unsuccessful.

This mountain town of 2,300 population seemed almost deserted today. Few of the estimated 10,000 who came yesterday returned.

Trial Moves Rapidly.

National Guard machine gun squads were on duty, their snub-nosed weapons menacing the two entrances to the court square. Sentries posted at the court house doors relaxed but persons going into the courtroom were searched for weapons.

The trial of Weems and Norris moved rapidly. The witnesses included the second victim of the Negroes who identified them, and two men who saw five of the seven white youths accompanying the girls, thrown from the train near Stevenson.

The two Negroes were the only witnesses called by the defense. Weems denied participating in the attack but accused the seven not on trial. Norris accused all eight, but denied his own guilt.

BOB CLERK AND GUEST IN HOTEL.

Three men armed with sawed off shotguns early yesterday robbed E. V. Fitzpatrick, a clerk, of $21, and A. Newar, a guest, of $130 and a watch, in the Washington Pine West Apartment hotel, 5511 Washington boulevard.

ASK REVOCATION OF LICENSES OF FIVE PHYSICIANS

Revocation of the licenses of five physicians was recommended yesterday by the medical examination board of the state department of registration and education. Two of the physicians are now serving sentences in Joliet penitentiary for murder as a result of illegal operations, two have been adjudged insane, and one is serving a sentence in the county jail on a narcotic conviction.

Dr. Ethel Rice, who practicel in Du Page county, was adjudged insane in 1930 and is now at the Elgin state hospital. Dr. O. W. Hesse of Chicago was recently released from the Chicago State Hospital for the Insane after being confined for several months. It was indicated that his license might be restored in the future. Dr. James Murphy of Chicago is serving a county jail sentence for violation of the Harrison narcotics act.

38 OCEAN LINERS NOW GET TRIBUNE SHIP NEWSPAPER

125 Vessels Also Receive Wireless Dispatches.

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—Expansion of the ship newspaper and ship news service of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to embrace 13 trans-Atlantic liners of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Limited, was announced yesterday.

Effective as of April 1, the same ship paper which has been supplied for the last eight years to 25 ships of the White Star, United States lines, Red Star, and Atlantic Transport, now is being furnished to all passengers using the 13 principal Canadian Pacific ships. The total number of liners now being served by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Ocean Times, therefore, has been raised to 38, which represents the largest group of vessels now circulating any daily ship newspaper.

Service for Public.

While making known the expanded ship newspaper service, it also was announced that through the Radio-Marine corporation, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE now is serving more than 125 ships with a nightly wireless news dispatch, consisting of more than 1,500 words. The sale of this ship news, which heretofore has been undertaken by the Radio-Marine corporation, now is being handled both by the Radio-Marine corporation and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Ocean Times. The news service is sold separately to any and all ship subscribers.

"THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE," the announcement read, "has for some years gone to considerable expense to supply ships in the Atlantic with American news. The service is taken advantage of by practically all steamship lines which publish and circulate ship newspapers, and by numerous other steamship lines which supply the passengers through bulletin boards.

"The news service is not, however, limited to passenger ships. It is made available for freight vessels for the benefit of the crews. Numerous yachts, including those of W. K. Vanderbilt and J. P. Morgan, also subscribe to this ship news service.

Hoover Ship Receives News.

"Recently THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, through the Radio-Marine corporation, supplied President Hoover and his party on the U. S. S. Arizona with news of a national and international nature. In addition to the regular nightly ship news dispatch of 1,500 words, which was copied on the U. S. S. Arizona for President Hoover, special bulletins were sent at one hour intervals throughout the day. In this manner President Hoover and his party were kept in hourly touch with the news of the world."

With regard to the extension of THE TRIBUNE'S ship newspaper to the Canadian Pacific vessels, it was announced that although 38 ships now are being served as against only 25 heretofore, there will be no increase in advertising rates until after June 1. Meanwhile, advertisers who contract for space will be granted the extra Canadian Pacific circulation as a bonus. After June 1 advertisers who wish to extend their publicity to the 13 Canadian Pacific ships will be called upon to pay a 50 per cent increase in the eastbound rates. There will be no increase on the westbound rates, at least for the remainder of this year, and the Canadian Pacific circulation will continue as a straight bonus.

Circulate on These Ships.

WHITE STAR LINE.

UNITED STATES LINES.

CANADIAN PACIFIC.

RED STAR LINE.
Westernland, Belgenland, Lapland, Pennland.

ATLANTIC TRANSPORT.
Minnewaska, Minnetonka.

Developed in 10 Years.

In the last ten years the ship newspaper business has developed and been organized upon a thorough basis. In addition to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Ocean Times, which in the future will have 38 ships, the principal ship newspapers are as follows:

Atlantic Daily Mail, published by the London Daily Mail on 22 ships of the Cunard line.

All of these ship newspapers are supplied with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE wireless news and some of them receive in addition radio reports from their home lands.

All told, the ship newspaper and news service business has reached the stage of a large size industry.

RUSSIA TO PUNISH "ATROCITIES" TO FARM TRACTORS

Decrees Machinery Must Be Protected.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, March 16.—[By Mail.]—Cruelty to animals has never been covered by law in Russia, but "brutality" to tractors and other mechanized farm machinery will be made a criminal offense, according to plans of J. A. Yakovlev, commissar of agriculture, in a statement on the status and aims of collective farms.

"Careless handling of tractors must be stamped out," he said. "I have recommended the government to make negligence and neglect or destruction of them and other mechanical farm apparatus liable to criminal proceedings, as sabotage and an offense against the state."

The commissar outlined developments reached thus far in the scheme to "industrialize" the land and explained the ultimate scope of the project, which is nothing short of collectivization of the entire agrarian population and farms in the soviet union.

Outlines Farm Expansion.

"State grain farms began their expansion in 1928," he said. "The grain trust was organized then, and in two years the sown areas has increased from a little more than 2,500,000 acres to nearly 10,000,000 acres. In 1931 we expect it to expand to 25,000,000 acres and by 1933 to nearly 50,000,000 acres.

"Other state farming trusts have been organized for live stock and industrial cultures. In 1930 the live-stock trust operated 140 farms of 50,000,000 acres with 1,200,000 head of cattle. The swine trust has 3,000,000 acres and 218,000 head of swine, the sheep trust, 30,000,000 acres and 2,700,000 sheep; the butter trust, 50,000 cows, the flax trust, a sown area of 20,000 acres on 55 farms and the cotton trust, 112,000 acres of irrigated land.

"All of these projects are expanding. The live stock trust will have 7,000,000 head by 1933, the hog trust, 6,500,000 sows, and the sheep trust, 15,000,000 sheep."

Tractors a Great Aid.

Tractors on stations scattered over the soviet union are aiding the farming organization to a remarkable degree. Last year they ploughed 2,000,000 acres for poor peasants, who would otherwise have been unable to cultivate their holdings.

"Collective farms are increasing at an impressive rate," Yakolev continued. "In 1928, they numbered about 400,000 households, and on Feb. 20, 1931, they totalled 8,250,000 families, or one-third of all the peasants in the country. Basic grain regions count 67 per cent of the peasants in collectives, while lesser grain producing areas aggregate about 35 per cent and the non-grain regions, 19 per cent.

"We estimate that collective farms sow twice as much per household as individual farmers—nearly 13 acres per family compared to 7 acres—due, chiefly, to machinery and state aid. Better methods of cultivation make harvest returns even more important. collectivized peasants getting a 50 per cent larger crop than the individual peasants, notwithstanding the fact that collective farms are comprised of a great majority of what was the poor peasant class.

"Marketable grain in 1930 was 60 per cent greater than prewar figures, and if comparatively less was available for export it was because a greater urban population of industrial workers require more food from the land."

This year, Yakovlev stated, 120,000 tractors will be available for collective farms, and $384,000,000 worth of other agricultural machinery, compared to $200,000,000 worth last year. Other items are 7,000 motor trucks and automobiles, 2,300,000 tons of fertilizer, $20,000,000 worth of chemicals to fight pests, and $700,000,000 of state credits, chiefly long term.

Commissar Yakovlev believes that the new ruling whereby proceeds from collective farms will be divided among actual workers, instead of by "eaters," that is, the mouths each peasant had to feed in his family, will have beneficial results ultimately.

Finds Old System Unfair.

"The old system of dividing the proceeds according to the members in a family of peasants, even including dependants and others, was demoralizing and essentially unfair," he said. "The poor organization in harvesting flax and cotton was also injurious, as many of the workers on these farms drifted away to construction jobs and left many farms shorthanded."

Last year 25,000 workers from factories were sent to the country to aid in organizing collective farms. During this winter 20,000 experienced "collectivized peasants" organized their brethren all over the country.

"By the end of the five year plan the whole of the soviet union will be collectivized," the commissar concluded.

RESIGNS FROM STATE DEPARTMENT TO JOIN LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Washington, D. C., April 7.—[Special.]—Francis C. de Wolf, an assistant solicitor of the state department assigned to the western European division, has accepted a position with the disarmament section of the league of nations, it was learned today. He will resign at once and leave about April 25 for Geneva to aid in the preparations for the world arms conference next February.

The action of the league in recruiting De Wolf from the American state department was interpreted in diplomatic circles as another indication of the league's anxiety to connect the United States as closely as possible to the 1932 conference. De Wolf, as a member of the division handling naval disarmament matters, is closely conversant with the American position.

FRANCE CHARGES RUSSIANS STOLE 5 MILLIONS GOLD

U. S. Banks Accused of Aiding Disposal.

New York, April 7.—(AP)—A federal court jury today heard from opposing counsel two theories in the mysterious disappearance of $5,000,000 in gold which the Bank of France had on deposit in Petrograd banks when revolution swept the country.

The Bank of France, plaintiff in a suit against the merged Chase National and Equitable Trust company, charged through counsel that the gold was "stolen" by the soviet government and that the American banks, acting as that government's agents, attempted to sell the gold to the United States treasury.

The American banks, defendants in the action, claimed that the gold they received was the property of the soviet and not the Bank of France, as it alleges. They contended through counsel that the gold received by them in 1928 for sale to the United States was mined in Russia after 1923 and refined in 1926.

Charges Banks Knew of Theft.

"We don't know what became of the gold that belonged to the Bank of France," William Dean Embree, counsel for the defendants, said in his opening statement. "It went in the wildest chaos the world has ever known."

Nathan L. Miller, former governor of New York and attorney for the Bank of France, contended that the American banks took the gold from "a party who they knew stole it."

He promised the jury he would establish that the American banks took the gold to the treasury department, "either to persuade the government to change its ruling or persuade it to disregard its ruling that it would not recognize the soviet Russian government.

Treasury Refused to Buy.

Mr. Miller said the treasury department refused to buy the gold because its title was questionable.

He said that a month after the Bank of France started suit to recover the gold as its property, the defendant banks shipped the gold to Russia.

"The defendants knew that their government refused to recognize soviet Russia, not on the ground that a small minority had seized control of Russia and still maintained it, but on the ground that that band professed principles and does acts in execution of those principles, the very acts involved in this case, repugnant to the laws of civilized people."

Mr. Embree decried Mr. Miller's charges against the soviet régime, declaring "as a self-respecting American I am heartily ashamed of what was told you this morning." He compared conditions of the old Russian peasant with the present Russian citizen.

Brings in Stimson's Name.

Secretary of State Stimson's name was brought into the trial by Mr. Embree, who said that attorneys for the Bank of France wrote him on April 9, 1929, concerning the status of relations between the United States and soviet Russia.

"Mr. Stimson replied that this country had not recognized soviet Russia as having a government by law, by fact or of paramount force, nor were its acts and decrees regarded as those of a recognized government," Mr. Embree said.

Great Effect Is Shown in War and Peace.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"THE CENTURY OF THE REAPER," by Cyrus McCormick [Houghton-Mifflin] is published today. It is the history of a Chicago industry which also had a large part in the history of the middle west, and it is written by a Chicagoan. One might have hoped from it vivid pictures of Chicago's growth, "The Century of the Reaper" isn't the place to find those pictures, it seems, nor is its author the one to paint them.

CYRUS McCORMICK.

"The Century of the Reaper" is, rather, a documentary history of the inception and growth of the International Harvester company. It is not even a biographical picture of its founder or of his successors in its management, except in their relation to the company.

Not long ago Prof. William T. Hutchinson of the University of Chicago published the first volume of an impressive—and literarily important—biography of Cyrus Hall McCormick, the inventor of the reaper. The author of "The Century of the Reaper" says, "Most of all I have relied for the facts relating to my grandfather's career on his biographer, Prof. William T. Hutchinson." He might have drawn an unforgettable portrait himself if he had been more concerned with the human and less with the material and economic phases of his subject.

Young Mr. McCormick says his grandfather was a pioneer economist as well as a pioneer manufacturer; that his were among the first of the factories operated with what came to be called "modern" methods. The McCormick system of credits to farmers, in the early days before "farm credits" were an established fact, foreshadowed those well known economic panacea.

Members of this generation are likely to think of Cyrus Hall McCormick rather as the founder of a business dynasty than as a great inventor. How his invention—not his business acumen—was looked on during the days of the civil war is evident in a statement which was made by Edwin M. Stanton, secretary of war in Lincoln's cabinet. "The reaper is to the north," he said, "what slavery is to the south. By taking the place of regiments of young men in the western harvest fields it releases them to do battle for the Union at the front, and at the same time keeps up the supply of bread for the nation and the nation's armies. Thus, without McCormick's invention, I fear the north could not win and the Union would be dismembered."

Stanton then was an admirer of the inventor of the reaper. Not long before that he and Abraham Lincoln had argued against him in the courts in one of the countless law suits with which the life of Cyrus Hall McCormick teemed. It was Lincoln's first big case, so young Mr. McCormick says, and he and Stanton won it. The inventor's patents ran out after fourteen years and for the rest of his life he had no more right to the use of his own first inventions than any other manufacturer who chose to make use of them. The fact that with that handicap he became preëminent in the field of farm machinery manufacture argues for his supremacy as a business man as well as an inventor, so the author of "The Century of the Reaper" says.

But Cyrus Hall McCormick was an old fashioned business man. He never had a secretary, his grandson writes. His wife copied his voluminous letters. "His filing cabinet was his brain or the drawer of his desk." And as he lay dying he said to his wife, "Life is a battle." As a history of great American industry, "The Century of the Reaper" is interesting in its facts and implications. The author has done, with accuracy and devotion, the work of assembling the facts. Aside from young Mr. McCormick's natural admiration for, but rather flowery appreciation of his progenitors, the implications are left, as they should be, to the intelligent reader. But you mustn't expect anything like, for instance, Ida M. Tarbell's "History of the Standard Oil Company."

HUNGARIAN MEN 30 YEARS OLD NOW HAVE POLITICAL UNION

BUDAPEST, April 7.—Archduke Albrecht, one time pretender to the holy crown of Stephen as king of Hungary, was elected president of the "Union of Thirty."

This union recently was founded by a group of men, thirty years old, with a view to protect the interests of men of that age in public affairs. They claim that all men, now about thirty years of age, who served during the world war in the Hungarian army, lost several years in their studies and that the state should recompensate them for this by granting them special privileges in regard to getting jobs.

Statutes were drawn up which will be presented to the government. Not only should the government be obliged to take in their employ a certain number of men of thirty, but all others, salaried or independent, should get a tax reduction.

It is said that the government looks favorable to the Union of Thirty, because it is realized that these men actually lost the most valuable years in the service.

Good morning!

The old stage play that wrung tears from the eyes of another generation now comes to life as a talking picture.

A brief prologue takes you into a present day small town hotel parlor, occupied by drummers who wish they had a wee bit summat to wet the whistles and tide them over a dull Sunday. They ask the village doctor for a prescription. They vociferate: "America'll some day be a dried up prune
If we don't get back the old saloon!" [Or words to that effect.]

Fadeout!

And then you learn about Joe Morgan, who, in Slade's saloon which was once on the spot where doctor and listeners are sitting, came to sad straits through whisky and the men who purveyed it.

William Farnum plays the miller in good old melodramatic fashion and several swell makeups. Thomas Santschi is Slade—and O, what a villain! Patty Lou Lynd portrays feelingly the poor little sick daughter of the miller, who, night after night, comes to Slade's to cry: "Father, dear father, come home with me now . . ." Other characters are intelligently interpreted.

The picture is, of course, old vintage all the way through. But it has its moments and can be worn as a cockade in the caps of those who think that Volstead's right.

Over the shoddy, shopworn material, which is the story of "Dishonored," cast, director and photographer have cast a sort of a moonlight glamour. What they could not do, apparently, was to keep the picture from dragging.

Marlene Dietrich, is not as exciting as she was in "Morocco" and "The Blue Angel," but continues to justify claims that she's a fine actress. Victor McLaglen, in a straight lead, looks imposing in his uniforms and gives a commendable performance that he was not able to keep entirely free from the flavor of his work in "The Cock-Eyed World," et al. You keep expecting him to burst out with a "Sez YOU!" He never does, however. Other characterizations are cleverly handled by expert players who have done much with little.

PALERMO, Sicily, April 7.—(AP)—A young prince and his princess made their final bows tonight in preparation for their wedding tomorrow before the nobility of Europe.

Prince Henri, 23 years old, count of Paris, and 18 year old Princess Isabelle of Orleans and Bragance will be married by Cardinal Lavitrano, archbishop of Palermo, in the chapel of the Villa D'Aumale.

The principals and their guests attended a dinner and reception in the villa, property of the Duke of Guise, father of Prince Henri and pretender to the French throne. There were 1,000 noblemen and other aristocrats from a dozen countries present.

Cardinal Lavitrano will perform the ceremony, it was announced today, despite previous word that he would not officiate because of the Vatican's objection to the presence at the ceremony of two excommunicated editors of Action Francaise, French Royalist newspaper.

About 125 of them, mostly French persons, retired for the night on a French ship in the Palermo harbor. The boat brought them from Marseilles. It serves them as a hotel, since all the regular hotels are filled.

At 11 o'clock tomorrow morning Henri and Isabelle will be married according to the rites of the Roman Catholic church. The bride's father, Prince Pierre D'Orleans et Bragance, will give her away.

It will be a brilliant ceremony with titled guests from France, Belgium, Italy, Spain, Jugoslavia, Denmark, Portugal, and Greece. The Italian royal family, however, will not be represented officially, although Italian princes of the blood will be present. Nor will the Italian government be represented officially, since the marriage is regarded as private.

After the wedding a luncheon will be served. The tables will be laid again in the five giant pavilions erected on the villa grounds and decorated with tapestries and damaska.

An army of servants has been brought in from neighboring cities. The regular Palermo servants are fully occupied with the thousands of visitors the marriage has attracted to the city.

The marriage will unite two descendants of Louis Philipe ["citizen king"], last monarch of France. He abdicted three-quarters of a century ago.

St. Malachy's School Grads Will Meet on Friday

The Alumni of St. Malachy's school organized into an Alumni association at their last meeting held on March 10. Their next meeting will be on April 10 in the school hall at 8 o'clock and all the old grads are urged to attend. The meeting will be followed by dancing.

Hope to Make Mother Seton Yankee Saint

U. S. Catholics Will Take Petition to Rome.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—The canonization of Elizabeth Ann Seton (Mother Seton) as America's first native born saint is being sought by Catholic organizations, it was learned today. A large delegation will sail for Rome on July 9 to present a petition to the pope and Catholic women here are confident Mother Seton will become their Patron Saint Elizabeth.

The petition for the canonization of Mother Seton, who grew up in a fashionable New York home, was educated as an Episcopalian and married in Trinity church, is now in the process of acquiring 100,000 signatures. The petition and plans for the pilgrimage to the Vatican will be discussed at a meeting of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae here this week-end. Mrs. James J. Sheeran of Brooklyn will head the delegation to Rome.

Two other American born women have been talked of for canonization, it was reported. One is Mere Marie of the Ursulines of Canada and the other, an Indian girl, Tekahwitha, who had a colorful career as a worker with the early American missionaries. Mother Seton's work, however, has been of wider scope than any other Catholic woman, it was said.

Founded the first parochial school in this country at Baltimore in 1808. Afterward started the parochial school system.

Elizabeth Seton was born in 1774 and passed her girlhood in a home in State street. Her mother died when she was a child. She was reared by her father, Dr. Richard Bayley, a professor in King's college, now Columbia university. The future Mother Seton acquired her interest in hospital work when her father became health commissioner of New York City.

She was educated as an Episcopalian and grew up as one of a group of fashionable young women whose lives centered at old Trinity church. Her marriage to William Magee Seton, son of a wealthy merchant, was an event of social importance toward the end of the 18th century. There was no hint then of her future religious life as a Catholic leader. She lived happily and five children were born.

Then darker days came. Her husband's health broke, poverty followed, and the Setons went to Italy, where William Seton died. Mrs. Seton and the children returned to New York. It was then she embraced the Catholic religion. There were less than 250 Catholics in New York City and only one church. Mrs. Seton started a private school, but her social leader friends withdrew their children when she quit the Episcopal church. Mrs. Seton then went to Baltimore and the first parochial school was born.

Later she founded a religious community in the mountains at Emmitsburg, Md. It was there the American Sisters of Charity came into existence. She and her six teachers became sisters and Mrs. Seton became Mother Seton.

The first years were poverty ridden, but the name of the school spread and soon girls from far away New Orleans and other distant cities were being brought to Emmitsburg by their parents. It was during those years that Mother Seton became famous as a great organizer.

ATHLETIC PRELATE WILL BE DEAN AT FAMED CANTERBURY

LONDON, April 7.—(AP)—The Very Reverend Hugh Richard Lawrie Sheppard, known to millions of radio fans as "Dick" Sheppard, is to be succeeded as dean of Canterbury by the Very Reverend Hewlett Johnson, dean of Manchester, engineer, athlete, and mountain climber.

"Dick" Sheppard, who made his reputation as a radio preacher when he was rector of St. Martin's in the Fields, London, resigned because of poor health.

Dr. Johnson was a rowing Blue when he was at Oxford and an enthusiastic follower of almost every form of sport. He once walked sixty miles in one day around the island of Arvan and he has scaled sixteen Alpine passes. He became an engineer but he was always interested in social service and when he was 32 he was ordained a priest.

He has expressed original opinions on a variety of subjects. After a tour of theaters he announced his belief that chorus girls were "prettier, happier, and freaher" than they used to be. He has long advocated day coaches which are convertible into sleepers, and has even slept in luggage racks to protest against the unconvertible kind. He would like young men in business to be given more money and longer holidays so they might "go scouting through the world in quest of larger ideas."

A visit Dr. Johnson proposed paying to soviet Russia two years ago was forbidden by the government.

THE STAGE

"PAGAN LADY."

THE CAST.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

LENORE ULRIC, who has often been my favorite specialist in wayward young wenches, has brought to the Erlanger theater a play which reminds me of the "Uncle Tom" shows that advertised two Topsies and two Little Evas. It bears the title of "Pagan Lady," and it is a rough-hewn imitation of "Rain," with two sultry Sadies and two whang-doodling missionaries. To avoid being too close a copy of Jeanne Eagel's famous vehicle, however, it omits the water tank and the psychopathology.

This florid frame-up spins its yarn among the haunts of Florida's minor bootleggers. Miss Ulric appears as dauntless Dorothy, alluring "moll" to Mr. Dingo Mike, eager for an amorous vacation. Enter, in answer to her yearnings for new thrills, two evangelists on a soul saving expedition—one, an old uncle, for her to defy; the other, a young nephew, for her to seduce.

At the end of Act I. the young missionary is on his knees in a prayer which shifts into entranced quotation of the fleshly passages from the Song of Songs; an off-stage camp meeting is hymning "Lead, Kindly Light"; and the lustrous Lenore hovers in the background like a gangster's dream of Aphrodite. Act II. ends with their departure for a desert island and a night of sin. The last act gives Miss Ulric an opportunity to overwhelm the elder, religionist with the customary big speech in praise of the flesh and the devil. Renunciation ends the fable; sadly she returns to the clutches of Dingo Mike; sweetly and nobly she sends her beloved evangelist to his mission among the heathen of Madagascar.

"Pagan Lady" [again like "Rain"] contains a doctor who lectures upon the psychology of sex in a strain of fake highbrowism that recalls the polysyllabic utterances of Philo Vance, the snob-detective. Miss Ulric and the bootlegger crowd employ a vein of slang as affected as the style of old fashioned baseball reporters. Incredibility runs wild through every scene of this exceedingly fraudulent melodrama. "Pagan Lady" is something that seems to have been hastily and preposterously made to sell.

Miss Ulric's vivid career gains no distinction from her performance of this imitative character. Under fine stage direction, such as Belasco's, she has had phases of brilliance; but here she is merely a workmanlike, attractive actress going through an uninteresting routine. She strikes a note of sincerity now and then, however, in spite of her phoney material. But as something to look at, she is still the Ulric whose name is an asset to the box office. She seems to have grown younger during her absence; and as a Clara Bow of the legitimate stage she has a lively appeal.

Among the others, the church carries off the honors. Russell Hardie, as the younger evangelist, and Thomas Findlay as the elder contribute credible character studies to the performance.

Early Election School Closing Helps Circus; Second Show Arrives

Election day brought a break for the public school youngsters, who were dismissed yesterday at 2 o'clock so their teachers could go to the polls. Many of the children flocked to the Chicago Stadium for the opening performance of the European Olympia circus.

Five hundred gymnasts, equestrians, clowns, trainde animals, and rodeo stars performed following a triumphal entry, "Parade of Nations." One of the hazardous stunts of the afternoon was when Miss Mee Kyle ignited herself and leaped backward into a tank blazing with flames.

The vanguard of the Sells-Floto circus, which opens on Saturday afternoon at the Coliseum, put in its appearance bright and early yesterday after an all night ride from the winter quarters at Peru, Ind.

Bradford Washburn Shows Movies of Alpine Climb

Bradford Washburn, 19 year old Harvard student, exhibited motion pictures yesterday of his ascent of the French Alps at a luncheon of the Rotary club at the Palmer house. He also gave a descriptive talk of his experience with a guide companion in ascending the Grepon peak in the summer of 1929.

Women Dry Leaders Laud 10 Yrs. Results

Claim More Gains than Losses to U. S.

Baltimore, Md., April 7.—(AP)—Ten years of prohibition were audited today by the woman's national committee for law enforcement. Profits were declared to be greater than losses.

A balance sheet covering 1920 to 1930 was submitted by the organization to answer dry law foes who have based their attack on what they saw as decreased income to the government and similar economic declines.

The audit, prepared from numerous official sources, was discussed by Mrs. Arthur Hedstrom of Buffalo, N. Y., before Baltimore clubwomen. Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Orlando, Fla., chairman of the committee, said in Washington the "profit and loss account" was prepared "to remove the impression that the eighteenth amendment has decreased in any way the income to the government."

In its recapitulation the study quoted the Wickersham commission report to show a total gain of "increased production, increased efficiency of labor, the elimination of blue Mondays, decrease in industrial accidents, increase in savings, and decrease in demands on charities and social agencies."

The accounting, which was headed "People of the United States in Account with Prohibition, Inc.," showed losses as:

One hundred and seventy thousand saloons; $243,000,000 in federal income from taxes on $1,817,000,000 worth of liquor; 64 per cent decrease of liquor formerly drunk; 38 out of 39 "Keeley" cures and 40 out of 40 "Neal" cures closed; 10 to 60 per cent reduction in Juvenile court cases; 54 per cent drop in number of children cared for by welfare associations; 50 per cent decrease in arrests for prostitution and 11 per cent drop in number of 18 to 20 year old boys sent to penal institutions.

Listed as gains were:

Two billion dollars in federal income taxes; $772,000,000 in automobile and gasoline taxes; 250,000 gasoline stations and 3,615 branch banks; 25 per cent increase in milk consumption; 30,000,000 new savings bank depositors; $43,000,000,000 more life insurance holdings; 400,000 new homes a year since 1921; 47 per cent more hotels; average wage increase of 35 per cent; 150 per cent rise in high school students; 30 per cent reduction in infant mortality; 300 per cent increase in college students.

The statement said:

"We do not claim that the gains of the last ten years are due to prohibition alone, but acknowledge gladly other agencies which have contributed to these gains. What we wish to call your attention to is that there are gains."

Erin to Recall Saint's Landing by New Church

BY R. M. SAYERS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELFAST, April 7.—A new shrine on a site sacred to Irishmen in all parts of the world is to appear at Saul, Downpatrick, County Down, to mark the 1500th anniversary of the landing of St. Patrick in Ireland. The apostle of Ireland first set foot on Irish soil as a Christian missionary at Saul on the shores of Strangford Lough, and his body rests within the precincts of the adjoining Down cathedral.

The present parish church at Saul, a plain and unattractive building, will be pulled down and on this site where St. Patrick first preached an imposing new church is to be built to stand for future generations as an example of the beautiful work in stone as designed by the early Christians in Ireland.

A world-wide appeal for funds is being issued and already arrangements have been made for the receipt of subscriptions at certain banks in the United States and in different parts of the British empire, as well as, of course, in Great Britain.

When St. Patrick landed at this place in 432 A. D. his first convert was Dichu, a local chieftain. Dichu gave St Patrick one of his barns in which to preach, and one of the earliest Christian churches arose there. St. Patrick during his thirty years' work in Ireland frequently visited Saul, and there he died in 461.

Compromise Often Best Way Out of Domestic Woes

BY DORIS BLAKE.

It would come to pass. The surprise to me is that we haven't had more cases of assault and battery over the "off vs. on" of the radio in homes. It speaks well for the general good nature of the great American people that domestic discord over the radio isn't oftener reported. Or, maybe for the radio entertainers.

But "Pop X." wants the radio on full blast from the moment he gets home from work till his hour for retirement. "Mom X." has stood about all of it she can bear. The X youngsters would like more dance music, less fight, news, stock market reports, etc. But their problem is ruled out for the bigger problem of Maw and Paw.

Maw reports a black eye in her letter of yesterday—a swollen, disfiguring, almost shut eye. She fought the night before to have the radio shut off. But Paw won, according to his beloved's black eyed testimony. With that eye now she's sure she could get a divorce. We fear for Paw, with women getting divorces all over the place on far less substantial evidence.

Another woman, in enumerating her husband's difficulties of disposition, reports he insists upon perfect quiet from his two boys, 9 and 11, a condition of boyhood most difficult to manage just before their bedtime hours.

Well, domestic tragedies have grown out of whether windows shall remain open or shut, whether newspapers should be scattered willy nilly over the living room floors, ditto cigar ashes, and so on. It would be interesting to find out how many divorces entered in the name of other causes have really been inspired by some continued small irritation or irritations, conducted to the breaking point.

There's only one cure for such condition of domesticity. It's name is compromise. The reason this best of all remedies isn't oftener applied is due to the cussed stubbornness that is so deep grained a part of most of us. The desire to impose your will on another often is more important in these domestic scenes than the actual feature of irritation. The clearing up of such domestic atmosphere lies entirely within the ability to recognize the grievances for what they actually are, and abide by the requirements of a more agreeable disposition. It's a large order—but can be done.

Illinois Spiritualists Open Yearly Convention Here

A banquet and dance last night opened a week's convention of the Illinois State Spiritualists' association at the Morrison hotel. Today, morning, afternoon, and evening, sessions will start during which reports and "messages" are scheduled. C. A. Burgess, president, will deliver the address of welcome this morning. The association convention represents eighty-one churches. J. P. Whitewell, St. Paul, national president, and John Slater, California medium, are to be present.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

He's Jealous.

"Dear Miss Blake: I'm going out with a steady boy friend who does not like to see me go out with any one else. "LIESELOTTE."

It all depends upon what that "steady" implies. Only a fiancé has the right to demand your undivided attention.

Gingham Blouse Seen with Tailored Frocks

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Pinafores, Peter Pan collars, school girl sashes, all sorts of things that we thought we'd outgrown with the schoolroom, have been brought back into the latest fashions by the Paris couturiers this spring.

Chanel is making "parlor maid apron" fronts for some of her most sophisticated ruffled lace evening gowns. Schiaparelli puts a dark green linen pinafore over a white trouser frock for the beach and the result is much more Parisienne than infantile.

Gingham blouses, too, of the sort we wore when we were twelve, are being shown with absolutely modern tailored suits and frocks. Suits are often replaced by two piece or one piece frocks that have some cut or detail to make them look dressed enough for street wear.

One such is sketched today. Lyolene makes it in flag blue crêpe jersey, that marvelous new combination of two well known surfaces. The skirt is plain in back, with a panel pleated on either side giving fullness to the front.

The very open faced and sleeveless waistcoat bodice is buttoned diagonally both front and back with tiny steel buttons. The blouse of cross-barred blue and white linen has a Buster Brown collar and flag blue silk tie. The cuff buttons are steel balls.

The belt is one of Lyolene's cutest features. It's braided blue and white cord, two and one-half inches wide, and it's tied in back with a bow of the blue crêpe jersey like the dress.

Theater Folk Will Stage Benefit Dance Saturday

Theater and movie folk will gather in the Stevens hotel Saturday night for a dance, the proceeds of which will go to the National Vaudeville Artists' sick and benefit fund. Five motion picture companies and the Exhibitors' Association of Chicago are arranging the benefit. Lita Grey Chaplin and Tom Mix will be among those attending, it was announced. Impromptu vaudeville performances will be included in the program.

It Pays to Be Cranky About Using Only Clean Powder Puff

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

An acquaintance suggests that stores catering to the comfort of their customers ought to provide blinders to get a purse ridden woman past the perfume and cosmetic counters safely. We sympathize more with the woman than with her idea.

I thought of what she had said, standing before a exhibit of powder puffs the other day. Alabaster jars filled with those exquisite, fluffy, feathery ones and in every imaginable pastel shade. Crystal jars holding more of them. The counter strewn with them and the usual squares and circles of lambs' wool and velour, and more puffs concealed in the center of dainty chiffon bankies. A minor expense, if one or two were what you had in mind. But I suppose many women would like a fresh one for every powder aplication, without having to go through the washing performance necessary to the ideally clean puff.

Of course, the problem is solved for many of us with the jar filled with the small cotton balls to be discarded after each powdering. But a comical, if it weren't a dangerous, affection springs up between a woman and her puff. Though others might look askance upon the grimy, soiled specimen, its mamma loves it. Or she must, for there's no obvious reason for the long time devotion.

Apropos, a girl who'd grown to love her powder puff too madly was indiscreet enough to pull it out before a skin specialist relative, who had been wrestling with a mild acne case in the girl's face. He disposed of the puff with a few stinging comments on the uselessness of trying to clear up a blemished skin with that "agent of infection" in her hands.

One with the slightest tendency to pimples should be a perfect crank about the freshness of her powder puffs. Her best bet is the handy bowl of cotton balls, discarded after each using.

An oily skin calls particularly, too, for powder puff hygiene of the first order. And, of course, the tissue cleansers cannot be too highly indorsed as an agent to prevent contamination or infection.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

K. P.: THE MOST IMPORTANT brushing of the teeth is that given before going to bed, as it is during the night that acids and germs, which thrive on food particles, get in their most deadly work. However, it is important to give the teeth a morning brushing and, if possible, after each meal.

Wacker Trophy Objective of Geneva Racing

BY THALIA

THE racing sailors at Lake Geneva will have a new incentive this summer for getting the greatest possible speed out of their yachts. For an interesting and valuable trophy is being presented to the Lake Geneva Yacht club by Frederick G. Wacker. It is a beautiful silver replica of Mr. Wacker's class A sailboat Rumpus. The gift is in memory of the donor's father, the late Charles H. Wacker, who died at Lake Geneva a year ago last fall after 40 years of summer residence there.

The trophy will be sailed for in the annual yacht club races on Labor day, along with the Sheridan prize, which was the gift of Gen. Phil Sheridan on his visit to Lake Geneva in 1874 just after the yacht club had been organized. The Sheridan trophy was an exact model in silver of the late Julian M. Rumsey's Nettie, which won the prize in the first race sailed. The Nettie was of the type of boat sailed at that time, and Mr. Wacker's trophy shows the present type of vessel being sailed in the Sheridan regatta. The silver ship is to be mounted on a pedestal and shows "the windward bilge board housed, the leeward board down," according to the description of one versed in sailing matters. The Frederick Wackers spend their summers in a place at the Chicago club which they have acquired recently, the Charles H. Wacker place, "Fair Lawn," having been leased to the Gardiner Hammonds.

What Is Art? This or That? Can Both Be?

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The second exhibit of Rifka Angel's paintings went on view in the Knoedler galleries last Saturday, to continue to April 18. Last year, when her first group of pictures were shown we thought them the greatest lot of twaddle that the year had vouchsafed Chicago—and said so, with the immediate and gratifying result that Arthur Aldis, among others, went straightway to the gallery and bought several of the assortment.

This year the paintings are bigger, if not better, than ever. We must remember that Rifka Angel was declared by John Sloan, that eminent New York modernist, to be an artist. Before his dictum she was a model. After he discovered her talent and she had garnered a bit of foreign and American teaching she went in for canvas, paint, and recklessness. She threw caution to the winds and painted as the spirit moved her, never a thought for correct color, nor correct proportion, nor anatomy. Her pictures were a medley of Nura and Buk, with their spirituality left out.

Suggestions of various other expressionist painters vibrated through many of her conceptions, but the chief characteristic born by all was their awkward childishness.

This year the exhibit is fearsome. You can laboriously sift the chaff from the less chaffy and find an apology of a reason here and there for her work. At least she is not vain nor self-conscious, nor sentimental. You need only look at the several paintings of her infant and the self-portrait with her child to have this forced upon you. But would not a little vanity have been a good thing? Would not powder in the face of the vivid complexion have softened its terrifying contours? Would not youth in the faces and worn eyes of the "Two Little Girls" have been a fortunate thought? Would not a knowledge of drawing have stood the coy "Ethele" and the flacid "Convalescent" in good stead?

All in all, hating to enter into controversy concerning what is not of really vital importance one way or the other, is any statement regarding Rifka Angel's show more than a waste of the paper upon which it is written? Has her work merit, truth, sincerity, value? The standards by which we judge are dumb in the face of these contraptions. To us, such an exhibit is time lost. To a true modernist, and there are such, the show probably will be a revelation of independence, strength, and originality. They will see a decided advance in her technique and manner. To all good modernists the exhibit is heartily commended!

Roland Hayes, Hans H. Levy Give Recitals

BY EDWARD MOORE.

ONE of the distinguished interpretative musicians of the Negro race, the tenor, Roland Hayes, appeared at Orchestra hall in a song recital last night and, as in his other appearances here, drew a large audience of both races. Well he might, for he is an artist needing neither apology nor qualification.

The Hayes programs are set in as typical a form as those of, let us say, John McCormack. A group of the ancients is followed by a group of lieder, these by a group of moderns with French composers predominating, and finally a group of spirituals. These he sings in a way that tends toward the exquisite rather than the commanding. His voice is light, and he wisely makes no effort to push it beyond its limits. But it is a beautiful voice, and temperamentally and by education he understands most of the art of fine expression.

He has a great fondness for the slowly moving, sustained melody in his program, at times to the point of using too many songs of that nature. It is strange, too, for there are few able to sing something like Caldara's "Alma del core" or Schubert's "Wohin" more charmingly than he. But even when he ends a group with one of the most slowly paced of all, he is popular and wins many encores.

Hans Heniot Levy, pianist, composer, and pedagogue, gave a recital at Kimball hall yesterday afternoon. He is the son of another pianist, composer, and pedagogue of high standing, Heniot Levy, but in this performance he indicated plainly that he has an artistic equipment of his own and is by no means standing in reflected glory.

He plays with considerable virtuosity. Godowsky arrangements of Bach, Schubert, and Johan Strauss, Liszt in the B minor Sonata, a pair of Rachmaninoff's "Etudes Tableaux," these are none of them child's play for the pianist, but Mr. Levy seemingly took joy in their resounding passages. His own compositions, too, sound as though they might make trouble for the casual player, but, more important, his "Fantastic Tarantella" and "A Complacent Sketch" have something to say. So has he, whether he is interpreting other people's works or his own.

Food Talks.

Mrs. K. T. wants to know what the "parsleyed potatoes" are that we suggest occasionally in our menus.

They are merely boiled potatoes sprinkled with finely chopped parsley. Parsley adds a beautiful contrasting color to boiled potatoes. And sometimes the addition of just this bit of color prevents a meal from having a drab appearance. The parsley also contributes pleasing flavor.

The original recipe for parsleyed potatoes suggested new potatoes. As soon as the potatoes were cooked tender and drained thoroughly of water, they were dried out over the fire, then were tossed in melted butter. Last, finely chopped parsley was added and a few more tossings were given to distribute the bits of green. The potatoes were sent to the table immediately. Old potatoes that are made into balls with a French cutter to simulate new potatoes are often served with the parsley, too. But why stop with parsleying here? It is just as pleasing on the larger potatoes that have been boiled and buttered.

I often add chopped parsley to carrots, diced turnips, white boiled cabbage, boiled whole small onions, and boiled beets. To my mind parsley has an affinity for a lot of vegetables. And a pot of parsley growing in the kitchen is a boon to the cook. Only the few sprigs that are required need be snipped off. The fresher and crisper the parsley the more it will be appreciated. Of course, it is not wise to use parsley each time a vegetable is served. It would then become a monotonous and uninteresting garnish. And such practice would indicate a lack of imagination. Cooking, like all other arts, is influenced by moods, and we must put our souls and selves into it in order to make it individual. When we do this our foods will give pleasure.

CHERRY COBBLER.

1-3 tsp. salt	1 egg
2 tsp. baking powder	2-3 cup sugar
1 cup flour	1 tbsp. flour
1 tbsp. butter	1 tsp. cinnamon
1 egg	1 tsp. vanilla
	2 cups canned or fresh stoned cherries
	¾ cup fruit juice
	Butter

Mix the sugar, salt, baking powder, and flour, and work in the butter with the finger tips or a knife. Add one beaten egg to the milk and mix with this until a soft dough is formed. Mix the other egg with sugar, flour, and cinnamon, and vanilla. Add the drained cherries and juice, and place in a buttered dish. Add pieces of butter over the top. Cover with the dough. Slit top in several places and bake in a hot oven until the crust is brown, or for about 25 minutes.

ORANGE SAUCE.

Grated rind ½ lemon	Few grains salt
Juice ½ lemon	2 egg yolks
½ cup orange juice	2 egg whites
1-3 cup sugar	1 tsp. vanilla

Mix grated rind, fruit juice, sugar, salt, and egg yolks, beaten slightly. Put on the range and stir constantly until the mixture thickens. Add gradually, while beating constantly, to egg whites, beaten until stiff. Cool and add flavoring.

"YES—I am 39 years Old!" SAYS IRENE RICH

"A screen star never worries about birthdays, you see, as long as she doesn't look old.

"To hold her public—to face the cruel test of the close-up—she must keep the fresh loveliness of youth.

"That is why in Hollywood we guard complexion beauty above all else. We know it says 'youth' quicker than anything else. Any woman who wants to keep her charm right through the years should keep her skin always soft, smooth, youthfully aglow."

How does this lovely star guard complexion beauty? Just as so many other Hollywood actresses do—605 of the 613 important ones! "I use Lux Toilet Soap regularly," she says, "and I have for years."

For every type of skin, Hollywood will tell you, this fragrant, delicately white soap is the perfect complexion care. Surely you will want to try it!

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect returning home to England from Cape Town, meets Hilary Revel, author of travel books, on shipboard. During the journey home their acquaintance grows into a friendship neither wishes to end.

John tells Hilary of his daughter, Judith, born of a café singer while he was a soldier. His wife, John says, magnanimously adopted the child. Hilary suspects such magnanimity John's sister, Gertrude, became Judith's legal guardian when his wife died.

Hilary had taken her war-invalided brother, Hugh, who had just died, away from home ten years ago to give her younger sister, Christine, and brother, Stephen, a better chance. Hilary's stepfather is the only sympathetic member of her family.

Judith leads a lonely life in her aunt's home. Her cousin Prue is her only friend. She has a private teacher, Miss Mead, while her cousins are away at school. Her father she knows as Uncle John. She senses she is different in some way from other children. When Aunt Gertrude hears of her brother's engagement she sends Judith to the country. John is uneasy about Judith not being in school. He thinks it unfair to drag Hilary continually in on the question of the child and Hilary feels that he has had enough interference in caring for Judith. John writes Gertrude for the truth. She replies that she cannot, as a decent citizen, send a waif of dubious parentage among other children.

Judith, at the farm of her former nurse Tracy's brother, is badly treated by the old servant. She has had no mail since her arrival. She meets Clive Harpenden, the little master of the home where she delivers cream for Tracy. Judy writes secretly to Prue.

Prue meets Hilary for tea and tries to enlist her aid for Judith. Hilary's vow not to interfere makes her rebuff Prue. They run into Tim de Morreville, whom Hilary and John met on the boat home. Tim drives Prue home and makes an engagement to drive her next day to visit Judith.

Falconer leaves town on a business trip.

Prue sees and talks to Judy and is indignant at Tracy's treatment of the little girl. Hilary, thinking over the problem of Judith, decides to write to John about her, and her letter is a great relief to him.

Tracy becomes unbearably abusive to Judy.

INSTALLMENT XXXIX.

DIFFERENT AND ALONE.

Everything was gone. She had no father; she could never go to school and be like other girls; she would not be able even to remember Clive again because of the terrible shame of what they would tell him and he would think of her. She was alone, disgraced and outcast, hidden in the country away from the eyes of decent people.

Judith never doubted that it was all true. Though she might search and search, there was not one thing in all the years since the big car had carried her from Mrs. Bowen's door to give her a shred of reassurance. Shocked and terrified, not understanding what Tracy meant, or how it had come about, she was yet aware that she had known it secretly for a long time—that somehow she was different and alone. She had thought she had a father; she had been quite sure of it. She had imagined that she could actually remember him, yet now she was not so sure.

Prue had been kind. Prue had said nothing was her fault, and she was to keep her eye on that. Prue had come to see her and given her ten shillings, but even she had been surprised about her father and asked his name. Had Prue thought she was lying, too, and been too kind to say?

Judy grew hot all over and then cold. She saw it now. She could never have had a father, or surely Prue would have known he was Mr. Harris, she wouldn't have asked.

Clutching the hot pillow in both her hands and steadying her mind with all the strength that was in her, Judith looked back down the years and knew she remembered him. She could see the garage and the car where sometimes she was allowed to sit with her dolls, pretending to drive. She could see a man come in and hear him call "Harris! Hullo, little one, where's your dad?" She could remember driving between her mother and father and hearing them talking above her head. They had gone right down to the sea and Judy had loved it, and sat on the sand and looked and looked while her mother called her "old funny face" and laughed at her. She could remember her mother often laughing, and then the black dresses and white flowers because she was dead.

After that things were not quite so clear. She had gone away to another house, but she thought she could see her father paying money to somebody who said, "Come, Judy, and kiss your poor dad." And then Mrs. Bowen came and they went in a train, and she was told her father had gone over the sea and she was to be Mrs. Bowen's little girl until he came back.

There! Didn't that show she had had a father?

Judy sat up in the greatest excitement. It hadn't been lies, O, it hadn't! . . . She knew she remembered.

Then, to this wild hope, came Tracy's words, "Your sort don't have fathers."

Was that why he had gone away and never come back? . . . Because she wasn't wanted and a disgrace?

Back into the pillows went Judith, to depths where no hope was but only black despair.

The door handle rattled angrily and she started up in terror. She did not know how long she had been lying there, but the sound of Tracy at the door brought strength and purpose, and with a wild idea of keeping her out, she flew to the door and leaned against it.

"Judith, you open that door this moment . . . Come along now! Here's your supper. I'll have that lock off the door tomorrow pretty quick, then we'll see."

The tray was banged upon the floor and Tracy's heavy steps departed, but still Judith leaned there with all her weight, her breath coming in great sobs. She could not even think of the food; she was unconscious of hunger. She could see nothing but the lock that was to come off in the morning and her fingers clutched it as though they would never let it go.

Tomorrow! She must not be here tomorrow or ever again. She must go away in the night somehow, somewhere, far from people who knew she was evil and unwanted and a disgrace. She could not stay here and see each day the lovely beechwood and think of Clive and know what he must think. She did not know where she could go or what she could do, but at least she must leave the farm and run.

Her fingers moved from the lock at last. She looked round her and in a moment was whisking everything off the dressing table. Then as silently as possible and very slowly she pushed it before the door. That was a small defense. She had a dreadful fear that Tracy might break the door down in the night, and this would at least give her time to jump out of the window to the shed below and then to the ground and run.

Creeping to the window, she looked out. It did not seem very far. Once on the shed roof she knew she could scramble down, for it was a mere leanto where wood was stored, and the body of an old wheelbarrow stood against it which would make a step.

This, then, was the way that she must go in the night. It was rather frightening, but she must not be afraid. To unlock her door and creep past Tracy's room down the stairs was altogether beyond her courage; to stay and not go at all did not enter her head.

She would have to be terribly careful about it or they might hear, and this was what troubled her most. The little room beside her own was empty, luckily, and both Tracy's and the farmer's looked down on the other side. How could she drop to the roof without making a dreadful noise? If only there were cars passing or even rain and storm, but alas, she knew this stillness. She had so often listened to it, lying awake.

Suppose she threw down a pillow and fell on that? It seemed a good idea, and she could lean a blanket from her bed over the edge to help to deaden the sound. Quick as thought, Judy gathered both blanket and pillow and put them ready. There was so much to do before it was dark. She would be able to take almost nothing away with her she knew, and now she looked in dismay at her clean frock, the only one she possessed on this side of the door, and all crushed from lying in it on the bed. She took it off sadly and shook it, then put it to hang for a little while, wearing her dressing gown instead. She could not take this away, for parcels would be out of the question while she ran and ran, and she would have to run right through the night to be well away before Tracy found out.

At six in the morning Tracy would come to wake her and after hammering and calling, no doubt, she would bring the farmer to break down the door, but he would be out at work by then, Tracy would have to fetch him, and he would not hurry for her. He never did. This would give Judy a little extra time to run.

Then they would begin to look for her and raise the alarm, and perhaps even get the police because of Aunt Gertrude, who sent her to Tracy. Why should Aunt Gertrude want her back if she was such a disgrace as to be hidden away? Judy knew wistfully that there was no hope of escape for any such reason as that, and suddenly she saw herself hunted from place to place with nowhere to hide and caught like a criminal in the end.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Request for Clothing.

"We owe two months' rent, my husband has been out of work for 15 months, the children need shoes and I need clothing so that I may look for employment. The girls are 14 years, 10 years, and 3 months. The boys are 12, 9, 7, 4, and 2 years. I wear size 38 or 40 and shoes size 5½D. I hope you'll help me. E. J."

A family of this size becomes a tremendous problem when unemployment puts in an appearance. Can you help to relieve this mother of some of her worry by supplying the clothing she and her children need?

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Salt of the Party.

I love to cook a good dinner to impress my new boy friends favorably. One night I had the newest of news over and had served a lovely meal. I topped my success by bringing in a beautiful "upside down cake" with pineapple rings and red cherries beaming up as is from the top of the beautifully browned confection.

I sighed happily, cut large slices and passed them. Eight people took a bite, and eight people choked. Alas! I had used salt instead of sugar in the batter.

Germans Charge Russia Fosters War on Faith

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 7.—A new religious war is being waged in German courts now, after religious circles became convinced that soviet authorities are exploiting freethinking to further the world revolution and establish new headquarters of godless campaigners in Berlin.

Sacrilege trials of communists accused of staging blasphemous plays are taking place throughout Germany. Authorities are lending a helping hand to religious societies in their war on godlessness, because the investigators of the police charge that in many cases communist agitators "are hiding behind propagators of free thinking."

In Germany every taxpayer is compelled to pay an additional tax of about five per cent to his income tax for the church to which he belongs, be he Catholic, Protestant, or Jew. To get out of paying this tax it is not enough to assert you are a freethinker. You must prove it. One of the simpliest ways is to join a freethinkers' club. That can be done for about fifty cents. It provides a free thinking certificate, and if you pay your dues regularly you may some time in the future be cremated for nothing, with your freethinking brethren singing a song about friendship and comradeship while the flames consume your earthly remains.

In the good old days free thinkers' clubs provided lecturers and books on ethical and moral problems for their members very much like the churches. But on Nov. 15, 1930, that changed.

The "Freethinkers of the World" met in Bodenbach an der Elbe, in Czechoslovakia, and the younger elements demanded that their leaders organize an anti-religious campaign. They were ignored.

Fifty-seven young freethinkers left the meeting, led by Lukashewski. He immediately established headquarters in Berlin. Observers of the movement assert this was done by order by Moscow, that the new freethinkers are only a branch of Russia's "Internationale of the Godless"—the latter is led by Emilian Jaroslawski, with Krupskaja, the widow of Lenin, on the board of advisors, directing the anti-religious movement.

Chicago is the center for America, so far, though there is also a chapter in Philadelphia. He said the Chicago leader is John Helfrisch.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I would like your advice on a subject of great importance to me. My boy will be 3 in April. For the last few weeks he will not take a bath.

"I have tried threats, scoldings and forcing him into the bathtub, but his screams are beyond me. I have also tried putting toys into the tub, but it is of no use. Maybe you can advise me how to go about curing the child of this habit."

This is not an unusual experience for mothers of young children to have. There are a number of things I can suggest as a cure, but as you can see, they will have to be based not on the information contained in this letter, but on general knowledge of children.

The first thing I must say to mothers confronted with this difficulty is that they must be prepared to go to some trouble, to give up some time, and to exercise some patience in effecting a cure. When a child for three weeks cannot be induced to take a bath, it is not reasonable to expect to make him change suddenly.

The first thing to do is to think of possible reasons for his behavior. From the description, the little boy is evidently terrified. Something or somebody has made him fear the bathtub. One of several things may have happened. He may have been burned by a sudden jet of hot water, or been put in too hot a bath. He may have been in his bath or about to take it when he was frightened, scolded, or punished. A cold bath may have been used as punishment. He may have felt ill in his bath.

He may have developed a fear of the strong rush of water from the faucet, or he may have been told, as some children have, that little creatures will come rushing out with the water. Look around for a possible cause. But whether you find that or not, begin on a cure in the way which will be suggested tomorrow.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Darling, youthful, chic for all day occasions is expressed in this simple frock of printed crêpe silk. The cowl drape and flounce trimmed sleeves lend a softened touch to the bodice and the unusually clever shaping of the skirt produces a decidedly slender effect. The lower part displays a comfortably full hemline. It will be fashionable in plain crêpe silk in navy blue. Or, if you prefer, black crêpe silk is stunning with a touch of white in embroidered organdie with narrow lace edge used for the flounce sleeve frills.

Pattern No. 3032 is designed for sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. The medium size requires but 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

It's what you DON'T see that hurts you

THE most dangerous menace to modern complexions is something you don't see—it's those tiny particles of clogging dust that hide deep in the pores of your face, ruining the fine texture of your skin and causing ugly, enlarged pores.

To counteract this modern danger, Dorothy Gray perfected Texture Lotion—a liquid cleanser which removes the most deeply hidden dirt and closes the pores. With regular use, Texture Lotion will reduce badly enlarged pores and correct a coarsened skin condition. It won't dry your skin, but instead leaves it clean, cool and glowing.

Texture Lotion comes in two sizes: $1 and $2. At all smart shops and at the Dorothy Gray Salon.

Two Big Industries Start with Warm Weather.

BY HAL FOUST.

With the advent of warm weather two of America's biggest industries, road building and the tourist trade, will become active, putting millions of dollars in circulation, and thus making a material contribution toward the return of normal business conditions generally.

The American Automobile association, as the result of a comprehensive survey, estimates that motor tourists last year spent three and a half billion dollars in the United States. Over two billion dollars was spent on the improvement of streets and highways.

Predict Tourist Increase.

The gross receipts from automobile tourists in the Chicago trade territory approximate $350,000,000 a year, with Michigan and Wisconsin and northern Indiana receiving most of this money, through their attractions for summer vacationists. On the eve of the season for these northern resorts the Michigan Tourist and Resort association, which is supported in part by state taxes, predicts a 27 per cent increase in business this year.

In road building Illinois alone has a $45,000,000 construction program for this year that will get into full swing as soon as the danger of frost damage to fresh concrete has passed. Approximately 20,000 workers will be employed. The American Research foundation reports that Michigan will spend $31,000,000, Indiana $18,000,000, and Wisconsin another $18,000,000.

The importance of road building as an economic factor is generally recognized, but the tourist trade is just beginning to be appreciated in the north.

The motorist's dollar is sprinkled along the highways. Only 11.5 cents, according to the American Automobile association's survey, goes for gas and oil, and this totals $402,500,000 in a year. Hotels receive 17.3 cents, totaling $604,500,000. Cafés and restaurants get $717,500,000.

Show Increase Each Year.

Motorists on tour spend $910,000,000 a year for general merchandise. For taxicabs, buses, street cars, boats, and railroads the automobile tourists pay an annual bill of $360,500,000. They spend $297,500,000 for amusements and $136,500,000 for confectionery and other incidentals.

This $3,500,000,000 from the tourist trade appears to be an extremely large sum, but it must be remembered that there are 23,200,000 passenger cars in America.

PROPOSE NEW AIR FIELD AND RAMP ON PARK SHORE

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Chicago will be provided with a lake front air field and amphibian beach at a negligible cost to taxpayers if a proposal of a group of Chicago aviation leaders headed by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, manager of Sky Harbor airport, is accepted by the commissioners of Lincoln park.

The commissioners are to be asked at their next meeting to set aside the area at the foot of Montrose avenue on the lake front as a site for a centrally located air field. This became known yesterday when Maj. Schroeder completed a survey of the proposed site.

Area of 90 Acres.

The site comprises 90 acres and is to be filled in this summer. The park board is now advertising for bids and work is to be started within a month with the expectation that another 60 days will be required to complete the filling.

Maj. Schroeder declined to discuss the plan until it had been formally presented to the park commissioners but aviation experts who have studied the possibilities of the Montrose site say it is admirably suited for a flying field. The 30 acre small boat harbor which is part of the Montrose improvement project would be available for the anchoring of amphibians and seaplanes.

The area is large enough to permit the location of runways of an average length of 2,800 feet in all directions.

A Central Location.

DR. WILLIAM BAER, FAMOUS ORTHOPEDIC SURGEON, DIES AT 59

Baltimore, Md., April 7.—(AP)—Research of far reaching effect in surgery was interrupted today by the death of Dr. William S. Baer, 59, Johns Hopkins medical school orthopedic surgeon, known for his work with children and for his development of the use of the maggot of the blue bottle fly in treating bone disease.

The treatment was developed by Dr. Baer as the result of his observations made while chief orthopedic consultant with the American expeditionary forces in France in the world war.

Dr. Baer's method recently had been extended to the treatment of other diseases, and he and his colleagues were hopeful that other victories in the war on disease were in the making. His work is to be carried on by the surgeons who worked with him in the two hospitals he headed here.

Dr. Baer was known most widely for his surgical treatment of the bodies of small children. A short, powerful man, he worked often 16 and 18 hours a day, much of the time in the operating room of the Children's Hospital school, which was founded as the result of his work.

U. S. Inquiry Gives Out Its Findings.

Washington, D. C., April 7.—(AP)—A coating of ice upon the plane's wings was blamed officially today for the crash that carried Knute Rockne, football wizard of Notre Dame, and seven others to their deaths at Bazaar, Kas., March 31.

Originally the commerce department's aeronautics inspectors expressed the opinion a broken propeller caused the crash, but in a statement issued late today this judgment was changed.

This was the first time the commerce department had made public the findings of its inspectors. Officials gave no reason for this reversal of policy save to indicate it was prompted by the tremendous public interest aroused by the sudden death of one of the greatest football figures in history.

Uncover Additional Evidence.

"The pilot of the air liner [knowing from his radio conversation with Wichita that the weather was clear at that place] is believed to have started up through the low clouds to get above them. In doing so, it is thought the ice collected on the plane and possibly rendered inoperative certain of his flight instruments that function through the air stream.

"Without these instruments to assist the pilot, the plane apparently went into a steep dive. The results seem to indicate that on coming out of this maneuver the change of direction occurred with such unusual rapidity as to build up an enormous load on the wings, which in turn brought about the wing failure. . . .

"This conclusion was reached following receipt of information from the field that the propeller, which at first was declared missing, has, as a result of subsequent excavations, been located underground beneath the place where the engine, to which it was attached, was dug out of the earth.

"The broken propeller theory was strengthened when it was discovered that although the right outboard engine had no propeller blades nor propeller hub, the safety nut which holds the propeller in place was still affixed to the end of the crankshaft." Examination of the recovred propeller, however, revealed that the hub had split, probably at the time it hit the ground, this would account for the hub's abrence from the crankshaft despite the safety nut remaining in place.

"No, I won't go," Miss Williford reported her chum as replying.

Ford then threatened to shoot, the girl related, but Miss Smith scoffed at him and "dared" him. Miss Williford said Ford drew a revolver and shot the girl three times.

FOUR GUNMEN SEIZE $6,700 IN BAKING PLANT

The assistant cashier, Charles Starrett, 6600 Ingleside avenue, and a clerk, Miss Marion Watson, 3130 South Homan avenue, were in the front office when the quartet strode in. The safe, containing the pay roll for drivers, was open.

While three of the robbers covered the man and girl the fourth seized the money bags. They were backing out when another employé, Charles Bolton, 2900 Wilson avenue, appeared. They fired twice at Bolton, neither shot taking effect. From descriptions given by the employés the police were convinced the robbers were the same four who robbed the plant of a $7,000 pay roll four months ago.

KING OF ENGLAND HAS BRONCHITIS; NATION WORRIES

LONDON, April 7.—Anxiety was caused today by an official announcement that King George is suffering from sub-acute bronchitis, from which he is progressing satisfactorily. This is his first illness since 1928, when he was near death from pleurisy and pneumonia.

The king has been confined to his room since his arrival from Windsor last Friday, when it was stated that he had a slight cold.

FRANCE TO FREE BEAUTY HELD FOR KILLING ON BAIL

NICE, France, April 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, former St. Louis beauty queen, will be released on bail within five days to await trial for the slaying of her husband, Fred Nivon-Nirdlinger, Philadelphia theater owner.

In making this announcement, Magistrate Vauchier said today she would not receive a hearing until the August term of court and he did not wish her to remain in jail during the hot summer months. He declined to say how much bail he would require.

The young matron has not seen her two small children since she was arrested after the shooting on March 11. In the meantime, her mother, Mrs. James H. Nash of St. Louis, has arrived to be at her side during the trial. When she was taken into custody, Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger told authorities she killed her husband in self-defense at their villa here, alleging he had threatened her life on several occasions.

DID YOU know that you can overcome constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal each day? Read this enthusiastic letter from Mrs. Kiell:

"I have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a sure-cure for constipation, and know it is a remarkable regulator for the stomach. After using it my family and I certainly will not be without it. I have even gone so far as to send some of it to my mother in Poland, Europe." Mrs. Anna Kiell, 77 Wolcott Terrace, Newark, N. J.

How easy to prevent constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily. In stubborn cases, serve with each meal. Do this and banish pills and drugs from your life.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Worth, Tex., April 7.—The reward our Cubs got today for dismounting their eastbound caravan and dashing out to the ball park with their uniforms under their arms was a 9 to 6 licking at the hands of the 1930 Texas league champions, the Fort Worth Cats.

WOODY ENGLISH.

As per their too frequent practice, our staggering idols indulged themselves in another of those late inning flops. The Texans dashed over the plate with four runs in their final inning to destroy a 6 to 5 margin which the Cubs were enjoying when they had finished the first half of the eighth inning.

The eighth inning fold-up was the second of the contest. The Cubs were leading 5 to 1 at the end of their half of the second inning, but they promptly gave back their advantage when the minor leaguers came to bat.

Bush's Support Wabbly.

Guy Bush had his erratic moments, but the responsibility for the loss was not altogether his. Many of the efforts credited as hits were chargeable to the slow maneuvers of some of his mates, and there were three errors. Two of them were very distressing things by Stephenson and Blair in the eighth—and both big factors in the hits collapse.

The performance of the Cubs was not 100 per cent sloppy. Cuyler, for instance, made three doubles and got two walks in five trips to the plate and Hornsby hit the three times he went to the plate. English made some fine plays, accepting 11 of 12 chances offered in a span of five innings.

The Cubs play an early game here tomorrow, then scurry for a train which will take them to Kansas City for a four game series which will determine whether they are to return home better than a .500 ball club in their spring exhibition chores.

Cuyler Starts Scoring.

When the first inning ended the score was discovered to be 3 to 1 in favor of the Cubs. Cuyler walked to start the contest under way, and went to third on a steal and a bad throw by Yaryan. English walked. Then Hornsby doubled to left, Cuyler scoring and English stopping at third. English scored and Hornsby stopped at third while Wilson was being thrown out and Rogers scored on Stephenson's double to right center. The Cubs got their run in the first on a walk and singles by Brown and Ferry.

Two runs were added to the Cub total in the second inning on doubles by Cuyler and English and a triple by Hornsby, after which the Cubs came to bat and made themselves three runs on four hits in a row. After Engle had filed to Cuyler, Yaryan tapped a single over Hornsby's head and Collard beat out a bunt to Bell. The bases were full after E. Moore had garnered a single off Bell's glove. Then Dalrymple doubled, scoring Yaryan and Collard. E. Moore scored on Fisher's fly to Wilson.

Hornsby Makes Third Hit.

Only three batsmen faced each pitcher in the third inning and the Cubs' fourth was very quiet. In their end of the fourth the Cats got the bases full on two walks and a single, but were unable to get a runner home.

Hornsby made his third hit to start the fifth and stole second after Wilson had filed to E. Moore. Stephenson walked. Then Hartnett hit into a double play.

Ferry opened the Cats' fifth with a double off the left field fence, went to third while Jurges was throwing out Orr, passed while Engle popped to Wilson and came in with the tying run when Yaryan singled to center.

English had to get heroic to keep Engle from taking the lead in the sixth. Hardaway walked and was forced by E. Moore. Moore went to

Lowers Gertrude Ederle's Mark by 5 Seconds.

Helene Madison, 17 year old swimming celebrity of the Washington Athletic club, stroked her way to a world record in the 220 yard free style event in an exhibition meet between the Illinois Women's Athletic club and the Washington Athletic club last night at the I. W. A. C. pool.

Record breaking performances apparently are daily events in the life of Miss Madison, for this was her second in two days. The new mark is 2:36.2, which slices 5 seconds from that established in 1924 by Gertrude Ederle, swimmer of the English channel.

Miss Madison holds 44 records, 13 of them world marks, although she has been competing for only two years. She is on her way to compete in the National A. A. U. meet at New York.

Relay Record Set.

In winning the 160 yard relay the Washington A. C. team established a new national mark of 1:20.6. Miss Madison anchored the team in 20.6 seconds, but did not get credit for breaking the national mark of 21.7 seconds, as it must be set in individual competition.

Georgia Coleman, another champion from the Pacific coast, gave an exhibition of diving. Miss Coleman, who placed second in the Olympic events, is the holder of the 10 foot and platform national diving championships. She has placed second for the last two years to Jane Fauntz of the I. W. A. C. in the low board event.

Miss Kennedy Wins.

The title of central low board diving champion was wrested from Miss Fauntz by a teammate, Evelyn Kennedy. Miss Fauntz, a student at the University of Illinois, was unable to compete in defense of her title. A difference of only two points separated the winner and Ruth Fauntz, also of the I. W. A. C., and a sister of the former champion, who placed second.

In the 100 yard free style event Marilys Lapin, I. W. A. C., won by two inches from Edna McKibbin of the Washington A. C. Emma Shemaitis, I. W. A. C., placed third.

The concluding events will be held tonight at the Loyola university gymnasium. Helene Madison will attempt to lower the national record of 45.2 seconds in the 75 yard event, which is held by Ethel Lackie. She also will compete in the 300 yard relay.

Summaries:

INJURY TO KEEP LUQUE, ROBIN HURLER, ON SHELF

Macon, Ga., April 7.—[Special.]—The pennant hopes of the Brooklyn Robins received a blow today when Adolfo Luque and Harvey Hendrick suffered injuries that will keep them out of the game beyond the opening of the season. The thumb of Luque's pitching hand was smashed by a liner from Wally Gilbert's bat. The attending physician said the Cuban would be lucky to get into action again in eight weeks.

Hendrick's left eye was split by a foul tip from Babe Phelps' bat, necessitating several stitches. Manager Wilbert Robinson was undismayed by the prospective loss of Hendrick for a week, but Luque's injury has scrambled all his pitching plans. A similar injury to Luque last year cost the Robins at least five games, to which Robinson attributes the loss of the pennant.

Hertz Horses Near Form in Gallops at Belmont Park

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 7.—New Yorkers who go the races and read and talk about the horses are not getting any more of an early season close-up of the 3 year old colts which are to win fame and gold in the Preakness, Kentucky Derby, American Classic, American Derby, and Belmont stakes than the Chicagoans who follow the "hawses."

JOHN HERTZ.

The big four among the 3 year olds — Equipoise, Jamestown, Mate, and Twenty Grand—which New Yorkers and Chicagoans alike are waiting to see, are not here to be found at the tracks in New York. This is quite a shock to the New York turfite, for usually when the east has four such standout 3 year olds, they go through their training paces at Belmont Park every morning.

Belmont Busy, Anyway.

Equipoise, the Kentucky Derby future book favorite, is down in Maryland getting ready for the Preakness. Mate also is there. Jamestown, not eligible for the Kentucky Derby but a nominee for the Classic at Arlington in July, is not being rushed and still is at George Widener's farm in Pennsylvania. Twenty Grand is taking his time about leaving the Whitney breeding and training farm at Red Bank, N. J.

Despite the absence of these stars Belmont Park early this morning presented one of the busiest thoroughbred training scenes in America. Hundreds of horses were out galloping over the famous track. Some of them were stepping very fast. Others did not go at it so seriously. Barns were beginning to fill up with famous horses, and one of the best looking bands to come out for training today was the twenty odd which Bill Knapp, formerly one of America's best race riders, is training for John Hertz of Chicago.

Among the horses which Trainer Knapp had on the track today was Risque, a 3 year old which is almost as famous as Equipoise, Mate, Twenty Grand, and Jamestown. Because Risque is a filly, she is not going to associate with the robust boys of her age in the series of rich spring and summer 3 year old specials which start with the Preakness and carry on through the Kentucky Derby, Withers stakes, Belmont stakes, American Derby, and wind up with the Classic.

But you will be hearing about her in the American Coaching club Oaks at Belmont Park in June and in some of the other stakes fashioned for fillies in Chicago and in the east later in the summer and fall. In the fall she may go against some of the best colts of her age.

Risque, with most of the other horses in the Hertz string, is quartered in the private barn which the Chicago sportsman has built at Belmont Park. It is one of the finest stables on the picturesque Belmont Park track.

Near Other Noted Stables.

It is just across a ravine from the big barn which houses Harry Sinclair's Rancocas stable horses and is not far from a number of other private stables owned by Joseph E. Widener, W. R. Coe, William Ziegler, Jr., and the Whitney and the Greentree stable barns.

In a stall adjoining the one occupied by Risque is Valenciennes, the daughter of Steffen the Great, which late last fall proved to be one of the best handicap horses in America. She beat Sun Beau, Lady Broadcast, and many other stars in the Thanksgiving day handicap at Bowie. There is nothing effeminate about Valenciennes. She is as big as most any horse at Belmont Park, has powerful shoulders and legs, and she is as sound as a dollar. She looks to be within three or four weeks of a good racing effort, but Trainer Knapp says she probably will not go to the post before the Belmont Park meeting in June. He hopes to win the Matron stakes with her at Arlington in July.

Risk Expensive as Yearling

The 2 year olds in the Hertz string are not being rushed. Risk, one that cost $16,000 as a yearling and a half sister to Risque, is a fine looking filly. Fiora May is another that has all the earmarks of being a real runner. They will be tested against the best 2 year olds here before midsummer. Risk is a daughter of Sir Gallahad III., the sire of Gallant Fox, and in her yearling trials last fall showed the best time of any of her age at Leona farm near Cary, Ill.

Adine, Captress and Jeb, the latter owned by Herbert B. Swope, are more advanced in training than any of the others in the band which Trainer Knapp is looking after. They will do some racing at Jamaica soon after the New York season opens.

Others in the Hertz band and Knapp's care are Gypsy King, Egypt, Faucille D'Or, His Last, Little Doody, Outbound, Wrigley Field, Tweet Tweet, Athora, Breeze In, Epin, French Duchess, Frantic, Muffler, Murmer, Pair by Pair, Seven Veils, Straw, Well Heeled, Trapdoor, and Watch Him.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

"SWEEPS" TICKETS.

WITHIN the last six weeks The Wake has received perhaps forty or fifty letters from readers asking where sweepstake tickets on various racing events, principally British, may be purchased. The editorial secretary says many more such requests have come direct. The queries were inspired, no doubt, by published stories of huge sums won by the holders of lucky tickets in the drawings.

It so happens we do not know where such tickets may be purchased in this country. Their sale or transmission by mail, we understand, is contrary to stringent lottery law prohibitions. So, even if we did know, it might be questionable whether the information could be disseminated, even by private letter. As a matter of fact, we fear we'd "take a chance" ourselves if we knew how, on the theory of most inquirers that "a dollar won't hurt us, while a million would help."

Sweeps, in effect, are lotteries. Their lure is possibility of a large sum for a small investment. That is an age-old lure. Of course, the odds against the purchaser are tremendous, for there is the profit to the promoters or charity sponsoring the event and the costs of promotion. Yet, if honestly conducted, some one must win, so there's the appeal.

Where available, such tickets have found ready sale in this country. A sweep with a veterans' organization as beneficiary, with drawings held in Quebec, enjoyed a vogue two years ago and tickets were sold quietly in Chicago. Agua Caliente also had a sweep, with tickets costing $2 sold in Chicago, but some of the customers wondered whether the agents ever forwarded the money to the coast. There is always, you see, possibility of cheating in enterprises contrary to law.

We are told a concern in Phoenix, Ariz., is selling sweeps on the Kentucky Derby under a purported legal euphemism by which the purchaser becomes an associate member of a veterans' organization, getting a ticket as his receipt for "dues."

There is no question many persons would like to "shoot at the moon" in these sweepstakes. The Wake often has wondered whether a government supervised lottery is not preferable to "bootlegging" lottery operations. Let's discuss that subject some day.

CARNERA TO BE REINSTATED BY NEW YORK BOARD

Plan Bout Between Primo and Sharkey.

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight boxer who is under suspension here now, will be reinstated in the immediatie future. This was indicated today by Chairman James A. Farley of the state athletic commission.

The statement came following the commission meeting in a discussion of the heavyweight situation generally and projected plans for a Carnera-Jack Sharkey heavyweight bout in Ebbets field, Brooklyn, in June specifically.

Together with this information that plans are progressing for a heavyweight counter attraction here to the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling heavyweight title bout proposed for Cleveland under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois came assurances of a legal struggle in which the Garden Corporation of Illinois, with its New York affiliate, will line up against James J. Johnston, promoting at Ebbets field, in an attempt to prevent the acquisition of Carnera by Johnston.

Garden to Protest.

The Garden Corporation of Illinois will base its legal protest on the ground that Carnera is under contract to the Illinois corporation to battle in September against the winner of the Schmeling-Stribling bout tentatively scheduled for July 3 in Cleveland.

"Sooner or later Carnera will be restored to good standing. When we get ready we will reinstate him. When we suspended him it was because of the action of the California commission, but we had no working agreement with California then and we have none now. We suspended Carnera at the suggestion of Charles Traung, then a member of the California commission. Traung is no longer associated with the California commission."

Prepare for Legal Battle.

Promoter Johnston conferred with William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden corporation of this city. Johnston emerged from this conference with the information that in a board of directors meeting the Garden corporation pledged a legal battle which it is prepared to carry to the highest court in an effort to prevent Carnera's withdrawal from what it considers a valid contract on his services. President Carey would not deny or confirm this action nor would he discuss the situation.

Johnston expressed confidence in his ability to arrange the Carnera-Sharkey battle, which is planned principally in the interest of charity. He proposes to hold the bout some time between June 10 and 20, and is contemplating an admission price scale of from $2 to $25. With this scale as a basis Johnston said he thought a Carnera-Sharkey match would draw gate receipts of about $350,000.

Johnston insisted he has been legally advised the contract between Carnera and the Garden Corporation of Illinois can be broken and said he expects to make an official announcement of his plans on next Wednesday. Incidentally this is the date on which definite plans for the Schmeling-Stribling bout are to be announced.

Sixteen Thoroughbreds Perish in Stable Fire

Anchorage, Ky., April 7.—(AP)—Sixteen thoroughbred race horses were burned to death early tonight when a barn on the farm of W. C. Weant, Oakland station, was destroyed by fire. Matadi, Mr. Weant's eligible for the Kentucky Derby, was taken to Churchhill Downs after his arrival from St. John's park and escaped the flames.

HE POKES 'EM NOW

Reynolds Proves That Some Hitters are Made, Not Born

Atlanta, Ga., April 7.—Every once in a while some fellow steps into sport and upsets a pet theory. Carl Reynolds, just now one of the American league's ranking hitters, is one of those. He dealt a blow to the belief that hitters are born, not made. He made himself into one by cultivating batting habits that weren't at all natural to him. The .359 mark he turned in last season is sufficient evidence of the success of his experiment and now that he has done it, a flock of other batters may try to follow in his footsteps. If they do they are going to hurry the end of the present day "cow tail" swinging for home runs.

The making over of Reynolds from a batter who seemed hopeless because of his persistence of chasing curve balls on the outside corner dates back to June of last summer. Donie Bush, the Sox chief, had watched Carl pursue so many bad balls that he decided something had to be done or his flashy youngster from Texas wouldn't last. Carl was swinging free just as are most of the others in the two leagues. He wanted his share of the homers, and he figured swinging was the only way to get them.

Tries New System.

It was while the Sox were in Philadelphia that Bush took Reynolds in charge for some individual pointers on bat handling. Bush didn't ask, but ordered the lad to cut out his wild swinging.

"Hold that bat out in front of you. Keep your eye on the ball and poke at it. Use your wrists for power," were Bush's instructions.

Reynolds being more or less desperate about his batting average, experimented immediately. The first time he tried it he hit a ball against the announciator horns in right center field of the Athletics' park. The blow convinced him that long balls could be hit without swinging. He continued the experiment but for the next week or so struck out with greater frequency than when he was swinging. The change in style bothered him. He was for going back to the method most natural to him. Bush wouldn't permit it.

Reynolds Gets Results.

The fellow obeyed orders and finally got results. By holding his bat out in front, drawing back his arms slightly as the pitch approached and then poking, with his wrists furnishing power, he began to hit line drives. The stance made it impossible for him to even reach for the bad outside balls. It enabled him to hit the inside balls, which previously he had popped up. When the experiment started his average was under the .320 mark and the season more than two months gone, but when the finish came he had his .359. You can figure out how well he must have hit the last few months to add forty points to his average.

This spring Reynolds has been "pinging" the ball just as he did last season. Some of the pitchers who have faced him say they can't figure him for a weakness. The eye, of course, has a lot to do with it. He has the needed eye and can coördinate. Now Bill Cissell, who always had gone for free swinging in a big way, is doing it and showing promise. And the movement is going to attract others, especially if the new ball improves pitching. Any improvement in pitching is bound to add to the woes of the free swinger.

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE STARTS PENNANT RACE

Los Angeles, Cal., April 7.—[Special.]—Clubs in the Pacific coast baseball league inaugurated the coast loop's 29th annual pennant race, in four cities today. The major crowd was that which gathered in San Francisco's new park 20,000 strong to see the Seals whitewash Portland 5 to 0. Ten thousand turned out at Sacramento to see the Hollywood club's 1930 champions win, 6 to 3. Ten thousand more saw the Oakland opener with Oakland defeating the Missions, 2 to 0. Seattle beat Los Angeles here, 3 to 1 before 6,000.

Scozza Stops Bozo's String of Victories

Flint, Mich., April 7.—(AP)—Lou Scozza, Buffalo light heavyweight, won a close decision over Battling Bozo of Birmingham, Ala., in a ten round bout here tonight. Failure to get away to his customary early lead cost Bozo the bout, which ended his sensational string of victories. Both boos and cheers greeted the referee's decision.

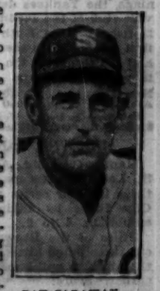
BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlanta, Ga., April 7.—Cecil Pat Caraway, the long left hander, today put in a claim for the distinction of being picked to pitch the season opener for the White Sox next Tuesday.



PAT CARAWAY.

In impressive fashion he went the regulation route against the Giants, and while Cecil Pat was having his little fun his companions were banging the ball hard enough to grab an easy 7 to 3 decision from the National leaguers. The Chicagoans now own five victories out of the eleven played during the preseason tour.

Sox Hit N. Y. Rookies.

Caraway suffered only one shaky inning, but this was as nothing compared with the liberties taken by the Sox with a pair of young New York pitchers. The first of these was Harold Schumacher, who was hit consistently enough to yield six runs in seven innings. Ray Lucas was next and he got a bit careless about his fielding in the eighth, so the Sox taught him a lesson by scoring their last run. Altogether fourteen hits were exploded by the winners, three of them being made by Luke Appling, the young shortstop.

The Sox came up boisterously with five hits to score three runs off Schumacher in the first inning. This episode didn't begin until after Cissell and Simons had filed out. Reynolds sailed a triple over Lindstrom and registered when Eichrodt singled. A safety by Appling moved Eichrodt to third. Watwood's hit scored Eichrodt and Appling dashed home on Kamm's single. Then the Sox made it 4 to 0 by picking up a run in the second on Caraway's single, a passed ball, and a single by Simons.

Giants Score Three.

After Terry and Ott had opened the Giants' second with hits, Caraway flattened the next three hitters with ease, but couldn't accomplish a similar feat when trouble loomed in the third. Critz opened this attack with a hit to left and Allen filed to the same spot. Lindstrom punched a single between short and third. The bases were filled when Appling knocked down Terry's hard single. Then Ott doubled to drive home Critz and Lindstrom. Terry scored while Cissell was throwing out Marshall. From this point to the finish Caraway surrendered only one more hit.

After passing up various openings in the innings immediately preceding, the Sox got after Schumacher in the seventh and the harvest was two runs. With one out Reynolds singled to center and Ott fumbled the ball momentarily, so Reynolds, being swift afoot, dashed down to second. Appling in response to applause from his home rooters of last season sneaked a triple down the right field line. Reynolds strolling home. Appling scored on a single by Watwood.

Hose Count Again.

Lucas, who assumed the Giant pitching job in the eighth, immediately presented the Sox with their final run. The inning began with Tate beating out a hit which neither O'Farrell nor Verges could pick up. Tate went to second on a passed ball, but O'Farrell picked him off the bag. Caraway walked and ran around to the plate when Lucas, after picking up Cissell's grounder, heaved it far into right field. Cissell took third on the error, but got no farther.

Shortly after their arrival here this morning the Sox were greeted by Lu Blue, their new first baseman, who just recently was purchased from the Browns. Blue, who had spurned a St. Louis contract in which his supposedly $15,000 salary had been sliced down by $5,000, was in uniform this afternoon, but confined himself to fielding at his chosen position.

Prior to today, Blue's only activity

Orsatti and Bottomley Hit Homers.

Birmingham, Ala., April 7.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals fell for the Birmingham Barons in a slugging match today. The score was 9 to 7.

Manager Gabby Street used Johnson, Stout, and Kaufmann on the mound, while Touchstone and Hasty worked for the Barons. Homers by Orsatti and Bottomley were features of the exhibition. Tomorrow the Cardinals play in Huntsville, Street's home town. Score:

INDIANS WIN, 11 TO 3.

New Orleans, La., April 7.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians today celebrated camp breaking day by blasting New Orleans' pitchers for 17 hits and an 11 to 3 victory. Pinky Shoffner gave one of the best pitching exhibitions of any Indian this spring. His smoke ball fooled four batters and made most of the others hit weakly for easy outs. Lew Fonseca hit a home run over the left field wall, while his erstwhile rival for first base, Eddie Morgan, made a couple of singles and tried third basing. He made one error in two fielding chances. Score:

New Orleans [S. A.]	000	000	000	3	3	2

ROBINS BEAT HARTFORD.

Macon, Ga., April 7.—(AP)—Behind some good pitching by Jack Quinn and Clyde Day the Robins set back the Hartford Senators of the Eastern league, 6 to 1, today. Quinn pitched seven innings and Hartford's three hits were made off the veteran spitballer. Score:

YANKS, 5; ASHEVILLE, 2.

Asheville, N. C., April 7.—(AP)—Scoring all their runs in the first two innings, the Yankees defeated the Asheville club of the Piedmont league, 5 to 2, today. Babe Ruth's double in the first inning led to the Yanks' first run, and his single in the second sent two more over the plate. Score:

SENATORS WIN, 17 TO 2.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 7.—(AP)—Twenty-five hits, several for extra bases, bounced from Senator bats today as Washington shelled Chattanooga to a 17 to 2 defeat. Sam Rice and Heinie Manush, hard hitting fielders, swatted almost perfect figures. Rice got a hit each of the first five times up. Joe Judge, captain, collected two doubles and a pair of other hits.

The Senators, who started for Washington tonight, will take on their first major league opponents tomorrow at Washington, when they meet the Boston Braves in an exhibition game. Score:

MAROON NINE TO BATTLE TEAM OF ALUMNI TODAY

Maroon baseball men will get their first competition of the season today when they meet an alumni team on Greenwood field, Greenwood avenue and the Midway, at 3 o'clock. Like all spring sports, the game is open to the public without admission charge.

Coach Pat Page has his squad in the best of shape and thinks that with a little experience in competition the Maroons will be a factor in the conference race. Art Cahill will pitch for the varsity, with Art O'Meara as his battery mate today.

Two other exhibition games have been arranged for this week. The Chicago All-Stars, composed of local players, will stage an informal game on the Midway tomorrow afternoon and the Maroons will play at the Mills Stadium on Saturday afternoon in a practice contest.

NEW FIELDHOUSE IS PROPOSED AS ROCKNE TRIBUTE

South Bend, Ind., April 7.—(AP)—Notre Dame's memorial to Knute Rockne probably will be in the form of a new field house.

At a meeting of the Notre Dame-Rockne memorial committee tonight the feeling was overwhelmingly in favor of a new fieldhouse and against the suggestion that the new football stadium be renamed in honor of the famous football coach.

"We believe a new fieldhouse, built with funds gathered from Rockne's admirers from all parts of the nation and world, would be more fitting than the plan to name the football stadium in Rockne's honor," one of the committee leaders said tonight. "Rockne should be remembered as a leader of men and a builder of character rather than a famous football coach."

Committees in all sections of the nation will be organized to collect funds for the Rockne memorial fund.

Purple Nine Drills for Big Ten Opener

Northwestern university's baseball squad resumed practice yesterday in preparation for the opening of the Big Ten season with Illinois at Urbe on Saturday. The Wildcats returned Sunday from their southern trip in which they dropped seven out of eight games.

The rough treatment at the hands of the Dixie teams has not discouraged the Purple players as they went south without any previous outdoor drill. The rapid improvement shown by the players indicates that the Wildcats will make a strong bid to duplicate the achievements of the football and basketball teams this year.

Pitchers Please Coach.

Coach Paul Stewart was pleased with the showing of his pitchers, Fyfe and Kruft, and plans to start one or the other against the Illini.

Northwestern will present a veteran infield with the exception of second base, which is held down by Phil Seghi, a sophomore. Capt. Larry Oliphant is playing his third year at first. Jack Dempsey is stationed at short and Don Schuett at third. Both are seniors.

Catching Job Undecided.

Two newcomers, Hi Crizevsky and Jimmy Evans, both members of the football team, are fighting it out for the catching assignment. Coach Stewart alternated these two men on the southern trip and has not made up his mind who to start regularly.

WESTERNERS GO EAST.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 7.—(AP)—Josephine McKim, Olive Hatch, Marjorie Low, and Jennie Cramer of the Los Angeles Athletic club, holders of the 880 yard world's outdoor relay swimming record, left by air today for New York to compete in the national indoor championships next week.

ENTRIES ROLLING IN FOR CENTRAL A. A. U. RING MEET

Because of the unprecedented demand for entry blanks in the Central A. A. U. boxing championships, the closing of entries has been held up until Saturday.

This announcement was made yesterday by Johnny Behr at the Illinois Athletic club, where the preliminary bouts will be held April 14, 15, and 16.

The large entry list is attributed to the fact that the finals will be fought at the Chicago Stadium on April 23. Roy Davis, chairman of the boxing committee of the A. A. U., and George T. Donoghue, chairman of the athletic committee of the Illinois A. C., are acting as co-chairmen in charge of the championships.

With more than 100 entries received, it is anticipated that the final list will run twice this number, all parts of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Minnesota contributing to the matches.

New Freak of Fortune Beats Bowie Choice

Bowie, Md., April 7.—[Special.]—It has been said that there are a thousand ways in which a thoroughbred can lose a horse race, but it is doubtful if the freak of fate which brought about the defeat of C. V. Whitney's King Boggen in the Capitol handicap today, is listed in anybody's book of reasons. The heavily backed favorite King Boggen was beaten by two lengths by the Nevada Stock Farm's Durva, yet it is doubtful if any one at the track today would deny that he was the best horse in the race.

Thirty yards from the finish, galloping easily with a comfortable lead, King Boggen stepped into the temporary rope fence, which closes the mouth of the mile and a sixteenth chute at that point and became momentarily entangled. He stumbled and was hung up for only a few split seconds, but the mishap enabled Durva to go driving by and win under the whip in a shower of mud and water.

The track conditions doubtless had something to do with King Boggen's misstep, for more than thirty hours of rain left the racing strip inches deep in mud and so slippery that a tight rope walker would need a hand rail to keep going in a straight line. Durva finished the seven furlongs in 1:27 3-5, and Remillard maintained his riding lead over Robertson.

third on Dalrymple's single to center. On the next play English made a beautiful pickup of Fowler's hot grounder, ran to second to get Dalrymple, then threw to Blair in time to double Fowler and nullify Moore's dash across the plate.

Cubs Regain Lead, Then Lose It.

The score became 6 to 5 in favor of the Cubs in the first of the seventh. Cuyler walked and moved to second on English's bunt. He scored on Jurges' single to left.

Krauss led off the eighth with a double back of third and Hardaway walked again. E. Moore beat out a bunt along the third base line, and the bases were full with none out. Dalrymple became Bush's first strikeout victim when he looked at a fast third one, but Fowler singled to left, scoring Krauss and Hardaway. Moore took third and Fowler second when Stevie juggled the ball. Brown was given an intentional pass again, filling the bases. Perry fanned. Then Cox grounded to Bush, but Blair muffed Coy's throw, Moore and Fowler scoring. Engle flied to Cuyler.

The Cubs filled the bases with one out in the ninth, but Stephenson hit into a double play.

How Hot Is It? The Crickets' Chirps Tell

BY BOB BECKER.

Although muskrats are supposed to be weather prophets, according to the old timers, who say that they can tell what kind of winter is due by the thickness of a rat's marsh house, there is one little insect around Chicagoland that has the muskrat completely overshadowed when it comes to indicating the weather.

We learned about this insect and its powers through a visit with Prof. Alvin Frost of Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, an astronomer widely known as a naturalist, especially in the field of ornithology. Prof. Frost found, after many days of observation and experiments, that the common white cricket always chirps in relation to temperature. So constant is this insect's reaction to temperature that by a simple calculation you can tell how the thermometer reads by counting chirps.

A Simple Method.

Here is the method: Count the cricket's chirps for 13 seconds, add the number 42, and you have the temperature. Of course, this "cricket thermometer" isn't any good if the temperature is below 42. In other words, if you were to step out of the house some fall or spring morning and walk to a clump of bushes where you have heard crickets, and not one of them is making a sound, it must be 41 degrees or lower. But above this zero or freeze-up point for the insects, the outdoor thermometer will function all right. The warmer it gets the faster their singing is.

Prof. Frost has told us of the many times he has checked this schedule of the insects during summer, spring, and fall. One of the interesting sidelights on this discovery of constant relationship between the activity of an insect and temperature readings is the fact that some months ago he learned of a scientist in the east who had been conducting a similar series of studies on the cricket.

Another Scientist Agrees.

In comparing statistics and deductions these two men discovered that there was just one degree difference in their findings. The eastern scientist said that he had records for thirty years.

This little cricket study, brought to mind because we have had two black crickets in our house all winter, merely illustrates how little most of us know about even common creatures of field and stream, even though we may hear and see them day after day and year after year. It takes these men with a scientific turn of mind to dig up curious facts like these.

CHARGES AT FOE WHEN DECISION IS AGAINST HIM

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—Sally Schwartz, English welterweight, scored off the decision over Andy Savilo of Bay Ridge, tonight in ten torrid rounds of fighting at the Broadway arena, Brooklyn, and almost provoked a disorderly outbreak.

Announcement of the decision in Schwartz' favor when the final bell ended hostilities so enraged Savilo that he made a desperate lunge at his foe and had to be restrained by his handlers and special policemen.

this spring was a few days of intensive indoor training at Washington after his sale to the Sox was announced.

While thus engaged he devoted himself principally to throwing. One day he tossed heavily for a half hour without feeling any soreness in the arm which incapacitated him last season. He is quite certain he is not going to be an invalid and has promised to be among those in action when the Hose kick open the season next Tuesday at Cleveland.

Ted Lyons, ailing star of the Bush staff, put his arm through a few minutes of earnest pitching again today. This was the second successive day in which he endeavored to make the soreness in his shoulder reassert itself. Nothing happened, so Ted now believes he can begin to get ready for his summer's work. He hasn't pitched in a game since March 22.

The Sox and Giants hopped aboard their circus train immediately after the game for a four hour ride over to Greenville, S. C., where they exhibit tomorrow. The hurried departure from here was devised so as to provide the performers with a night in stationary beds.

A NIGHT LETTER from Ring Lardner

Tucson, Ariz., April 7.—[Special.] Merely another letter from Pittsburgh's rookie pitcher, Willis Clough: "Please excuse the hand writing as I am writing this on the train and it is kind of shakey. I have no idea where it will get mailed from but the boys say that all I have to do is stick a stamp on the envelope and give it to the porter on this train who they have travelled with on other trips and call him George and he will jump off at some station where we stop a little wile and give it to some friend to mail. He is a colored man just like the porter that was on the train between Los Angeles and Frisco. They make up the berths and shine your shoes. We will be in Kansas City Wednesday and start a series of five games with the Detroit Tigers. Our last three games with them will be in Detroit next Friday and Saturday and Sunday. I asked Manager Ens if he would let me pitch one of the games and he says he was afraid not because if we don't get to Chicago in time for the opening next Tuesday the Pittsburgh club will be find one thousand dollars. I guest he did not understand what I was asking and maybe he is hard of hearing as there has been several times when I started to talk to him and he walked away before I had hardly said Mr. Ens and one time I thought he did not like to be called Mr. so I called him by his first name Jewel and he walked away just the same only faster."

Hawks Off to Play Canadiens for Ice Title

Determined to bring the Stanley cup, emblematic of the world's hockey championship, back to Chicago within the next ten days, the Blackhawks entrained last night for Montreal, where they will face the Flying Frenchmen Thursday night in the first of a possible three game series.

The Hawks are in fine condition and ready to put up a stirring battle for the title. They played Les Canadiens off their feet last Sunday night in Chicago to even the series at one all, and similar hard checking tactics should enable Maj. McLaughlin's squad to make a great showing.

The Frenchmen may have the services of Battleship Leduc and Armond Mondou for the Montreal series. Both were left on hospital cots when their mates went to Chicago, but their respective shoulder fractures may have mended sufficiently to permit their playing if Manager Cecil Hart feels the need of more man power.

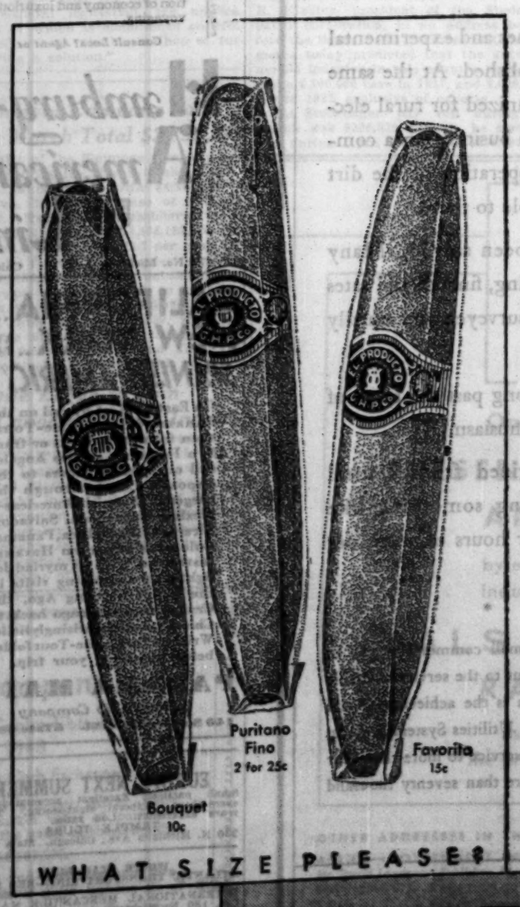
EL PRODUCTO / MILDNESS /

Do you know what Mildness means?



Mildness in El Producto does not mean the mildness of flat, tasteless tobacco that tires the taste of its own monotony.

It means the mellow mildness of cunning, uncopyable blending of the choicest tobaccos, subtly combined to give that distinctive taste that is El Producto's alone—a taste that makes you want to smoke all day long, and—a mildness that makes the last smoke as enjoyable as the first.

You will find an El Producto size to suit your fancy.

ASSOC. APPAREL SHARES BREAK SHARPLY LOWER

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stock of the Associated Apparel Industries broke sharply on the New York and Chicago Stock exchanges yesterday as market support was withdrawn. On the final sale on the Chicago exchange the issue brought 10½, a decline of 12½ points from its last previous quotation here of $22 a share.

A secondary distribution of the company's stock had been attempted by a Chicago banking house and during the selling campaign the issue had been supported in the high twenties. The company has continued to pay dividends at the rate of $2 annually while carrying out an ambitious expansion program. At last night's closing price the stock yields around 19 per cent. It is not known how much of the stock was distributed by the banking house. The sharp break started reports that the company has encountered difficulty in carrying out its expansion program.

Other Losses Are Small.

The break in Associated Apparel was out of line with the general market action. Stocks continued soggy, but losses were small. There was nothing in the day's news to inspire enthusiasm in the speculators for the advance. Traders displayed caution throughout the session and there was a minimum of outside participation.

The Zenith Radio corporation, whose stock has sold below 5 during the greater part of the current year, yesterday released a report on first quarter operations. E. F. McDonald Jr., president, said that the company had an operating deficit for the period of $165,386 after all charges. He stated that the company has been forced to make sharp price reductions because the radio market has been glutted with distress merchandise.

Despite the unfavorable conditions the company has been able to maintain a satisfactory financial position, he stated. Net current assets of the firm at the end of the quarter amounted to $1,664,836.

Final Financing Step.

The final step in short term financing program of the Construction Materials company is to be carried out today through the marketing by a banking group of $1,500,000 in two year six per cent notes. The syndicate is headed by Union Cleveland corporation and A. G. Becker & Co. The notes are being offered at 99½.

The first financing consisted of $1,650,000 first mortgage marine equipment 6 per cent bonds of the Sensibar Transportation company, which is a wholly owned subsidiary. The company is engaged in the sand and gravel business on the great lakes, operating a fleet of vessels to transport the materials.

186,632 DROUGHT REGION LOANS MADE; TOTAL, $27,472,000

Washington, D. C., April 7.—(AP)—Secretary Hyde reported to President Hoover today that his department had made 186,632 loans to farmers in the drought area totalling $27,472,000. The secretary recently returned from an extensive trip in the drought area. His report was made to Mr. Hoover at the cabinet meeting and at the President's request. Mr. Hyde remained to announce the results of his trip to the President's regular Tuesday press conference.

Hyde said he had inspected the countryside most affected by the drought and that in his opinion the federal program for drought aid had been successful.

JUNK NEARLY THREE MILLION AUTOS IN 1930

New York, April 7.—In 1930 2,925,000 motor vehicles were sent to the scrap heap as a result of the normal wearing out of cars and the special junking plan of the manufacturers with their dealers under which 350,000 additional vehicles were removed from the highways as unsafe, it was announced by Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Reeves stated that manufacturers representing more than 87 per cent of the industry's production are now cooperating with their dealers in a program under which the dealer is partially compensated for a certain number of unsafe cars which he may junk rather than attempt to resell after tradeins.

SCHORSCH PLANS FORTY HOMES ON NORTHWEST SIDE

BY AL CHASE.

Work is scheduled to start within sixty days on the first unit of a building program by Albert J. Schorsch in his English village development in the Oak Park avenue and Belmont avenue area, which will give that district forty new homes. They will have from five to seven rooms each and will retail at $11,000 to $12,000. Last year Mr. Schorsch erected fifty homes in this same neighborhood. All the houses he has built and all he contemplates are of English design.

A building permit for the erection of a 1,500,000 bushel grain elevator by the Rosenbaum Grain corporation has been taken out. The building, it is announced, ultimately will cost $330,000. It adjoins the concern's present elevator at 107th and the Calumet river. It will be 93x197 and will be 124 feet high. The James Stewart corporation is engineer and contractor. Work has started and completion is set for June 1.

Business Quadruples.

The Metropolitan District Realty Trust reports that nearly four times the volume of business done in January, February and March of 1930 has been done in the same months of this year.

"Every indication points to a rapid resumption of home building," said Ernest J. Teberg, vice president of the company, "and we have excellent reason to believe that during the coming season our organization will have under construction not less than $2,500,000 worth of dwellings and apartments, basing this estimate on the comparison of the first quarter of 1931 with that of 1930.

"Our total business for January, February and March of last year was $78,900, or less than for January alone of this year, which was $79,650. Our 1931 construction thus far is being done in Chicago, Niles Center, Westchester, Maywood, Lake Forest, Highland Park, Elmhurst, Park Ridge and Wilmette."

Montrose Avenue Deal.

Hazel I. Clutter of Evanston has sold the six apartment building at 735-39 Montrose avenue, having sixty feet of frontage, to the Foreman-State Trust and Savings bank, trustee for an undisclosed buyer. The price was not given, but the deal was made subject to an incumbrance of $24,250. Mrs. Clutter accepted as part payment the two apartments at 1320 North Wood street and thirty-five acres adjoining Mercer, Wis. Edwin Solon & Co. were brokers.

The Sully Sandwich Shops, Inc., have leased for a term of years the store at 56 East Jackson boulevard, in the Lyon & Healy building. The rental is on the basis of a fixed guarantee plus a percentage of the gross sales. Harold H. Egan & Co. were brokers.

The W. E. Meyers Agency and Loan corporation has sold the property at 5246-48 South Ashland avenue, containing three stores and four apartments, to R. W. Fairbanks of Kalamazoo, Mich., for a reported $70,000, subject to $33,000. A Michigan farm was given in part payment.

DIVIDEND CUTS ANNOUNCED BY SEVERAL FIRMS

Forces at work during the last year which have cut into the profits of nearly all corporations found belated reflection yesterday in the dividend actions of directors of several companies. Columbian Carbon company directors omitted the extra dividend of 25 cents a share usually declared quarterly, but declared the regular quarterly disbursement of $1. American Chain company placed its common stock on a $3 annual basis with declaration of a quarterly dividend of 50 cents. Previously 75 cents quarterly was paid.

Directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé railroad declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 on common, payable June 1 to record May 1. While several other leading carriers recently reduced dividend payments, financial circles did not anticipate any change.

Directors of the National Department Stores declared a dividend of $1 a share on the first preferred stock. The company has been paying $1.75 quarterly. The Truax-Traer Coal company directors voted to omit the quarterly dividends of 40c on the common stock due at this time.

Directors of the American Express Bank and Trust company authorized today an initial dividend of $1 a share, thus placing the bank on a dividend basis one year after its organization. A spokesman for the bank of International Settlements said that the management of the bank will propose to the May meeting of the board of directors a declaration of a 6 per cent dividend, Swiss dispatches said.

Cerro de Pasco Copper Co. Reduces Its Dividend Rate

Cerro de Pasco Copper company directors yesterday reduced the annual dividend rate on the stock to $1.50 from $2 by declaring a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share.

Chicago Curb Exchange Stocks

Chicago curb stocks declined yesterday and a number of issues duplicated previous minimum prices of the year. Net declines, however, were practically all held within one point limits. Most of the trading interest was centered in recent leaders, including De Forest, Rustless Iron, Hendrick Ranch Royalties, and Photocolor. The recently listed common stock of Keystone Consolidated Mines, Inc., was admitted to trading and made its bow at 1¼.

EASTMAN KODAK REPORTS PROFIT OF $20,353,788

Reveals Second Best Year in History.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Fifty years ago in a one room shop in Rochester, N. Y., George Eastman experimented with a machine for coating dry plates and took out his first patent. From that humble beginning has grown the $107,000,000 Eastman Kodak company, which has more than 25,000 employés and twelve manufacturing plants throughout the world. In addition, the company owns or controls companies operating 244 establishments in 170 cities in 52 countries.

GEORGE EASTMAN.

In spite of last year's depression, Eastman Kodak had the second most prosperous period in its history, Mr. Eastman, who is chairman of the board, reported yesterday. Its net earnings for 1930 were $20,353,788, equivalent after preferred dividends to $9.54 a share on 2,261,030 common shares. Dividends totaling $8 were paid on the common stock, after which $1,394,866 was added to surplus, which now stands at $84,675,404.

Profits Close to 1929.

Last year's profits were exceeded only in 1929, when net earnings were $23,664,915, equivalent to $9.56 a share on the common stock. Then, too, dividends totaling $8 were paid on the common shares, after which $4,936,561 was added to surplus. The balance sheet as of Dec. 27, 1930, shows current assets of $86,559,183 and current liabilities of $13,415,572, constituting a strong financial position.

The extensive expansion program carried on last year is reflected in the valuation of $79,742,284 given to the company's land, buildings, plant, and machinery, including investments in and advances to affiliated companies. This item shows an increase of $10,411,329 over 1929. The annual report explains the company's efforts to stabilize employment last year. Only 2½ per cent of workers engaged in production were laid off last year, which compares with an average of 2 per cent from 1922 to 1929, and with 14 per cent in 1921, the previous depression year.

A. & P. HAS BEST YEAR

More remarkable was the annual report of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company covering its fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1931. Despite demoralized conditions in the world commodity markets last year, the company established new high records in both dollar and tonnage sales, in number of units operated and in earnings.

Sales exceeded the billion dollar mark for the second consecutive year, the total for the fiscal year being $1,-885,864,885, an increase of $12,114,003 over the preceding period. Tonnage sales rose to 5,190,955 tons, compared with 4,842,116. Although the average retail price per ton declined from $237.61 to $205.32, the net profit on each dollar of sales was 2.88 cents, which was the best showing since 1924, when the margin was 3.13 cents. At the end of February the company operated 15,737 stores, an increase of 239 for the year.

Net earnings for the year were $30,-742,778, equivalent after preferred dividends, to $13.35 a share on 2,086,748 common shares, compared with net income of $26,219,631, or $11.77 a share on 2,073,916 common shares in the preceding fiscal year. The balance sheet as of Feb. 28 shows current assets of $136,132,826 and current liabilities of $33,623,835.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC SHRINKS

The promising trend of railroad freight traffic in the first three weeks of March was reversed in the final week. Loading of revenue freight for the week ended March 28 totaled 740,-478 cars, a decline of 1,863 from the preceding week and also a decrease of 56,665 from the corresponding week in 1930. The total also fell 229,117 cars below the same week in 1929.

Silver Slump Disorganizes All Business in Mexico

This is the first of three articles on the effect of the drastic decline in the price of silver on the monetary system and commerce of Mexico. The remaining articles will be printed in succeeding issues of The Tribune.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, April 7.—The silver question in Mexico has two distinct aspects, local and foreign. While these are, to a certain extent, interdependent, each situation demands separate treatment. Naturally the Mexican government has attempted to deal only with the local situation because it alone comes within the sphere of its activities.

For the past decade the Mexican silver currency has continued to fluctuate and it would undoubtedly continue to do so even if the influence of the foreign stock markets were removed, because of the setady heavy importations which must be paid for in dollars or other foreign money.

The situation is complicated by the fact that Mexico, theoretically on a gold standard, does the greater part of her local business in silver which has daily to adjust its par of exchange not only with its own gold standard but with the demands of the various foreign markets with which she deals constantly.

Imports Increase.

Her foreign importations have become heavier, from year to year, throughout the past two decades of revolution, counter revolution, national unrest and experiments in government, all of which tended to disorganize the social structure of the nation. It is true, reconstruction has commenced but this has tended to make more active the fluctuations of the silver peso because of the demand upon it by the new activities fighting the disorganized conditions of the money market, the extreme conservatism of the banks and the consequent lack of capital.

National reorganization is fighting the sins of the past. Agriculture, hard hit by the confiscation of haciendas and farms and the consequent disappearance of agrarian credit, is staggering to its feet, but it finds no credit from the banks and the money lenders, who, where they can be found, charge from two to three per cent per month.

The oil industry, which a few years ago paid upwards of forty-five million dollars a year into the coffers of the government, has gone on the rocks so badly that its contribution is now almost negligible. The disorganization of industrial centers, the excessive demands of organized labor, the practicable bankruptcy of the railways and the general lack of credit ushered in with them have created a monetary situation bordering upon anarchy; and the burden has fallen largely upon the Mexican silver currency. National reconstruction all along the line has increased this burden.

Cling to Silver Coinage.

Previous to 1900 the Mexican peso, on a par with the American dollar, frequently was at a premium over it because of the heavy exports of the nation. Mexican pesos were subject to heavy exportations to China, India, and other parts of the east; and the resultant constant coinage became a burden upon the Mexican government.

Finally it was decided to put the country on a gold standard basis and to relegate silver to the rank of a subsidiary supporting currency. When Mexico entered the ranks of the gold standard nations it looked as if she were going to keep step with them but the Mexican people clung to the old silver coinage and continued to do business in it. Fluctuations in the par of silver followed.

The world war had given temporary success to Mexico's gold standard experiment. The exportation of native products on a comparatively large scale coupled with the boom in oil and the demand for minerals, had brought with them unusual prosperity.

Hits Gold Standard.

But at the close of the war, when the world began to pay for its extravagance and recklessness, and revolutionary activities continued in Mexico, strangling industries, disorganizing society and sweeping away national and local institutions, the gold standard was the first to feel the effects; and upon silver, its supporting currency, was thrown the burden of carrying the financial transactions of the nation. When the world crisis came, bringing with it the slump in silver, the fluctuation in the latter brought with it disorientation in all lines of business.

APPEAL TO RELIEVE AMERICAN CITIZENS OF DOUBLE TAXATION

Washington, D. C., April 7.—(AP)—Action looking toward relieving American citizens of international double taxation was urged today by the federal taxation committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

A special report said citizens of this country engaged in business abroad were subjected to extra burden by having to pay taxes to the United States and the nation in which the operations were conducted.

The committee said: "Unless some constructive action is taken, an American engaged in international transactions is likely to find himself at a distinct disadvantage in comparison with his foreign competitors."

"The United States government," the report said, "should encourage conferences with foreign governments for the purpose of furthering solution of the problem and be represented at all general international conferences held to consider the question.

Simmons Company Sales for March Total $2,797,875

Sales of the Simmons company and subsidiaries for March totaled $2,797,-875, as compared with $4,315,954 in March, 1930, a decrease of 35.1 per cent. Exclusive of subsidiaries, sales were $2,182,262 and $3,108,193, respectively, a decrease of 29.7 per cent.

Sales for the first quarter aggregated $7,386,852, including subsidiaries, a decrease of 33.6 per cent as compared with the total of $11,136,896 for the first three months of 1930, while exclusive of subsidiaries the quarter's sales were $5,625,554 and $7,739,114, respectively, a drop of 27.3 per cent.

Invite Legge to Join Canadian Grain Inquiry

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINNIPEG, Man., April 7.—Alexander Legge, former chairman of the United States farm board, has been asked by Premier Bennet of Canada at suggestion of western premiers to be a member of the royal commission of inquiry into futures trading on grain exchanges, sitting with Sir Josiah Stamp of London.

STANDARD OIL OF INDIANA PLANS TO CHANGE SETUP

A proposal for reorganization of the corporate structure of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, to be presented to stockholders at the annual meeting May 7, involves no fundamental change, a statement issued from the company's office said today.

It was explained that reorganization is intended merely to place the corporation under the 1929 corporation law of Indiana, the act of 1889 having become archaic. The company's charter expires in 1939. Stockholders will be asked to vote on a change allowing 15 directors instead of 11 as at present.

"This is mere provision for the future," the statement said. "It is not the intention actually to enlarge the board to 15 at the next meeting and it cannot be said in advance of the meeting whether there will be any addition to the board."

Studebaker's Pay Roll Is $300,000 a Week in March

South Bend, Ind., April 7.—(AP)—A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation, in an address before the South Bend Chamber of Commerce today predicted that the automobile industry in this country would make 3,100,000 cars in 1931, and 4,000,000 in 1932, exclusive of exports.

The Studebaker pay roll during March was $300,000 a week, he said, and during April it will be $350,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 7.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced today that another block of government securities amounting this time to $275,000,000 will be placed on the market April 15. Certificates maturing in eight months and bearing 1¾ per cent interest will be offered to the public, the treasury announced, instead of the usual bills.

This new federal financing will bring the total issue of government securities since March 15 up to more than $1,800,000,000. The new financing has been necessitated by the excess of expenditures over ordinary receipts, which up to date this fiscal year has amounted to more than $600,000,000. Although the treasury has maintained a large cash balance, more than $500,000,000 at the present time, it was indicated that these sums would be necessary owing to the demands from the veterans' bureau for loans on adjusted service certificates and for other purposes. There is comparatively little of the public debt outstanding, $53,811,000 of treasury notes called March 15 and but $2,088,000 in certificates. Total outstanding issues of the public debt amount to $71,359,595.

The big program on government financing resulted in part from the enactment of legislation increasing the loan value of adjusted compensation certificates held by veterans.

St. Regis Paper Company Shows $4,217,522 Profit

Floyd L. Carlisle, president of the St. Regis Paper company, yesterday announced net earnings of $4,217,522 after all charges for 1930 and told stockholders the company's ownership of United Corporation common stock served to expand and diversify its substantial investment in public utilities, at the same time holding intact its dividend income and retaining its ratio of earnings from this source.

Net for last year was equal to 95 cents a share on the company's stock, compared with $4,664,873, or $1.08 a share, on the common stock outstanding at the close of 1929. This does not include the undistributed earnings on the shares of Niagara Hudson Power held by the company during these years, which would bring the total applicable to the common stock up to $1.15 a share for 1930, against $1.30 a share for 1929.

Union Oil of California Votes Regular Dividend

Los Angeles, April 7.—(AP)—Directors of the Union Oil company of California have voted the regular quarterly cash dividend of fifty cents per share to be distributed May 9 to stockholders on record at the close of business April 17.

See Slight Drop in Demand for Gasoline This Summer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 7.—The total potential demand for American gasoline both for export and domestic consumption during the next six months was placed, in a report from the voluntary committee on petroleum economics to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur today at 252 million barrels, a decline of 0.8 per cent below the demand during the corresponding period last year.

Crude oil from domestic sources anticipated as necessary to supply the potential gasoline demand was put at 461,434,000 barrels, a daily average of 2,521,497 barrels.

The report of the voluntary committee which is submitted semi-annually to the chairman of the federal oil conservation board, is designed to give producers an idea of the probable demands for their product that they may control production accordingly and eliminate wasteful practices from the industry.

Will Affect Conference.

The present report will bear much weight during the conference on oil to be held Thursday between the conservation board and the oil states advisory committee which is seeking to improve producers' prices for petroleum through a program of domestic curtailment of output and proration-ing of imports from foreign countries.

The first of two executive sessions was held by members of the advisory committee today. Among those present were W. M. Davis, president of the Midcontinent Oil association; W. H. Boyd, vice president of the American Petroleum institute; Wirt Franklin, president of the Independent Petroleum Producers' association, and Robert Penn, president of the Penn Oil company of Texas.

The session was held for the purpose of outlining the details of the compact between principal producing states for curtailment which will be presented to the conservation board during Thursday's conference. Following the session Cicero I. Murray, chairman of the advisory committee, said that practically all the independent producers were in agreement on the curtailment plan of the committee.

Advises Committee.

The committee was advised by Secretary Wilbur to confine its proposed plan to such activities as are within the powers of the several states. He made mention of no portion of the proposed plan, but his remarks were interpreted as referring to a committee proposal whereby it would suggest a price to the purchasers but without actually engaging in price fixing activities.

Mr. Wilbur is of the opinion that if the supply of petroleum is properly controlled the price phase will take care of itself.

Oil Output Declines.

New York, April 7.—(AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 23,250 brls in the week ended April 4, totaling 2,252,100 brls, the American Petroleum institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California decreased 17,950 brls to 1,727,000 brls.

Refineries representing 95.7 per cent of estimated total capacity operated at 62.5 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,231,900 brls. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 95.7 per cent of total operated at 65.3 per cent of capacity, was 2,332,400 brls. Gasoline stocks at these refineries were 46,076,000 brls, against 47,444,000 brls.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 7.—[Special.]—Plans to divest the Fox Film corporation of its direct holdings of working control of Loew's, Inc., a demand which has already been made by a federal suit under the Clayton act, are contained in the refinancing program for Fox Film, which will be completed by April 15. The stock of Loew's, the purchase of which was one of the main causes of Fox Film's financial difficulties last year, will be transferred to a holding company to be organized under auspices of the corporation's new bankers, the Chase Securities corporation.

Fox Film, which paid approximately $75,000,000 for the block of 66,900 shares of Loew's early last year, will receive $19,600,000 in cash and blocks of preferred and common stocks of the new holding company, according to present plans. The cash will be realized from the sale of $20,000,000 of two year notes or debentures of the holding company.

In addition Fox film will receive 100,000 shares of $7 dividend preferred stock of the new holding company which is as yet unnamed. The shares will have an indicated value of $10,000,000. BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 7.—United States Steel common bumped a new 1931 price bottom of 135¼ in today's dealings on the New York stock exchange. New York Central hit a fresh low of 105¾ and Westinghouse Manufacturing chimed in by dropping to 82¼. Corresponding records by lesser lights of the list were numerous.

It was a bad day all around for forces trying to clamp themselves against the headlong retreat of the market, now twelve days old and apparently still going strong. Losses of 1 and 3 points were the rule for the entire list with a discouraging increase in the daily scattering of even sharper breaks. There was no room left for doubt anywhere that speculative Wall street has a bad case of the blues and that it is going to take something more heroic than the Pollyanna predictions of the professional soothsayers to revive the district's drooping spirits.

Talk of a revival "just around the corner" no longer carries any weight with anybody marketwise so far as the signs show. The speculative crowd is all fed up on "corners." What it wants is something like the sea monster in the circus—something that can be "seen, felt, and examined."

And until the concrete evidence is forthcoming it is very obviously taking in the storm shutters and otherwise getting set to weather eventualities.

Report Big Pools Quit.

Word was about today that a number of big pools in different issues had given up the ghost with the rest and were shutting up shop until conditions look brighter. Unloading of their holdings was blamed for some of the sharper breaks of the list, among them Associated Apparel, which dropped more than 7 points on heavy selling.

Sporadic bear pressure here and there and an increasing spread of liquidation were other factors of the market's weakness. Trading was almost entirely professional, as it has been for the last fortnight. The public, apparently not having come in on the February rise, continued to hold to the side lines, showing little or no active interest in the proceedings.

Cattle and hog prices continued to break yesterday, while the lamb market scored one of the sharpest advances of the season. Top aged wool lambs reached $9.85, a new high mark for the year which goes back to last August for a higher level. Five weeks ago top lambs were selling at $8.75. Supplies have dropped off at all leading markets and receipts in sight for the remainder of the season for "aged" lambs are not large.

Chicago receipts yesterday at 13,000 were equal to the ~~s~~est for Tuesday in more than six weeks. Freshly shorn lambs sold at $9.00 yesterday. A few native springers reached $14.00, while $11.50 was paid for four carloads of California spring lambs.

September Hogs Bring $8.85.

The hog market weakened as the day progressed, closing at the full decline, in face of the lighter supply estimated for today. The extreme top declined 15c at $8.10, although most light weights were 20@25c lower soon after the opening, while medium and weighty butchers showed losses of 10@15c in most instances.

Lightweight hogs for next September delivery were sold at $8.85 on the futures market yesterday. April light were offered at $8.25 and bid $8.00, while May and June light were offered at $8.50 and bid $8.25. On the "to arrive" market today's lightweights carried bids of $8.00, but the lowest offers stopped at $8.20. Mediums for today were offered at $7.70 and bid $7.50, while heavy grades carried bids of $7.00 and were offered at $7.30.

Yearlings Down 25 Cents.

Yearling cattle were more plentiful yesterday and prices declined mostly 25c. A few carloads of well finished medium and heavy cattle, the kinds eligible to $10.00 and above, held almost steady, but were too few in numbers to cut much figure in the trade. Thousands of head of medium to good grades at $7.00@8.50 showed the decline. Common grades of beef merit were bought as low as $6.50. Only 13 steers averaging 1,505 lbs. reached $10.50, the extreme top. Butcher stock ruled steady to 25c lower. Calves slumped 50c. Stockers and feeders were scare and steady.

DURANT MOTORS OF CANADA 1930 LOSS IS $150,344

TORONTO, Ont., April 7.—(AP)—Durant Motors of Canada, Limited, today reported a net loss of $150,344 in 1930 against a net profit of $401,378 in the previous year. Payment of dividends of $113,970 left a profit and loss of $264,314 for the year and reduced the surplus from $1,165,422 to $891,110.

The Durant Motors corporation of Lansing, Mich., obtained an injunction today restraining the Durant Motors of Canada, Ltd., from approving the proposed sale of its assets to a company to be known as Dominion Motors, Ltd.

BEATRICE CREAMERY PROFITS ARE REDUCED BY DECLINES IN PRICES

Beatrice Creamery company for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1931, reports net income of $3,389,373, being equivalent to $7.13 a share on 372,241 shares of common stock outstanding Feb. 28, 1931, against $5,533,496, or $7.31 a share on 270,395 shares outstanding Feb. 28, 1930. Current assets at the end of the last fiscal year totaled $10,380,121, including cash of $2,396,358, against current liabilities of $1,477,621. Working capital increased to $8,872,610. Total assets were $34,136,147.

Steady and severe declines in dairy product prices cut into earnings. Expansion of the Beatrice Creamery company is mainly effected by acquisitions financed largely by the issue of stock.

The decline in dollar sales, notwithstanding substantially greater volume of business, is due, President C. H. Haskell stated, to the decline in the value of the products handled. Butter in the fiscal year just closed averaged .3295 cents a pound, compared with .4295 the year previous, a decline of 18 per cent. Eggs averaged .2473 a dozen, against .3605 a dozen in the prior fiscal year, a decline of 29 per cent. In the creamery butter department production suffered last summer due to drought, but output during the winter months averaged more than the year before.

PRICES OF NEW CROP FUTURES CLOSE LOWER

Foreign Wheat Market's Weakness Is Factor.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Failure of foreign wheat markets to respond to the strength in North America when the former were closed for the Easter holidays was responsible for a break of around 1c in the new crop futures at Chicago yesterday, with the July touching 60¾c, or 1c under the high of last Saturday. Trading against bids checked the decline, but the finish was at net losses of ¾@¾c with July 60¾c, September 63¾ and December 62¾@62½c. May closed unchanged at 83c.

According to pit brokers there was a selling of July wheat during the day which had the earmarks of hedging against the new crop. Reports from a far greater part of the winter wheat belt were excellent, and in some sections there was a disposition to extend a somewhat higher condition to that shown by the government report on Thursday to show a slightly higher condition than the average of 88.6 indicated by the recent private reports.

Winnipeg Wheat Weakens.

Although Winnipeg wheat showed independent weakness as compared with Chicago and closed 2⅛@3 lower, with July at 59c, there was practically no liquidation in the local market, the selling being scattered. Liverpool finished ¼d lower to ¼d higher as compared with Thursday, with the July closing about 62¾c, losing some ground as compared with North American markets.

Little attention is being paid at the present time to the prospects of insect damage to either the winter or spring wheat crops. R. O. Cromwell, the Armour Bros. & Co. expert, was out with a statement suggesting that serious damage might occur from cutworms in parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta due to the abnormally mild and dry weather the past winter. Crops were severe in some sections of the prairie provinces last year, as much as 50 per cent in a few instances.

Corn Nears Seasons Low.

Local professionals continue to take a bearish view of the corn market, and with lack of aggressive buying except from holders of bids the close was ⅛@⅝c lower with May finishing at 60@60¼c; July, 62¼@62¾c; September, 60¾@60¾c, and December, 51@51¼c.

May at the inside touched 59¾c, or within ¼c of the lowest figure of the season, and the drop in the nearby future was in the face of firmness in the cash basis here and an advance of ½@1c at Kansas City.

Liquidation developed in May oats shortly before the close with a sharp drop which carried the old style future down to 29¼c, a new low on the crop, and to the lowest level that has prevailed since 1906. Stop loss orders were caught on the way down. Cash and commission houses bought on the break and the finish was on a rally with net losses of ½@¾c. May being 29⅜ to 29¾c; July and September, 30½c, and December, 32c. Shipping sales aggregated 84,000 bu.

There has been a fairly good export business passing in Canadian barley of late and it is understood that the stocks of this grain in the east are now in strong hands. Export bids were said to be in the market for moderate quantities of Canadian rye, but no material business was anticipated until later in the season. Rye futures in Chicago closed ½@¾c lower in sympathy with wheat, May being 35⅝c; July 35½c, and September, 35½c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Long wheat and corn came into the markets during the closing hours that demoralized holders and carried prices down to the lowest of the day, from which there was practically no recovery. Weakness in the stock and cotton markets was taken as a basis for the selling of grains, while the support came mainly from shorts and holders of privileges. Sentiment was more bearish, especially from the southwest, with hedging selling orders from that section a feature in the last hour. Markets at the finish appeared to have few friends. There were heavy sales of "bids" on corn, while in wheat "offers" were the favorite.

The disposition on the part of wheat traders is to expect only small rallies until export business is improved and there is no change in the crop prospects. The situation in corn is one where small receipts and expectations of an improved cash demand to create confidence among those friendly to the market while the only bearish factor is believed to be the disparity of prices as compared with wheat. There were traders, however, who believed there will be little money in selling corn short around the 60c level.

TRADE IN LARD LIGHT

Trading in lard was small yesterday with a little buying credited to eastern interests, and scattered offerings. Largest bidders in the east are said to have a pretty good sized line bought here for July and September delivery, packers being the recent sellers.

Outside packers are in the market to a moderate extent and are credited with selling on bulges. Prices had a narrow range and the close was at net losses of 5@7½c and 7½@12c lower on bellies. Liverpool lard was 6d higher on spot and unchanged for futures. Exports of lard were 1,768,740 lbs and of bacon 369,500 lbs. Prices follow:

LESS COTTON USED

World's consumption of American cotton in February was 904,000 bales, compared with 950,000 bales in January and 1,055,000 bales in February, 1930, as given by the New York Cotton Exchange Service bureau. Consumption for 7 months ended February 28 was 6,381,000 bales, against 8,105,000 bales for the same time last season. The decrease in February, as compared with January, was due to the fewer number of working days in February.

Cotton futures were under pressure yesterday with prices moving downward, with the close around the lowest levels of late. Trade buyers had the advantage of picking up supplies as prices receded due to the continued commission house selling. Weakness in stocks and grains added to the depressed feeling.

Reports from the dry goods trade noted an improvement. Business on the continent continues to lag, however, while in China and Japan buying is of fair volume. Reports on fertilizer sales show a loss from last year.

Closing trades were at losses of 11@15 points in futures in Chicago, 12@15 points in New Orleans, and 14@17 points in New York. Spots lost 15 points, New York being 10.30c, New Orleans 10.05c, Galveston 10.20c, and Houston 10.10c. Liverpool was 6 points lower with spot sales 5,000 bales. Prices follow:

EGG FUTURES HIGHER

Bullish storage new brought in active buying of egg futures on the Chicago mercantile exchange yesterday, the price moving up rapidly at the opening. Selling appeared toward the close, however, and part of the gain was erased, the deliveries closing ½@¾c higher. Potatoes reflected better news in the spot market but bearish information on the new crop, April Idahoes advancing 5c and October deliveries declining 5c. Butter was quiet and unchanged, bearish storage news failing to produce much selling. Sales: Butter, 16 cars; eggs, 133 cars; potatoes, 21 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 10 cars. Prices follow:

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today, but a better inquiry was noted and all offerings of nearby supplies at the previous level of 3.33c duty paid were absorbed, with a further buying interest, but holders asking slight advances. Futures were firmer, reflecting the better spot demand and press reports from Paris stating that a maximum price of 2¼c had been agreed upon during the first year of the Chadbourne plan. At the close prices were 1@2 points net higher. Approximate sales were only 17,000 tons. Prices follow:

SPECIAL FACTORY REPRESENTATIVES.

Must be seasoned, high grade specialty salesmen, 35-50 years of age. You must be of homelike personality and convincing address and must have had extensive experience selling intangibles or business ideas that talk more than average ability to put over on first call.

The men we are seeking are not the ordinary "order-taking class," but must grasp quickly the salient features of our proposition, present our facts convincingly, and sell a worth-while business with splendid profits to one highly rated merchant in a town on an exclusive franchise basis.

Contracts are closed on first call and run into large figures, and the salesman's earnings are correspondingly large. Remuneration on a commission basis with travelling expenses advanced. This entire proposition is constant travel and a car is an asset in this business.

If you can meet these requirements and your record will stand close investigation, and you can qualify for a surety bond, we want you; otherwise do not waste your time or ours.
